ARMS EMBARGO AND NEUTRALITY PUT INTO EFFECT

Roosevelt Issues 3 Proclamations.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—President Roosevelt late today invoked what he called the "so-called" neutrality act by proclaiming that a state of war "unhappily exists between Germany on one side and France, Poland, the United Kingdom, India, Australia, and New Zealand on the other.

The law prohibits the export of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to any belligerent nation named in the proclamation and sets up various other safeguards intended to keep the United States out of war.

Earlier Mr. Roosevelt had proclaimed the neutrality of the United States in the war between Germany and the other belligerents. This proclamation, based upon international and domestic law, forbids the fitting out of military and naval expeditions in the United States and prohibits the use of its ports and territorial waters for warlike purposes.

Canal Zone Rules Issued.

A third proclamation issued by the President contained similar but more detailed regulations for the use of the Panama canal by belligerent ships.

Significantly, the President's proclamation invoking the neutrality act contained no mention of Canada. Unlike the other self-governing British dominions named in the proclamation, Canada and South Africa have not declared war on Germany.

The Canadian government, however, has pledged its full coöperation with Great Britain in the prosecution of the war and the Canadian parliament will meet on Thursday to consider measures of coöperation. Since Canadian leaders are opposed to conscription, it is believed that Canada will not declare war, but will cooperate by sending volunteers and war supplies.

The exemption of Canada from the proclamation may provide a loophole through which Great Britain could continue to obtain war supplies from the United States. There have been predictions in authoritative quarters that the administration was looking for just such a loophole before invoking the act.

Might Evade Restrictions.

The law forbids the shipment of munitions "to any neutral state for transshipment to, or for the use of, any such belligerent named in the proclamation, but the ultimate destination of munitions shipped to Canada would be a question of interpretation and proof.

At his press conference this afternoon Mr. Roosevelt refused to be drawn into a discussion of the status of Canada. He said the Canadian parliament had not acted, nor had the parliament of South Africa.

When asked why he called the law the "so-called" neutrality act, Mr. Roosevelt said that was what he and Secretary of State Cordell Hull always had called it. In his radio speech Sunday night Mr. Roosevelt said he would invoke the act but wanted it revised in order that "our neutrality can be made a true neutrality." At his press conference, however, he refused to fix any approximate date for the calling of a special session of congress and clearly indicated that he will not do so immediately.

Reluctant to Call Congress.

It is stated in responsible quarters that the President, although desiring action on the neutrality law, is reluctant to summon congress and thereby subject his every act in the war crisis to rigid surveillance and possible criticism.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear the embargo would apply to the unfilled British and French military aircraft orders in this country but said he did not know whether the manufacturers would suffer any loss on their contracts. That, he said, would depend on the contracts. It is understood in other quarters that the contracts call for delivery in this country, Britain and France having taken a chance on the revision of the neutrality act.

The two nations have ordered approximately $200,000,000 worth of bombers, fighting planes, and engines from various manufacturers, and less

Educator's Kin Seized in Fake 'Bomb' Holdup

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5 [Special].—The son-in-law of a widely known professor at the University of Michigan was arrested this afternoon as the "human bomb" robber of a bank here a few hours earlier. Arrested with him was his bride of a few months, the daughter of the educator.

The robber is George Fabian Larson, 32 years old, a paroled convict from the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, who posed as a G-man. He escaped in 1931 while serving a robbery sentence, was recaptured, and was paroled in 1938.

His wife is Cecily Sellars Larson, 25, the daughter of Prof. Roy W. Sellars, who has taught in the philosophy department at the university in Ann Arbor for many years.

The two were arrested in their room at the Statler hotel as they were preparing to flee. The loot of $2,700 was found in one of their packed bags. They said they planned on going to Evanston, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, where they had rented an apartment.

Confesses Robbery.

Larson was quoted by police as admitting that he was the man who held up the East Jefferson-Beaufaite branch of the National Bank of Detroit this afternoon by threatening employés with a bottle which he said contained nitro-glycerine.

The bottle was found by police, who said it contained only a harmless lotion.

Shortly after 2 p. m. Larson entered the bank and walked to the teller's cage presided over by C. H. Haberkorn III., the son of a vice president of the main bank. Quietly he thrust a note through the window.

The note demanded $10,000 on the threat of the bank being blown up with a bottle of explosive Larson held between his fingers, "which is enough to blow up the whole east side." The note added that the money should be handed over without commotion "as though you were paying a check."

Haberkorn handed him all the money he had in front of him.

Fires at Retreating Robber.

As Larson walked out of the bank Haberkorn seized a gun and fired a bullet which shattered the glass in the front door. The shot was the first warning to eleven other employés and about a dozen customers that there had been a robbery.

Accompanied by two other bank employés, Haberkorn ran out of the bank in pursuit of the bandit, but was prevented from firing at that moment by a group of children on the street. Haberkorn fired one more shot, which went wild, as Larson leaped into a coupé and sped away.

The bank employés obtained the number of the license plate on Larson's car, however, and learned his identity through police at Ann Arbor.

Posed as Gun Expert.

When police seized the couple, Mrs. Larson denied any knowledge of the robbery or the criminal record of her husband. She said he had told her he was a former G-man and was employed by a number of law enforcement agencies as a ballistics expert.

Mrs. Larson told police she and Larson were married in Chicago last spring after a whirlwind courtship that followed their meeting "by literally bumping into each other."

They met last February, she said, when their respective cars skidded and collided near South Bend. Two months later they were married at the Stevens hotel in Chicago.

In Ann Arbor, Prof. Sellars related that Larson had told him he formerly had been employed as an agent by the federal bureau of investigation. The professor indicated that he had been somewhat surprised by his daughter's sudden marriage to Larson a few months ago, and that he knew little about her husband.

MARKETS SOAR UPON WINGS OF SPECULATION IN WAR MATERIALS

A feverish buying movement in all American markets yesterday resulted in one of the broadest and most rapid upsurges in the history of the major exchanges. This buying was based upon the belief that the war in Europe will result in an increased demand for American commodities and industrial products.

Speculative buying of the so-called war stocks brought advances of from $1 to $15 on the New York Stock exchange. Most commodities on the Chicago Board of Trade and other exchanges rose the maximum permitted by trading rules.

The great speculative favorites were the steels, oils, coppers, sugars, farm implements, electrical equipment, and chemicals. Aircraft shares also were strong, but the extent of business these companies get will depend upon the outcome of the movement to repeal existing neutrality legislation.

Italian Liners Boost Fare for Trips to N. Y.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 5.—Americans seeking to travel to New York aboard Italian liners today learned they will have to pay from 30 to 66 per cent more for accommodations than in peace time.

It was explained the increase was due to a 2½ million lire [about $150,000]-war risk insurance premium on such vessels as the Rex and the Conte di Savoia. It was also explained it was necessary to raise prices because of expectations that the liners will travel back empty. It is not believed there will be much trans-Atlantic travel in this direction in wartime.

2,000 Americans in Rome.

The price of third class accommodations on the Rex were increased from $120 to $160, tourist class from $150 to $250 and $260, and first class from $300 and $320 to $420.

Officials of the United States embassy estimated that about 2,000 American citizens are still here. They are mostly priests and nuns, many of whom are planning to return to America. The American embassy was busy today arranging for Italian wives to go to America with their American husbands.

Limit Food Purchases.

Diplomatic representatives of all countries stationed in Rome were asked by the Italian government to restrict purchases of food and other supplies from bonded stocks on which they do not pay import duties. As a result, American embassy officials are planning to import directly from America quantities of food and soap and other articles that are likely to be scarce.

A further step to conserve food was seen in an announcement prohibiting the export of foodstuffs, metals, fuels, and a long list of other articles without special permission.

AMERICAN SURVIVORS.

The state department at Washington last night listed 112 Americans among survivors of the liner Athenia at Glasgow, Scotland; 110 aboard the steamer City of Flint, bound for America, and 96 at Galway, Ireland. Previous reports said only eight were aboard the City of Flint. These lists, with others accounted for from other sources, make a total of 364. Other Americans may be on the Swedish yacht Southern Cross, which is taking 150 survivors to America. The lists of survivors are on page 4.

POLISH GOVERNMENT LEAVES CAPITAL AS BATTLES RAGE ON 3 SIDES OF CITY

France Aims Army's Attack at North End of Foe's Line.

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Sept. 6 (Wednesday) (AP).—The French general staff announced today "local advances" had been made by its armies pressing against Germany's Siegfried line. Just as the communique was being read, at 10:48 a. m. (3:48 a. m. Chicago time), sirens shrieked an air raid alarm in Paris. It was the city's first daylight alarm since the war started and followed one in the early morning. A half hour after the second alarm, enemy planes had failed to appear. French planes had roared off to meet the invaders.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 6 [4:20 a. m. Wednesday].—Paris was awakened to its second air raid alarm of the war and the second in as many days when the sirens began screeching at 1:40 a. m today [7:40 p. m. Tuesday, Chicago time].

About 3:15 a. m. the booming of anti-aircraft guns was clearly heard in the center of the city as well as on the outskirts, but no enemy planes were sighted, although one French plane passed over the city almost at the same time. Its signal flare could be clearly seen.

The all clear signal was given at 4:15 a. m. The alarm lasted two hours and thirty-five minutes.

As far as is known at the time this dispatch was written, no enemy planes succeeded in reaching the city or dropping any bombs. According to one report, some German craft came near the outskirts of the city, but were turned back by the anti-aircraft fire.

Report Fighting Going On.

During the alarm period the population maintained the same calm as during yesterday's air raid alarm.

Paris was thrilled early today by two reports, the first that real fighting was in progress on the western front between French and German forces, and the second, of a great air battle over a wide area.

Yesterday morning's official communique—No. 3 of the war—merely announced that "operations of the land, air and sea forces are proceeding normally," but the evening communique was more complete. It said:

"Our troops have everywhere established contact on the threshold of our frontier between the Rhine and Moselle rivers. It should be recalled that along the Rhine there are permanent fortified works on both banks of the river."

German Soil Penetrated.

The French word for "threshold" means at least something a little beyond the threshold. This tended to confirm reports, which were not officially acknowledged, that French forces had penetrated into German soil at several points.

If such penetration really has taken place, the communique makes it pretty clear that it is not across the Rhine, but into the Palatinate or the Saar territory or both.

This is the left [northern] wing of the French army. It is a 100 mile frontier from Luxemburg to where the Rhine bends into Germany. On this front the French Maginot fortified line faces the Nazi Siegfried line at some places at little more than a stone's throw distance. South of the bend to Switzerland the fortified lines are separated by the Rhine.

German Planes Shot Down.

Travelers arriving in Paris by train reported an air battle was fought in the skies of northeastern France early yesterday. Many German raiders were said to have been shot down in the course of this duel. The alarms in Paris and Rouen on Monday night may have been a reflection of this sky battle.

[A London dispatch passed by the British censor reported the neighborhood of Aachen, Germany, near the Belgian border and forty miles west of Cologne, was bombed yesterday, though it was not said whether by British or French planes. The sound

SNIPERS PLAGUE HITLER TROOPS ON EAST FRONT

BY LOUIS LOCHNER.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF THE EAST, Sept. 5 (AP).—A general order for the roundup of all civilian males of arms-bearing age in sections of Polish Silesia conquered by the Germans was issued today by the military command because of persistent sniping.

An officer accompanying me on this trip to the front explained that the greatest single difficulty met by the German army in its drive on Poland was civilian sniping.

For example, he said that yesterday here in Czestochowa there was a sudden burst of gunfire from houses which cost the lives of a German captain, several lieutenants, and an undisclosed number of privates.

Thirty Suspects Seized.

Sniping had been resumed this morning and thirty men were conducted to the city hall—now a German commandery—as among those believed guilty of participation.

We followed them to the city hall. Directly outside it I saw a German soldier keeping guard under a big tree. The protruding boots of a German lieutenant, a straw mat thrown over the body and a scabbard and blade lying crossed over the mat, spoke in eloquent language of death.

I was told that this lieutenant was shot during the previous night as he worked at his desk close to a window.

I came here as the first and only correspondent at present permitted at the front by the selection of three American news organizations in Berlin, who acted on the invitation of German authorities to permit a neutral American newspaperman to see what was going on.

Finds Cathedral Unharmed.

I flew in a military plane to Oppeln, and from there traveled under military escort across the Polish border to Czestochowa.

I saw the famous Black Madonna in Jasnagora monastery in Czestochowa. The monastery and cathedral have not been harmed.

In an interview Father Norbert Motylewski declared:

"The miracle working image of the Czestochowa Virgin on the Jasnagora [light colored mountain] was not damaged in any way nor has Jasnagora suffered in any way."

As we entered the chapel we saw a crowd of Polish worshippers attending mass. Some—both men and women—lay prostrate, kissing the marble floor, their hands extended. Among them were many sobbing women.

American Envoy and Other Diplomats Join Exodus.

BULLETIN.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 6 (Wednesday) (AP).—Diplomatic dispatches from Warsaw early today said the German army after a lightning advance from the north was shelling the city. The Polish capital, already evacuated by the Polish government and foreign embassies and legations, was described as partially destroyed under the heavy bombardment. Airplanes conducted continual raids. The government was said to have fled to Lublin, 90 miles southeast of Warsaw.

BULLETIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 6 (Wednesday).—The correspondent of the official Latvian news agency today telephoned from Warsaw that sounds of cannonading could be heard in the Polish capital. He said German armored columns, which have been approaching Warsaw from East Prussia, were advancing rapidly.

WARSAW, Sept. 6 [Wednesday] (AP).—Fighting on the eastern front was reported today to be increasing in intensity as thousands of dismayed residents fled from the city.

The line was said to be at Ciechanow, 45 miles north of Warsaw. [No mention was made in this dispatch of shelling of Warsaw, reported in Budapest, but the Budapest dispatch was filed more than an hour later than this one.]

Battles also raged west and south of Warsaw.

Thousands who lacked funds to seek a haven watched refugees pouring out of the city. The Warsaw radio shortly before midnight told of the fighting and said it would decide the fate of Warsaw.

American Envoy Leaves.

Polish troops were concentrated on a twenty mile line frim Ciechanow to Plonsk, thirty-five miles northwest of Warsaw. The radio said they were holding fast.

[A Berlin communique reported a German column fifty miles north of Warsaw and told of large gains in other sections.]

German planes swooped low and chattering machine guns sounded in the city as an American embassy caravan set out yesterday for a temporary embassy site.

With Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., his family, and most of his staff were several newspaper correspondents and a number of Americans of Polish descent. Their destination was not announced. All other embassy and legation staffs left too, leaving only consular staffs functioning. [The American embassy was believed to have moved to Luck, 200 miles southeast of Warsaw.]

Polish officials and their families began leaving the city secretly tonight, leaving only skeletonized staffs. Offices were to be set up in some southeastern city.

War Office Silent.

The few remaining Americans and other foreigners were completely without accurate information as to what was happening in the war zones, since the war office left no one behind authorized to give out information.

Among the Americans remaining were Landreth M. Harrison, the embassy's second secretary and part of his staff, Maj. William H. Colbern, military attaché, and E. A. Symans of Grand Rapids, Mich., of the commercial attaché's office.

Until yesterday Warsaw carried on normally under war conditions, but yesterday morning a distinct change became noticeable.

Taxicabs disappeared from the streets and other cars became scarce. Street car service was curtailed. Persons carrying packages and bundles began moving toward the suburbs.

Polish Planes Stay on Ground.

Causing much wonder was the fact that Polish pursuit planes did not rise to meet German bombers as they flew over the city.

The mass movement out of Warsaw became heavier toward evening, with all available cars, horses, and bicycles utilized to carry men, women, children, household goods, and luggage of all descriptions. Despite the flight several hundred thousand persons were still in Warsaw, which has a normal population of 1,300,000.

During yesterday automobiles and even horses could be hired only at a high premium. Gasoline was almost unobtainable, the government having requisitioned nearly all supplies for purposes of war.

Raiding German bombers apparently confined their attacks to the suburbs and to military objectives. The weather was perfect for their purpose—the sky clear, the September sun brilliant.

The course they traveled led to belief they were shuttling back and forth between Austrian, Slovak, and other German areas—in short trips permitting quick reloading of the bomb racks.

[Budapest reported that Germany had closed her frontier with Hungary, as well as the Slovak-Hungarian frontier Tuesday evening.]

16 Bombers Visit City.

The day's most spectacular visit of German planes came just at 6 p. m. and in it not a bomb was dropped.

Sixteen big bombers, swinging like great black hawks in a circle over the city, broke up into groups of twos and fives without challenging the anti-aircraft fire. As they swept, then, into three formations before flying westward, there was sporadic machine gun fire from the city.

Reports received here indicated the Polish armies had shortened their defense lines to cling to those positions now held.

Information from the front included a report that a Polish cavalry unit had broken through the German East Prussian border and occupied two villages.

NEW DISCOVERY MAY AVERT WAR TYPHUS SCOURGE

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—A typhus fever discovery that may save thousands of lives in the present war was announced here today at the Third International Congress for microbology. Typhus, one of the war diseases which has killed more men than bullets, is expected to break out again, for the disease has never been wiped out in Poland.

The Poles have a vaccine which prevents typhus, but it is so difficult to make that Poland is able to produce only enough for 20,000 persons a year, leaving the rest of her millions in the danger of death, if the scourge of typhus becomes epidemic, as it did on the eastern front in the world war.

A way to make unlimited quantities of the vaccine was reported to the congress by Dr. Hans Zinnser of Harvard university, and Miss Florence Fitz Patrick, his assistant, Boston. They have discovered how to grow the virus which causes typhus on agar, a gelatine made from seaweed. The vaccine is made by killing this virus with carbolic acid and this vaccine protects against the European form of typhus, Dr. Zinnser reported.

NEW MOTORIZED ARMY DIVISION SEEN IN REVIEW

Fort Sam Houston, Tex., Sept. 5 [Special].—The ordinarily ponderous movement of an army review was carried out with dispatch by the speedy streamlined provisional 2d division on Arthur MacArthur field recently.

Witnessed by 5,000 civilians, the first motorized organization of its kind passed before the reviewing stand of Maj. Gen. H. J. Brees, commander of the 8th corps area.

Commanded by Maj. Gen. Walter Krueger, more than 8,000 officers and enlisted men formed a column a mile long. Their armament ranged from the new semi-automatic rifle with fixed bayonet to 155 millimeter howitzers. Nearly 1,000 military motor vehicles were used. It was anticipated that this array of fighting power would require an hour to pass the reviewing officer. The swift moving units cleared in half that time.

The review followed a series of battle maneuvers over a period of two and one-half weeks on the Loon Springs military reservation.

BEGIN CORONER'S QUIZ IN DEATH.

Frank Dagget, 77 years old, a retired seaman, died yesterday in the Marine hospital. Although he had been a patient there five years, a coroner's investigation was begun because of a hip injury he incurred last May in a fall.

On the Polish Front

German troop concentrations on the Polish fronts are marked by heavy black lines, with arrows indicating direction of movements. The shading behind these lines indicate territory occupied by the invading Nazis. In the Polish corridor the Germans have practically encircled Polish forces.

GERMANY TAKES CODE MESSAGES FROM AMERICA

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Communications officials expressed surprise today that no censorship on incoming messages was being demanded by the German government. Five days after the outbreak of the hostilities in Poland, code messages still were being accepted for Germany, a representative of the International Telephone and Telegraph company reported.

Despite the restrictions and limitations imposed on code messages and the stoppage of trans-Atlantic telephone calls, except for government and banking purposes, that have been in effect since last Friday in Great Britain, France, and Poland, no word has been received of any restrictions on cipher messages received in Germany. Commercial cables are being sent to Germany by the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company.

War Closes Paris Hotels; Americans Move Often

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Many large Paris hotels usually frequented by Americans are being closed because of mobilization of their staffs and departure of guests. Some Americans have been forced to change hotels two or three times in the last four days when proprietors informed them service could not be maintained. Many restaurants frequented by Americans also are shut. Others are keeping open, with women waiters and cooks, but none have definite plans. Moving picture houses henceforth will close at 8:30 p. m. by police order.

Work Is "Interrupted," League Informs Employes

GENEVA, Sept. 5 (AP).—Employés of the league of nations were told today that due to events "the work of the league of nations has been interrupted." Joseph Avenol, league secretary, in a speech to the employés added that he had an unbreakable faith that the idea of the league would be born anew as a result of the war.

SWISS PLACE CURB ON FOREIGN VISITORS; LABOR CONSCRIPTED

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—Starting at midnight tomorrow, all foreigners entering Switzerland will be required to have a visa and to notify police of their arrival within 24 hours. Heretofore foreigners have not been required to have visas and there were no police restrictions if their visits were not for more than three months.

Because of the shortage of workers resulting from the general mobilization, the federal council yesterday decreed compulsory work service for all Swiss. The order applies to males from 16 to 65 years old and to females from 16 to 60.

BRITAIN DISBANDS COMMUNIST AND FASCIST PARTIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The British communist party was broken up tonight. Instructions issued from Red headquarters ordered all branch offices to close down and the party to disband generally. The action was a sequel to an order by the home office banning meetings or demonstrations in the future. The home office sent a similar order to Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists.

POLISH FAILURE TO FIGHT IN AIR PROVES MYSTERY

Most of Planes Believed Concealed in East.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 5.—Experts of the general staffs of the Baltic nations today asserted that one of the most surprising features of the war in Poland is the inactivity of Polish aviation, which was supposed to number 2,000 machines of Polish manufacture.

The biggest portion of the Polish air fleet is believed to be concealed in aviation fields along the nation's eastern stretches, where, soviet military authorities declare, Poland has upward of 200 airports.

The purpose of keeping concealed such large numbers of military aircraft while the Germans have been bombing the environs of Warsaw and other cities puzzles observers. Before the war began Polish general staff officers joked about the surprise they had in store for Germany, but this secret has not yet been revealed.

Call Bombings Methodical.

Neutral travelers arriving in Riga from Warsaw said German bombing operations are methodical, and that while Warsaw airports and factories producing airplanes and other munitions were seriously damaged, few bombs fell within the city limits.

Following the line of advance in the unsuccessful German attack led by Gen. Erich von Ludendorf and Gen. Paul von Hindenburg against Warsaw in October, 1914, when the Germans were driven back from the gates of Warsaw by a Siberian army, the new offensive against Warsaw is making rapid progress, it is reported.

Several circumstances differentiate the present campaign from the one in 1914. The Germans are being assisted by a powerful armored column from East Prussia which is advancing toward Warsaw from Ortelsburg and already has penetrated 25 miles. Advance detachments are reported to be within 50 miles of the Polish capital.

Main Push from Silesia.

This attack from the north is a supporting action since the main push is coming from Silesia, where industrial properties of enormous value already have been captured.

German troops are advancing on Kalisz, Zloczew, and Piotrkow in converging on Lodz, from where the main attack probably will be directed against Warsaw.

Steadily advancing, these two armies may unite and separate Polish forces of more than 600,000 men in the Poznan [Posen] district.

Another important German movement, directed toward the south, is attacking Cracow, which opens the road toward Galicia, with its capital of Lwow [Lemberg]. Galicia's population of 6,000,000 Ukrainians are discontented and ready to welcome the invaders.

ENGLAND IS CALM BUT DETERMINED, SAYS CHICAGOAN

An England whose people are calmly determined as they surround themselves with trenches and anti-aircraft guns was described last night by Hart Johnston of 1300 Elm Tree lane, Lake Forest. Johnston, who is vice president of the Wander company, makers of a food beverage, landed from the Queen Mary in New York on Monday.

"The English are ready on land and sea," he said. "The Queen Mary left Southampton on Wednesday, before the declaration of war. But mine sweepers even then were guarding the harbor entrance.

"The demand for accommodations was terrific and we could have sold our tickets for huge prices. Beds were put into the gymnasium and other public rooms of the ship.

"At night the passengers were forbidden to go on deck. All lights were doused. There were rumors that we were being convoyed, but we saw no naval vessels."

BAN PASSPORTS TO EUROPE, SAVE IN URGENT CASES

New passport regulations prohibiting trips to Europe except on urgent business were announced yesterday by Robert A. Proctor, United States passport agent in Chicago.

Proctor said that Mrs. Ruth B. Shipkey, chief of the state department's passport division, had notified him the new rules go into effect immediately. Applicants seeking passports must produce letters or other documentary evidence that a visit to Europe is necessary. No tourist trips will be permitted.

The passports will be good for only six months instead of the customary two years, and will bear a notation of the specific countries to be visited for business purposes. The new time limit also applies to passports whose holders are now in Europe or on the seas.

30 Army Planes Start for Panama; 29 Arrive

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP).—The war department said tonight that all but one of the thirty pursuit planes which encountered a storm en route to Canal Zone had been accounted for. The missing plane was piloted by Lient. H. A. Jenkins of Montalba, Tex., a reserve officer on active duty. Search for Jenkins will be resumed tomorrow.

BRITAIN DECREES BAN ON WORKERS CHANGING JOBS

Seizes Imported Canned Meats; Fixes Prices.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The house of commons today passed another batch of emergency measures and gave first reading to a new bill empowering the minister of labor to control employment.

The employment control bill prohibits all workers from taking up new employment without consent of the labor ministry. It provides that after a date still unspecified employers are banned from engaging or reengaging any employé without consent of the ministry. Employers also are not permitted to advertise for employés nor to offer high wages as bait to take men away from work of national importance.

Penalties up to £100 [about $400] fine may be levied on employers disregarding the regulations.

Measure Is Under Fire.

Opposition speakers, led by Laborites David Grenfell and David Kirkwood, sharply criticized the measure. They voiced fears that the bill might mean regimentation and conscription of labor, and demanded guarantees of a square deal for workers. At the end of a lively debate the government agreed to postpone second reading until tomorrow so a safeguard amendment may be inserted.

Among the new emergency measures are the following:

Requisitioning of stocks of imported canned meats.

Limiting to £25 [about $100] the amount of foreign exchange a traveler may take out of the country.

Fixing of prices for the sale of all categories of fat cattle, sheep, and pigs for slaughter.

Prescription of wholesale and retail prices of sugar and tea by the board of trade.

A national registration bill under which a register will be compiled of up to date manpower statistics to assist in the national service recruitment.

Commandeer Flour Mills.

The board of trade commandeered all flour mills and mills producing provender, feeding compounds, breakfast foods, and other cereal products except rice and soy beans.

Some details were disclosed about the operation of the newly formed ministry of economic warfare. Every effort will be made to prevent the export of goods to Germany, directly or indirectly, and the export of many commodities to neutral countries will be closely watched to make sure they do not exceed the quantities exported before the war began.

King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain today toured London's civil defense organization. Queen Elizabeth carried a gas mask in a canvas bag slung over her shoulder.

Dominions Back Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—The temper of the British dominions was strikingly shown in South Africa today when the South African assembly tabled a neutrality motion by Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, prime minister, forcing his resignation.

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts of world war fame, minister of justice and deputy prime minister, began formation of a new government, which, it was reported, would declare martial law tomorrow.

Hertzog's motion was defeated, 80 to 57, and Smuts' substitute motion calling for severance of relations with Germany and continued coöperation with Britain was approved by the same division. Parliament will be prorogued tomorrow.

London Thanks Dominions.

The ministry of information issued a statement of appreciation of what dominion support means to Britain. Reviewing preparedness of the dominions, the statement said "vast strides have been made in production of warlike stores of all kinds and dominion forces are today almost as well equipped as our own."

At the same time adoption by Canada of control measures similar to those already in effect in Britain were announced tonight. A price and trade board has been empowered to check any attempts at profiteering in food, fuel, and other necessities.

Three cheers for the British king sounded in the New Zealand house of representatives after parliament had passed unanimously a resolution approving New Zealand's declaration of war against Germany.

Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, and his staff reached Rotterdam tonight after being delayed in Germany awaiting the arrival of the German charge d'affaires, Dr. Theodore Kordt, from London. Members of the staff said they had been well treated, although they were kept under close supervision.

NAZIS RAID PARIS IN NIGHT; FRENCH SMASH AT FRONT

Aim Attack at Moselle Valley in North.

of sirens and explosions were said to have been heard from Raeren, Eupen, and other Belgian towns on the German frontier.]

Push Cleanup of Pockets.

PARIS, Sept. 5 (AP).—France's army on the western front pushed a clean-up of German advance pockets between the northern ends of the strongly fortified French Maginot and German Siegfried lines tonight while heavy French artillery fire thundered across the southern end of the front.

Semi-official sources said the French were trying to soften the southern German lines while the northern forces were clearing hills and valleys near Luxemburg before starting any major offensive. Advance pillboxes and machine gun nests dot the territory between the two fortifications.

A semi-official Paris radio reported trouble in Germany, and said there had been disorders in Cologne, Duesseldorf, and Essen, as well as the areas of all Czecho-Slovakia.

Dispatches from Copenhagen reported naval fighting off the coast of Denmark.

At the same time dread aerial warfare, the unknown factor on a major scale in Europe's new war, was started. French planes continuously were scouting the Siegfried line and spotting German communication lines.

The German air fleet answered with an early morning reconnaissance flight over the north and east of France which lasted three and a half hours. Air raid warnings sounded in Paris and northern French cities, sending citizens to special shelters, but the planes did not drop any bombs.

"Feeling Out the Enemy."

Reports circulating in Paris of a great battle already developing were met with a semi-official explanation that it was necessary to feel out the enemy first.

The normal development of contacts mentioned in communiques was understood in military circles to mean two main feelers were being put out to both flanks of Germany's "west wall" by the French Maginot line forces.

The problem which Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin's general staf confronts was, in the broadest terms, no secret. It is one of delivering a sufficiently hard blow against Germany in the west to result in effective aid to Poland by forcing the Nazis to withdraw a substantial portion of their forces from the eastern front.

Hitler himself announced the German army's intention to clean up Poland quickly while holding off France and Great Britain before the Siegfried line with a minimum of effectives so that almost the full German force could be used in the east.

Leaves Offensive to France.

Since Hitler has chosen to remain on the defensive in the west, France was left to take the initial offensive. Gamelin thus is the first French commander since Napoleon to be faced with such a problem.

This apparently means the elimination of the salient created by the frontier, where it swings into Germany just north of Strasbourg. Should the main attack be delivered in the center line, study of a map shows it to be obvious that two wings of the German army might close in with a pincer movement endangering French success.

On the other hand, there are specific advantages to attacking either or both flanks without the dangers of a frontal attack. If such an operation were successful it would mean the German flank would have to swing back on Karlsruhe as a pivot, straightening out the line so that the French would be in a position to deliver a frontal attack.

Natural Protection.

The "Burgundy gate" between the Vosges range and the Alps, just north of the Swiss frontier, would give the French flank protection from neutral Switzerland. An artillery barrage was reported on the Burgundy gate today.

Such an attack not only might develop such strength as to force Germany to pull division after division from her eastern front, but also would follow the easiest and most advantageous route to Poland herself.

This route lies through southern Germany along the borders of former Austria, which is much less attached to the Nazi régime than northern Germany. If it neared Poland and French communication lines stretched out, the route would have the further advantage of moving through the friendly territory of former Czecho-Slovakia, where French armies could expect to be welcomed as liberators.

Operation of Many Months.

Such a sweeping operation, it must be understood, would be far more than a matter of days—it more likely would take months or even years and be beset by many pitfalls.

The writer Maurice Duval said today in the conservative Journal des Debats:

"No man can have any idea of a short war. Let us accept the fact of a long war; it is inevitable."

With the opening of operations, the exodus of refugees from the area just north of Switzerland increased.

Eugene Deloncle who was accused as one of the leaders of the 1937 rightist CSAR [the "Hooded Ones"] plot against the government, was released from prison to join his regiment.

Deloncle, who was graduated number one among the engineers in his class at the famous Polytechnic war school, is considered a brilliant officer.

On the French Front

The French army yesterday announced contact with the German forces on the northern part of the front near the Moselle river, and artillery action against the Germans on the southern border. Military strategists point out that the French are wise in not driving through the center of the border as they might be caught in a pincer movement. Strategists also declare that the French may continue the drive in the south to push through the Bergundy gate to the head of the Danube valley and on down the valley to Poland. This theory is purely conjecture on the part of the strategists.

300 YANKEES OFFER IN ONLY FIVE DAYS TO FIGHT FOR FRANCE

PARIS, Sept. 5 (AP).—Officials of the French department of the American Legion announced tonight that more than 300 Americans had offered in the last five days to fight for France.

They announced that an ambulance section of nineteen cars donated by United States citizens and manned by American volunteers would report soon to the French army. The unit is headed by Dr. James V. Sparks, a dentist, formerly of Indianapolis.

More than 90 per cent of the Americans volunteering are veterans of the world war.

Many women are being organized for war work by Mrs. H. Sanua-Seymore, former resident of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Two thousand Americans are said to have registered for service in an American brigade being formed.

RUSSIANS CLAIM NEW AIR RECORD IN STALIN PLANE

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Sept. 5.—A new airplane record is claimed to have been established by Russian aviators. The claim was made in a message addressed to Dictator Josef Stalin and other soviet officials by Aviators Shebanov, Matveyev, and Baikusov as the crew of the plane Stalin Seven.

These two pilots and radio operator state that on the unloaded machine of two motors developing 960 horse power each, they made a nonstop flight from Moscow to Maloye Brusyanskoye to Sebastopol to Moscow—a total of 5,068 kilometers in 12 hours 30 minutes and 56 seconds at an average speed of 404.9 kilometers an hour. [A kilometer is nearly five-eighths of a mile.]

The international record for this class, made on June 8, 1938, by the French airman, Maj. Maurice Rossi, in a two motored Amio plane with Hispano Suza 960 horse power motor, was 400.8 kilometers an hour.

PANAMA INVITES REPUBLICS TO PARLEY ON WAR

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—With the blessing of the United States government, the Republic of Panama issued invitations tonight to all the American Republics to attend a conference designed to preserve peace in the western hemisphere, maintain normal trade and prevent financial disturbances on this continent as a result of Europe's war.

It was learned at the state department that the Panamanian government was sending out the invitations in the name of itself, the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Colombia, Cuba, and Mexico.

The state department disclosed that a number of South American governments had suggested that there should be some consultation in line with the declaration of Pan-American solidarity which was approved by the international conference at Lima, Peru, last year.

BRITISH RENEW AIR PROPAGANDA WAR ON GERMANY

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—The ministry of information announced tonight that planes of the Royal Air Force had dropped 3,000,000 additional pamphlet appeals to the German people in extensive reconnaisance flights last night over the coal and iron ore districts of the Ruhr. The planes, the ministry said, returned safely without having been engaged by German pursuit planes. On a previous such propaganda raid 6,000,000 leaflets were reported dropped.

FRENCH-POLISH ALLIANCE BARS SEPARATE PEACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The text of a French-Polish military alliance which was signed on Monday was published here tonight. The most notable clause forbids either party to enter into negotiations for a separate peace or armistice without the consent of the other.

This means that regardless of the extent to which the German drive into Poland may meet success, Poland's allies—the French-polish treaty follows the British-Polish treaty in this and other particulars—could not negotiate with Adolf Hitler unless the Polish state had been restored to the status it had before the present war began.

The new treaty which was signed here by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet and the Polish ambassador Julius Lukasiewicz follows the line of the French-Polish accords of 1921 and 1925.

ILLINOIS V. F. W. SPURS PROGRAM FOR NEUTRALITY

Posts of the Illinois department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are engaged in the organization's "Keep America Out of War" program, department headquarters announced yesterday. The group recently obtained five million signatures backing its neutrality policy. "With the last war not paid for and with veterans committing suicide in great numbers of late," said Karl Gillig, department commander, "It behooves us to recognize the lessons of the past. This is not our war. We are not jealous of any country or angry with any country."

364 AMERICANS LISTED AS SAVED FROM ATHENIA

Torpedoed Liner's Death Total May Be 43.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Forty-three persons were believed today to have lost their lives in the torpedoing and sinking of the British liner Athenia on Sunday night.

Rescue reports received here and at the United States maritime commission office in New York showed 1,375 of the liner's passengers and crew were picked up Sunday night in the ocean northwest of Ireland.

[An earlier dispatch indicated that only sixteen were missing, but the owners of the Athenia later revised the figures of the passenger list.]

Few of the missing are Americans, it is believed. The state department at Washington issued lists of 112 American survivors at Glasgow, Scotland; 96 at Galway, Ireland, and 110 on the maritime commission steamer City of Flint which is on its way to America with a total of 222 survivors.

The City of Flint, 7,500 ton freighter, built in the world war, will disembark its survivors at Halifax, Nova Scotia, the nearest North American port, United States maritime commission officials stated. It is expected to reach there Saturday. Eight of its American survivors were listed as injured.

364 on American List.

A general list of American survivors includings names collected from all sources by the Associated Press, showed 364 were saved. It is likely that others are aboard the Swedish yacht Southern Cross, which also is bound for America with 150 survivors. Only 311 citizens of the United States were first reported on the Athenia, but the Donaldson line, its owners, today reported that 1,418 persons, not 1,347, were on the ship. There probably were more Americans than was first believed

The Knut Nelson, Norwegian vessel, landed 506 survivors at Galway, and two other ships took 497 to Greenock, Scotland, near Glasgow.

The survivors insisted that the Athenia was torpedoed and then shelled by a submarine.

They ridiculed Germany's assertion that no German submarine was in that vicinity and that the liner must have struck a mine, which was the explanation advanced yesterday in Berlin.

James Cook, captain of the Athenia, said that immediately after the torpedo hit his ship a submarine rose to the surface and shelled it. He said there was heavy loss of life, and added:

"One shell carried away the main mast. It was evidently aimed at the wireless room but missed its mark.

Parents Lose Children.

Prof. Damon Boynton of Cornell university, one of the survivors, said: "I was in a boat twelve hours before I was picked up. I don't want to say anything more except this—I don't like German war tactics."

Frau Hubscher, a German woman, was taking her 15 year old son and 9 year old daughter to the United States to join her husband, a naturalized American. The two children were taken into a lifeboat and Frau Hubscher was being lowered when the rope snapped. She was taken in another boat and has not seen the children since.

A Mrs. Fischer of New York, too distraught to eat, sat in a hotel at Glasgow asking for news of her 6 year old son.

"When the Athenia was struck," she said, "I rushed out of my cabin calling for my son. I saw him at one of the companionways but before I got to him everything was plunged in darkness. I never saw my boy again. I saw the submarine come to the surface after it had torpedoed us."

BRITISH REPORT NAVAL BATTLES AGAINST U-BOATS

More Ships Sunk as War Rages in Sea Lanes.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 6 [Wednesday].—The British ministry of information at 2:20 o'clock this morning issued a bulletin announcing that three German ships "which might have been converted into armed raiders" had been destroyed in the Atlantic ocean.

The bulletin added that several British merchant ships had been attacked or sunk by German submarines and that British warships had attacked German submarines in several localities.

The bulletin also declared "there is reason to believe that the attacks by the royal air force on naval units in German waters were even more successful than was originally reported." This apparently referred to a previous announcement that British planes had inflicted heavy damage on two German battleships in raids near the Kiel canal yesterday.

Death Lurks in Sea Lanes.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Atlantic sea lanes were freighted with death and destruction tonight.

At least five ships have gone down since Great Britain and France went to war with Germany—two British, two German and one Greek.

Loss of life was reported in only one case, that of the Donaldson [British] liner Athenia, which went down Sunday night 200 miles off the Hebrides. How many died was still uncertain.

The other war victims:

Bosnia, 2,407 gross ton British freighter, sunk about 200 miles off the Scottish coast. The crew of twenty-three was saved by a Norwegian tanker. A message from the Bosnia said it had been set ablaze by gunfire from a submarine and then torpedoed.

Carl Fritzen, 659 gross ton German freighter bound from The Netherlands for Canada or Buenos Aires. The number in the crew was unknown, but all were believed to have been saved.

Olinda, 4,756 gross ton German freighter loaded with cereals and canned meat. It was shelled and sunk by the British cruiser Ajax. The crew of twenty-nine was saved and taken by tanker to Montevideo, Uruguay.

Kosti, Greek steamship, which struck a mine off Sweden. The crew of about thirty was rescued by a German ship. The Kosti had a gross tonnage of 1,555.

Freighter Reported Seized.

HAMBURG, Germany, Sept. 5 (AP) [Via radio].—The official German radio reported today that a Dutch freighter, carrying ore "which was possibly destined for Germany," was stopped by a British warship and escorted into Ramsgate harbor, England.

Nazis Disguise Steamer.

HAUGESUND, Norway, Sept. 5 (AP).—It was reported without confirmation today that three German ships carrying iron ore had been seized Sunday by British warcraft off Utsira.

The German steamer Freiburg of the Hamburg-American Line arrived today in Bergen, disguised as a soviet ship with identity marks on its funnels altered accordingly.

Pilsudski Reaches Bergen.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 5.—Passengers on the Pilsudski, Polish ship long detained in the Orkney Islands, arrived in Bergen, Norway, today.

The second ship to strike a mine in the Falsterbo field off Sweden, presumably a Latvian merchantman, went down last night. Its crew is unreported.

Blast on German Ship.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 5 (AP).—An explosion occurred early today aboard the German passenger-cargo ship Monte Pascoal, moored at the Buenos Aires docks. No one was injured in the blast, which did considerable damage to the vessel. Maritime authorities, while attributing the explosion to gas leakage, nevertheless ordered a complete investigation.

Shipping circles said most German merchantmen had fled into neutral ports after the loss of the Olinda, which was sunk by a British cruiser, with the Cap Norte, Berthafisser, and Mecklenburg in Recife, Brazil; the Antonio Delfino in Bahia; the Monte Olivia in Santos, and other merchantmen in Uruguayan and Argentine harbors as far south as Mar del Plata.

Canada Bars All Visitors from Lake Ship Noronic

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 5 (AP).—Acting under orders of the Canadian government, officers of the Noronic of the Canadian Steamship lines, largest of all passenger boats on the Great Lakes, barred all visitors when it docked today in Duluth harbor. Capt. H. J. Aitken ordered close scrutiny of all passengers boarding the boat and declined to admit visitors as a war precaution.

Soviet Army and Naval Chiefs Meet in Moscow

MOSCOW, Sept. 5 (AP).—An important military conference of soviet army and naval leaders was understood to have taken place. No official announcement of the meeting was made.

THOUSANDS MORE REACH HOME ON ATLANTIC SHIPS

Fate of Liner Bremen Is Still a Mystery.

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Fourteen trans-Atlantic ships brought 6,231 passengers into New York today. Most of them were American citizens. The vessels, ranging from an army transport to big liners, began arriving early this morning and kept coming all day.

Passengers cheered when the ships reached New York harbor and upon debarking told of their great relief over getting out of war-torn Europe and off the submarine infested sea.

The fear of submarine attacks such as resulted in the sinking of the British liner Athenia Sunday night has become so great that schedules virtually have been abandoned. Even the shipping of neutral nations was upset and the few vessels leaving for Europe were delayed until identifying names and flags could be painted boldly on their hulls.

Bremen's Fate Unknown.

The mystery of what happened to the German liner Bremen, now six days out of New York, continued to cause speculation. When the Bremen cleared New York last Wednesday her announced destination was Bremerhaven. The 20 million dollar liner should have reached the North sea Sunday night. However, because war was declared earlier in the day she would not have been able to get through the British blockade to her home port.

Since the German liner Columbus put in at Vera Cruz, Mex., Monday to escape capture by the British the belief was expressed here that the Bremen also might try for the Mexican haven. A number of German freighters also have fled there.

Carrying a crew of 908 officers and men, but no passengers, the Bremen was stocked with provisions for several thousand persons for at least a week. Her fuel tanks were filled to capacity and her cargo hatches were full of coal.

Champlain Brings 1,087.

Heading the list of incoming ships today was the French liner Champlain with 1,087 passengers. The British Monarch of Bermuda brought 764, the Rotterdam 760, and the British Samaria 693 after putting 351 ashore in Boston.

Six hundred forty-eight passengers arrived on the army transport Grant, the Polish Batory had 642, the United States Line's President Roosevelt 539, and the Swedish Gripsholm 460.

The Roosevelt brought 20 million dollars in British gold and the Samaria carried nearly 15 million more. The British Queen Mary, which arrived here yesterday, carried 44½ millions for the purchase of war supplies when and if the neutrality ban is lifted.

Other Ships on Way.

Four Holland-American, three United States, one British, and one French ship are on the sea and headed for New York. Largest of these is the Ile de France, due Thursday, as is the packed Manhattan of the United States line. Other ships due this week or early next week are the Noordam, Veendam, Johan van Oldenbernevelt, Statendam, American Importer, American Trader, and Arandora Star.

United States ships will be sent back to Europe as rapidly as possible to evacuate thousands of stranded Americans, whose problem became more acute today by the cancelation of several British and French ships.

The only large liner to leave for Europe today was the Niew Amsterdam. Aboard her were Prince Consort Felix of Luxemburg and Crown Prince Jean, who cut short an American visit to return home because of the war.

A sharp rise in freight rates on foreign shipments is expected soon because of increased insurance costs and the demands of seamen who would have to enter the waters of belligerent nations.

Flying President

Meet JACK FRYE. He's President of TWA. And, like all TWA major operating officials, he's a pilot.

IMPORTANT to you is the fact that Jack Frye is the only executive head of a transcontinental airline who is a licensed airline pilot. His record is 4,868 hours in the air. He has been successively pilot, manager of operations, vice-president and president. He has been in the airline business since its infancy; has contributed to its progress; helped it grow up.

Every operating policy that President Jack Frye administers today—every company decision—is based on a long background covering 16 years of practical flying experience.

Under his leadership, TWA has played an important part in the development and success of this wonderful, modern miracle—airline transportation—which over a million people a year are using.

Much of the method and many of the improvements of modern airline flight, now standard practice on all airlines, were originated and pioneered by TWA. For example:

TWA was first to establish a system of Planned Flights by the Pilot.

De-icers, automatic pilots, airbrakes for reducing landing speeds—all were first used by TWA.

And—with an eye to the future—TWA conducted the first experiments in "overweather" flying at high altitudes.

Like Jack Frye, every other major TWA operating official is a licensed transport pilot. They are men who have made flying their business for years. All of these men have flown hundreds of thousands of miles over TWA routes.

Because of this background, the entire TWA organization has developed a deep-rooted tradition—an esprit de corps that's reflected top to bottom...in pilot, mechanic, hostess, sales force.

What This Means To You

When you board the luxurious "Sky Chief," or any of its companion TWA Skyliners, you know that your flight is controlled every minute, not merely by transportation men, but by expert flyers. They are part of TWA's enviable tradition of long, dependable, and efficient operation.

Next trip, go TWA. We sincerely believe you'll agree with the many experienced air travelers who prefer this "airline run by flyers."

NEUTRAL—BUT 5 LITTLE NATIONS TAKE NO CHANCES

Southeast Europe Lines Up 2,400,000 Troops.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 5 (AP).—Southeastern Europe, zealous to keep war from spreading to this corner of the continent, has proclaimed its neutrality to the world, but still it is taking no chances.

In case the clash of the great powers draws them into the conflict, the five little nations are ready with 2,400,000 men mobilized for action and 3,000,000 more in reserve.

Even while proclamations of strict neutrality were being drawn up, preparations for any hostilities were being pushed on a large scale. Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Bulgaria officially signified their neutrality last night. Greece and Hungary likewise have expressed an intention to remain neutral.

Rumania Mobilized.

Rumania, first to issue a formal neutrality declaration, has massed the greatest military machine in southeastern Europe. Starting Aug. 1 with 350,000 men under arms, she subsequently has called up another 750,000 and has 700,000 more in reserve.

The Rumanian navy has been put into fighting shape. Fortifications along the frontier with Russia are being strengthened. Bridges over the Dniester river, which forms the border between the two countries, are being mined.

Most of the Rumanian military strength was massed along the soviet frontier, but 100,000 soldiers were within striking distance of the Hungarian border.

500,000 in Serb Army.

Jugo-Slavia, where the spark that kindled the last world conflict was struck, based her neutrality stand on a "duty to maintain and develop friendly relations with all neighbors." She has 500,000 men ready to throw into any conflict and 1,300,000 trained reserves.

Little Bulgaria, in her proclamation, talked of Europe "smeared with blood" and made it clear she wished to remain free of hostilities. Her military establishment is one of the greatest in Europe in comparison with her population. With a normal standing army of only 50,000, she now has 200,000 men "on call" and 450,000 more reserves.

Hungary, signer of the anti-communist pact with Germany, Italy, and Japan, has showed her eagerness for neutrality, in spite of an occasionally expressed desire for the return of territory lost after the last war. Her forces have been brought to a war standing of 300,000 men, with 400,000 more trained soldiers in reserve.

Greece, likewise eager to keep out of war, has called 260,000 of her 581,000 trained men to the colors.

Nazis Ban Public Dancing; Offenders to Be Punished

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The ministry of interior decreed today that dancing in public will not be allowed hereafter and that those permitting, as well as those participating in, public dancing will be punished.

TAKE DOWN AIR RAID SHELTERS IN ROMAN STREETS

New Hint Duce Plans to Stay Out of War.

ROME, Sept. 5 (AP).—Premier Mussolini gave a new indication that he was not thinking of going to war at present as workmen today began taking down air raid shelters which had been erected hastily a week ago.

The shelters consisted of planks laid against walls throughout the city. They were to have been covered with sand bags.

Nazi Advance Pleases Italy.

Italians failed to see how the British and French forces could strike Germany hard enough to save Poland.

Reports of the German army's advances toward its eastern objectives were received with manifestations of pleasure as indicating that Adolf Hitler still could dispense with Italian aid.

Commentators said Hitler was carrying out his "solemn promise" to win the war with Poland in a few weeks. Much was made in the Fascist press of a situation in which, the newspapers said, the French had not yet fired a rifle shot. Headlines reporting "nothing new on the western front" were prominently displayed.

Report 3 Nazi Objectives.

Gdynia, Warsaw, and Cracow were reported in the press to be the three German objectives whose occupation could give ultimate victory.

In an article in Forte Armate, an outstanding Italian military organ, Lieut. Col. Amedeo Tosti declared Poland's situation was desperate.

He said it was virtually impossible for Poland to get supplies. He asserted the superiority of Germany's 200 divisions over Poland's 50 divisions and spoke of the scarcity and weakness of Polish arms and of the vulnerability of Polish territory to the German air force.

See Warsaw as War Stake.

Polish forces in the corridor, represented in the Italian press as shut up on three sides and blockaded at sea, were reported as resisting along a strip of coast where operations already underway "will lead to a rapid attack on Gdynia."

"It does not seem risky," La Tribuna said, "to predict Polish troops will make every effort to prevent the Germans from reaching the capital, thus staking the outcome of the war on a single card—Warsaw."

Illustrative of the confidence that Italy would maintain neutrality, restrictions were relaxed permitting public gatherings an hour later than formerly—or until midnight.

PANAMA, R. P., Sept. 5.—The European war has resulted in a rush by owners to register merchant ships under the flag of Panama. The registry of nine ships has been changed here in the last few days. # POLISH CIVILIAN SNIPERS HARRY ADVANCING NAZIS reality of war broke upon us. We heard intermittent shots. On the boulevard below German anti-aircraft was set up in formidable numbers.

Shoot from Windows in Captured Towns.

At a corner lay two dead horses—which nobody had had time to remove. To the left of us a whole row of buildings showed broken windows and bullet riddled façades, while proceeding down the right side of the boulevard were about thirty Polish civilians closely guarded by steel helmeted German soldiers, their rifles cocked. The Poles marched with their hands up. These were the thirty arrested as sniping suspects.

When the order came yesterday afternoon that a plane was waiting for me at Tempelhof airdrome, near Berlin, I was first taken to the war office to have my gas mask fitted and also to receive a first aid kit.

Planes Painted Greenish Black.

At Tempelhof, what a change since I last visited it! Once as busy as any railway station, with commercial planes starting and arriving, east, west, north, and south, it now is a military airdrome with planes painted a forbidding greenish black. The open air restaurant where hundreds of Berliners used to sit of a summer day, listening to music, now is empty.

I had been told that one of Germany's most popular and biggest types of planes would be at my disposal. I approached it with visions of comfortable upholstered seats. Instead, I found machine guns protruding from the fusilage. Steel helmets, parachutes, first aid kits and gas masks extended a cheering welcome as we climbed aboard.

Flying from Berlin via Breslau to Oppeln, in Silesia, I was struck with the stoppage of traffic on the big Hitler super-highways—except for army transports of all sorts. Germany is rationing its gasoline from the very start and nobody has the right to drive a private car unless he can show mighty good cause.

Railway Tracks Empty.

The railway tracks, too, seemed empty. For miles and miles I saw no passenger trains along this normally busy route; only occasional freight trains.

We passed some twenty military airports en route and everywhere bombers, pursuit planes, power divers encircled by batteries of anti-aircraft guns were ready at any moment to take the air.

It appeared that the Poles, if they attempted to fly from upper Silesia to raid Berlin, would have to jump at least twenty hurdles.

We had hardly passed over Oppeln when war at once seemed exceedingly close. For we landed on an improvised airport at Stunebdorf where only a few minutes previously eighty-seven bombers had returned from a raid.

1,100 Planes Held Ready.

At this and two other improvised airports nearby, my companion officer said, there were some 1,100 military planes of every description. The airport was fringed with camouflaged tents for officers and men. Some distance off were larger barracks.

A lieutenant colonel awaited us with a car as we landed.

"No use going to Czestochowa today," he said. "We have reports that the civil population is sniping. I cannot take responsibility for the life of a neutral. So I will take you to Oppeln. By tomorrow [this was yesterday] Czestochowa will have been cleaned up."

All along the thirteen mile route to Oppeln soldiers guarded every bridge and traffic police were in military garb. The army had drawn on trained police from all over the country to regulate traffic in the military areas.

Farmers Shoot from Fields.

Our lieutenant colonel's office was a converted school with cots in some rooms for officers; with a field telephone hastily installed, and with military maps sprawling over the floor and desk.

Two of his subordinate officers entered just as he was telephoning Berlin of my safe arrival.

"We have tried to go to Czestochowa to take pictures of the Madonna," they reported, "but we had to turn around because farmers began to shoot from the fields as we hurried along the road."

Over in a corner there lay a few trophies. Sanitary kits taken from prisoners of war seemed very primitive and some of the rifles looked long outdated. Some cartridges were corroded.

Finds War Is Streamlined.

At this lieutenant colonel's headquarters I was forcibly impressed with the fact that war today is made with the most modern means of information. Attached to each army group are staff photographers, camera men, and newsmen, because the war correspondents of the individual newspapers are not permitted.

In camp barracks and even at the front news is regularly broadcast to the soldiers; out along the first lines a loudspeaker on wheels brings the latest news broadcasts.

In addition, the various army groups—at least this is true in Silesia—publish a daily four-page newspaper in editions of 25,000. The soldiers are said to pay each other half a loaf of bread or three cigarets for a copy. The paper is distributed along a fifty-mile front after rolling off the presses at 2 a. m. Talkies on wheels also get as close to the front as possible, to entertain the men.

The city of Oppeln seemed uncanny in complete darkness. Close as it is to the border, the blackout naturally is as complete as human ingenuity can make it.

All Bridges Destroyed.

This morning at 4 o'clock we started for the Polish border. I had a first experience of what preparation for war means. The whole road to Czestochowa, 55 miles away, was one long procession of army trucks, officers' cars, horse-drawn provision wagons, marching labor camp lads, army engineers, anti-aircraft sharpshooters.

The army of the east itself evidently had gone to the front days before my arrival.

Every bridge from the German frontier to Czestochowa had been destroyed by the retreating Poles. Army engineers, assisted by labor camp boys, hastily built emergency bridges over which our car went with such bumps that we wondered how the axles stood it.

The railway tracks, too, had been torn up and army engineers were at work repairing them. In some cases ready made bridges carried along on army trucks were laid down; in others steel mattresses were laid out on the roads to help us over the worst bumps. Telephone gangs were everywhere stringing wires.

Sees Big Shell Craters.

We saw big holes in the ground showing where artillery fire had struck.

While the army was thus ceaselessly pushing on—even horses were being transported to the front on motor lorries—we saw a curious contrast; Polish civilians flooding back from the east and proceeding westward again to their homes, now that fighting had ceased and their land was in German hands.

Barefooted women with babies tied on their backs and one cow walking behind, old men carrying heavy burdens wrapped in bedspreads, boys and girls pushing their bicycles, on which they had fastened their scant belongings, push carts bulging with knicknacks, whole families huddled together on horse drawn vehicles—such was the procession of miserable humanity coming toward us.

Shortly before reaching the border we saw a stockade-like affair at Guttentag with barbed wire around it and a big barn at one end. Some 1,100 captured Poles, it developed, had been assembled here the night before from various parts of the fighting area, and during our stay were marched off in groups of about 200 to nearby railway stations, from which they will be transported to internment camps.

Happy to Be Captured.

For the most part they were exceedingly badly clad. One group of fifty suddenly burst into song and when an interpreter asked who they were, they were said to have replied that they were Ukrainians and happy to be captured. There was a sprinkling of men in civilian clothes, five women, and about a dozen boys in their teens among the prisoners.

"Polish women," an officer said, "fight like tigers."

Shortly before arriving at our destination we reached a desolate town, evidently with brick factories as a chief industry. Buildings along the main road were a shambles and the kilns were shot to pieces.

The German officer attached to me explained that two days previously, after the main part of the German army already had marched beyond Czestochowa and while the rear guard was being brought up, civilians of this town of Graszyn suddenly opened fire from their homes, killing some officers and men. A skirmish ensued, he said, in the course of which the houses and factories were demolished.

BOY'S GUN DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday after Albert Stahnke Jr., 14 years old, told how his brother Erwin, 11, was killed Monday as the two boys played with a rusty revolver at their home, 2059 West 138th street, Blue Island.

It's nostalgic of Edwardian shapeliness done in batiste and boning with back lacing so neatly contrived that your waist is pared to the core—your hips and bosom moulded to comely proportions. # GERMANS REPORT RAPID ADVANCE ON POLISH FRONT

Take 2 Important Cities in Silesian Region.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Sept. 6 [Wednesday] (AP).—With official reports of all quiet on the western front the supreme army command announced today sweeping victories against Poland on the eastern front. These new strokes against Poland were announced:

Capture of Kielce, about 100 miles south of Warsaw, and within 50 miles of Sandomierz, seat of the Polish arms industry; capture of about 10,000 prisoners in the corridor [Pomorze] and elsewhere in northern Poland; capture of 60 field guns, and capture of Bydgoszcz [Bromberg], 140 miles northwest of Warsaw.

BERLIN, Sept 6 [Wednesday].—German troops are advancing in Poland more rapidly than they did in the first days of the war, German sources asserted early today.

In the southeast new successes were reported in Upper Silesia [southwestern Poland]. Two cities were captured in an advance on Cracow.

It was reported that Fuehrer Hitler, who is with the eastern armies operating south of Danzig and near East Prussia, had crossed the Vistula river only a few miles from where Napoleon crossed it on his eastward trek more than a century ago.

At 7 p. m. last night official quarters reported that absolute quiet continued on the French-German border. Officials said: "It is not our intention to attack until we are attacked."

[This conflicted with Paris reports, which said operations were in progress on the Rhine-Moselle front.]

Berlin Blacked Out.

Though bombers, huge transport planes, and tiny scouting planes kept roaring over Berlin all day and night, official sources declared no hostile airplanes had visited the city up to midnight.

[Polish radio and Polish telegraph agency reports received in Copenhagen and Paris said that thirty Polish planes had bombed Berlin last night and returned safely to their bases.]

Berlin was completely dark last night in a total blackout. Anti-aircraft forces were alert to repulse any attacks, but there were no warnings of approaching planes.

Capture Rich Cities.

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—The German high command today announced the capture of the rich Polish industrial cities of Katowice and Chorzow in a drive toward Poland's historic ancient capital of Cracow, and declared "the foe, partly retreating in disorder, was badly shattered."

Capture and retention of the two cities would give Germany control of the highly important industrial region of Upper Silesia.

In addition, the German forces reported they had crushed the entire Seventh Polish army division southeast of Czestochowa, which was captured two days ago. [A division usually is between 10,000 and 15,000 men.]

Fail to Explode Mines.

The Poles, taken by surprise, gave up Katowice and Chorzow without exploding the mines placed under their great industrial plants, leaving the greater part of the industrial equipment intact. The American-Silesian company owns the so-called Harriman-Giesche zinc mines at Katowice.

Eleven Polish planes were reported shot down today between Warsaw and Lodz, making a total of forty-two reported destroyed in the last 24 hours and sixty-five in the last 48 hours.

Two British planes of scouting type were reported shot down over Hamburg this afternoon. [The Germans claimed to have shot down fifteen British planes in two days.] A third Polish submarine was reported sunk in Danzig bay.

Army's Communique.

A communique of the German supreme army command said:

"The German eastern army on Sept. 4 broke the enemy's resistance on all fronts and pushed ahead irresistibly. The opponent, partly retreating disorderly, was badly shattered. The number of prisoners and captured war materials is not yet determinable. The 7th Polish division staff was captured.

"The pursuit upon Cracow continued in a steady advance in the south. The Skawa [Skawce] sector near Wadowice was traversed. Farther north Jaworzno was taken. The enemy was precipitately evacuating the Upper Silesian industrial region. A Warta river crossing was forced near Sieradz.

Army Circled in Corridor.

"Since yesterday indications point to a growing recognition of the encircled Polish corridor army of their hopeless situation, as they are trying desperate individual operations to force open the [German] iron ring. [The corridor operation reunited East Prussia and Germany proper.]

"The Grudziadz [Graudenz] fortifications were taken. Troops which are near and south of Kulm [Chelmno] crossed the Vistula [river] in the presence of the Fuehrer, supreme commander, and are advancing rapidly from the eastern bank.

"East Prussian troops in hard man to man fighting near Mlawa took the town and fortifications. The defeated enemy is retreating southward.

Claim Rule of Polish Air.

"The air force is ruling the air. Forty Polish planes were destroyed, fifteen of them in an air battle. A planned retreat of the enemy was increasingly frustrated through air raids on the enemy's marching columns and troop trains.

"On the North Sea coast about 6 p. m. [Sept. 4] English fighting planes of the most modern construction attacked Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven as well as naval forces lying in the Elbe and Weser estuaries.

"Anti-aircraft defense of the navy began early and effectively so that the raid on Cuxhaven was frustrated completely, while bombs on Wilhelmshaven caused no damage. It was learned more than one-half of the attacking planes were shot down."

A new sector was opened in the direction of Kaliz from Lower Silesia, the first thrust in the direction of Poznan province, a thumb of Poland extending into Germany.

Describing the British air raid on the naval bases, an official report said that first warning of the approach of the flight—said to have been made up of Vickers bombers—was given by the coastal commands at Ostfriesland and Nordfriesland. This enabled anti-aircraft batteries to be ready for immediate action.

At 5:50 p. m., said the report, the planes appeared over the mouths of the Weser and Elbe rivers and German pursuit planes, which already had gained altitude, attacked the British and drove them down into anti-aircraft fire.

The report asserted that only one British bomber reached its goal, but was hit at once by a shell and crashed into Wilhelmshaven harbor, while the crew of another bomber was captured after its pilot was killed in the air.

Nazis asserted the British air raid on German naval bases failed.

[London reports said "severe damage" had been inflicted on two German battleships. London's censor passed a report which said five British planes had been shot down.]

No News of the Bremen.

Germans said seven British planes were shot down between the Netherlands border and Wilhelmshaven and five more over Wilhelmshaven harbor. All the British bombs fell in the water, it was stated.

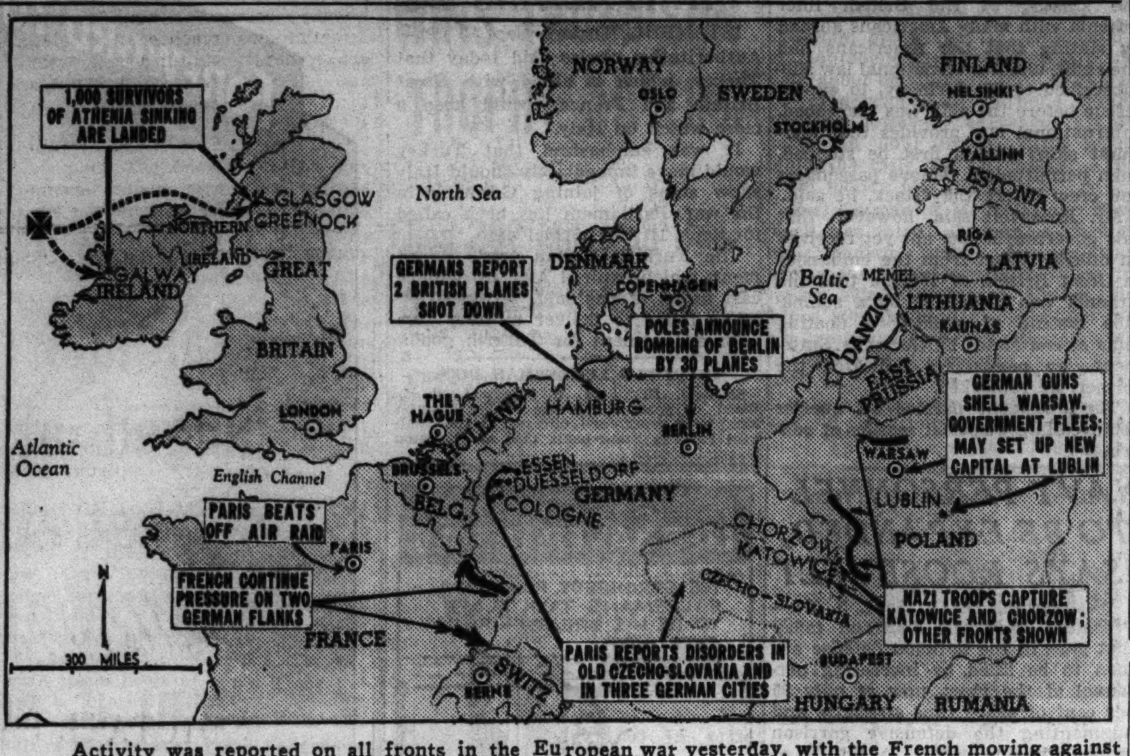
Another British bomber was reported shot down over Doggerbank, but it is possible this report concerned one of the participants in last night's battle.

Officials said they still had no news at 6 p. m. of the fate of the German trans-Atlantic liner Bremen which was racing for home from New York when Great Britain and France declared war.

Officials also said Germany "expects the Netherlands as well as other neutral countries to open fire" when foreign military planes fly over their territory. It has been charged here repeatedly that Great Britain broke the Netherlands neutrality by sending bombers over that nation to Germany.

Some of the leaflets dropped in western Germany on Sunday night by British planes [London reported 6,000,000 such tracts were dropped and 3,000,000 more Monday night] were brought to Berlin tonight. They were small handbills with printing on either side and said Germany had forced Great Britain into a useless war, referring also to President Roosevelt's peace proposals.

Day's Developments in the European Conflict



Activity was reported on all fronts in the European war yesterday, with the French moving against Germany on the west and the Nazi armies in the east pushing Polish troops deeper into Polish territory. The Germans were shelling Warsaw, capital of Poland, which was being evacuated.

NAZIS DENY THEY HAVE PACT WITH MOSCOW TO SPLIT UP POLAND

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP)—Officials declared today Germany has no agreement with soviet Russia for partition of Poland.

"All we want is what we have won," they said.

QUEBEC LEADER OPPOSES GOING TO WAR FOR BRITAIN

MONTREAL, Sept. 5 [Canadian Press].—Paul Gouin, leader of Quebec's Action Liberale Nationale party, opposes Quebec province's participation in the European war. Its population is largely French-Canadian.

"I refuse to believe the theory that when England is at war, Canada is at war," he said.

JAPS ANNOUNCE NEUTRAL STAND; SNUB RUSSIANS

TOKIO, Sept. 5 (AP).—Renzo Sawada, vice minister of foreign affairs, notified the British, American, Italian, French, German, and Polish diplomatic representatives today of Japan's decision to remain neutral in the European war.

A foreign office statement drew "attention to the desirability of eliminating all causes for untoward incidents between the European belligerent powers in China."

This meant that Japan reiterated her responsibility for maintaining neutrality in the occupied areas of China.

The soviet diplomatic representative was ignored. Some observers believe Russian assistance to China in her war against Japan will be increased.

CARNEGIE PEACE MOVE SET BACK BY EMPIRES' WAR

New York, Sept. 5 [Special.]—The outbreak of war in Europe is a setback for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, established in 1910 with a 10 million dollar gift of the late Andrew Carnegie, but the program will be carried forward, according to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university and director of the peace organization.

"We kept on working through the last war and we'll do it again," said Dr. Butler.

Since it began its work for world peace, the Carnegie Institution has spent millions of dollars.

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace contributes to numerous peace and international relations organizations, hired lecturers, coöperates in the care of refugees, pays for radio time and publications of various kinds.

The biggest task of the organization was the publication in 1937 of a social and economic history of the world war in 152 volumes. Dr. James T. Shotwell directed the work and had collaborators from countries all over the world.

NAZIS EXPECT ITALIAN MILITARY MISSION TO REACH BERLIN TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—An Italian military commission is expected to arrive in Berlin tomorrow, German sources report.

Italian sources, however, declare that the arrival of the mission may be late. Furthermore, the Italians say it will be a few days their officers will join conferences of Russian and German military officers. The Germans expect that the Italians will join the conferences quickly.

The Russian military commission has been negotiating with German officials in the war office daily. The mission arrived last Sunday. German-Russian trade and nonaggression pacts have been signed, but so far no military alliance has been announced.

QUEZON SEEKS POWER TO MEET WAR EMERGENCY

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 5 (AP).—President Manuel Quezon asked the Philippine assembly today "to empower the government to meet any emergency that may arise" as a result of the European war.

Fortunately, he said, America was at peace with the world and the Philippines consequently remained neutral.

"As a neutral power, however, America has certain obligations to perform not only in the continental United States but in the Philippines as well," Quezon added. "It behooves us therefore to assure the government of the United States of our loyalty and devotion."

COULD KEATS HAVE SEEN—

By CALEB

WITH his immortal lines, Thou still unravished bride of quietness, thou foster-child of silence and slow time, Keats essayed to express the meaning of a Grecian urn.

Sometimes we are tempted to wonder what phrases he would have coined, could he have spent an hour in our Wabash second-floor collection of Rookwood Pottery. For here, in lavish variety, are the themes of a hundred odes—waiting only for someone like another Keats to transpose their inimitable loveliness into language.

Chief among reasons for Rookwood's premier distinction as "the very poetry of pottery" is its perfection of form, color, decoration and finish—the fourfold standard of all ceramic fineness. Another is the recognition accorded it by display in twenty-six of the world's foremost museums—from Copenhagen, Berlin and Tokio, to Paris, St. Petersburg, Naples, Prague and Philadelphia. Still another is its consummate design—the work of a wide group of specialists in decoration, who are given free scope for their talent, and personally sign hundreds of Rookwood pieces.

Especially important is the fact that the creative labor of painting, incising, modeling and coloring is done on the moist, new-moulded clay direct—before firing. Thus, Rookwood excellence is literally a part of the ware itself. And there is the marvel of Rookwood glazes: Iris, Vellum, Tiger Eye, Ombroso, Flambe, Oxblood, Crystalline, Aventurine—each superlative.

By such earmarks connoisseurs recognize Rookwood on sight. Any layman, however, can verify the true ware in the distinctive flame-circled RP mark; the date; and—for special designs—the decorator's mark, pressed into the bottom of each piece.

High on Mt. Adams—one of Cincinnati's breezy city hills—cluster the broad grounds and charming, gabled buildings of the famous plant behind these famous products. There, out of fine American clays, are crafted lovely vases, bowls, jugs, platters, lamps, and other art objects, by American artists steeped in a Rookwood tradition dating from 1880. . . . What Keats might have written is, after all, idle speculation. His source of inspiration, however, is more than rivaled by our own current exhibit of this imperial pottery.

ARMS EMBARGO AND NEUTRALITY ARE PROCLAIMED

Rules for Panama Canal Also Issued.

than half of their orders have been delivered. A substantial number of bombers were rushed to various American ports in the three day period between British and French war declarations and Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation that a state of war existed. Some of them were flown to Canada to beat the deadline.

Two Proclamations Separated.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said the two neutrality proclamations were issued a few hours apart in order that the public might "appreciate the difference."

His tone implied that the first proclamation would demonstrate the President's power and determination to keep the United States out of war without the neutrality act, which Mr. Roosevelt signed in 1935 and again in 1937 but now strongly opposes.

The administration argues that the mandatory embargo on arms shipments encourages Hitler by denying to Great Britain and France the right to purchase munitions in this country.

The President is said to favor outright repeal of the act, although at the last session he sought to repeal the arms embargo provision and permit the sale of munitions to all belligerents who would pay for them in cash and come after them in their own ships. Either action would permit the use of the United States as a munitions depot by the Anglo-French alliance, since Germany has neither the cash to purchase war materials in this country nor the means of transporting them through the British blockade.

Walsh Denounces Policy.

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee, today denounced what he called the strange inconsistency of the state department in trying to do everything short of war in an effort to stop Hitler.

The state department, he said, recommends that our ships be barred from the war zones, that loans to both sides be prohibited, that our citizens be barred from travel on belligerent ships, and that other steps be taken to effectuate an appearance of neutrality.

"Militarily, however, they demand in the name of neutrality one reservation, that one which is the most dangerous and most certain to result in trouble, namely, furnishing arms, munitions, and materials of war to the belligerents of one side," said Senator Walsh.

Opposes Favoritism.

"If it is real neutrality to bar our ships, forbid loans, and keep our citizens from war zones, in simple logic and plain common sense, what more effective and practical neutrality could we pursue than to refrain from trading with any of the belligerents? Furnishing one side with the deadly weapons of war is the most definite sort of favoritism, the rankest unneutrality.

"To my mind it is unthinkable that we can escape involvement in the European war and at the same time advocate intervention. It is real intervention to threaten before or during a war to sell death dealing instruments to one of the belligerents.

"I repeat, nothing will keep us out of war except an official policy of genuine neutrality. An embargo on ammunitions of war is but one element in the policy of neutrality. To my mind it is the most important."

Embargo Items Listed.

The President's proclamation invoking the neutrality act, as required by the law, places an embargo on the following:

1. Guns and ammunition of all kinds in excess of .22 caliber, including grenades, bombs, torpedoes, mines, depth charges, tanks, armored vehicles, and armored trains.

2. Vessels of war of all kinds and aircraft, assembled or unassembled, heavier or lighter than air, propellors, engines, and other parts; also gun mounts, bomb racks, torpedo carriers, and release mechanisms.

3. Livens gas projectors, flame throwers, and all military gases and explosives of all kinds.

Other Provisions Given.

Besides the embargo, the act contains the following principal provisions:

1. Prohibits the sale or purchase in the United States of the bonds or other obligations of any belligerent or agency thereof and the solicitation of contributions for any belligerent [except for medical aid or for food and clothing to relieve human suffering].

2. Prohibits American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships, except that Americans returning to the United States may use belligerent ships within ninety days of the proclamation of the act.

3. Forbids American ships to transport arms, ammunition, and implements of war to any belligerent state or to a neutral for transshipment thereto.

4. Prohibits the arming of any American merchant ship engaged in commerce with a belligerent state, except with such small arms as the President may prescribe.

The President's proclamation of the neutrality of the United States was almost a verbatim copy of the proclamation issued by President Woodrow Wilson on Aug. 4, 1914. Both were based upon the general principles of international law and upon the neutrality act of March 4, 1909, President Roosevelt's however had the additional authorization of the act of June 15, 1917.

One notable respect in which the proclamation differed from Wilson's was Mr. Roosevelt's specific reservation that the laws and treaties of the United States do not interfere with "the free expression of opinion and sympathy" of the American people. In his radio address Sunday night, Mr. Roosevelt said he could not ask the American people to be "neutral in thought."

Bars Foreign Enlisting.

The President's proclamation of United States neutrality forbids the acceptance or exercising of a commission to serve any belligerent nation by land or by sea; enlisting in the service of a belligerent; the hiring or retaining of another person to serve any belligerent nation; the fitting out and arming of any ship to be employed in the service of any belligerent in committing hostilities against the commerce of another; the fitting out of any military or naval expedition within the jurisdiction of the United States for any belligerent; the dispatching of any vessel to carry supplies, arms, or men to any warship; the dispatching from the United States of any vessel built for warlike purposes for delivery to a belligerent or with intent to commit hostilities upon the commerce of a belligerent.

The proclamation also forbids the use of American territorial waters as a station or place of resort by belligerent warships.

Canal Zone Regulations.

The President's proclamation of neutrality in the Panama Canal Zone prescribes:

Belligerent warships cannot remain in the Canal Zone more than twenty-four hours; not more than six warships of a belligerent and its allies can be in the canal at one time; a belligerent warship must not leave port within twenty-four hours after the departure of an opposing ship; it shall not embark or disembark troops or war equipment; belligerent aircraft may not fly over the Canal Zone.

Bomber Delivery Halted.

Great Falls, Mont., Sept. 5 (AP).—Provisions of the neutrality act ordered into effect today tied up here a Lockheed built Hudson 14 bomber en route from Burbank, Cal., to Lethbridge, Alta., for delivery to British royal air force officers. A minor mishap that necessitated repairs at Salt Lake City delayed arrival of the ship here for customs clearance until late this afternoon.

WARNERS OFFER TO PROVE BUND IS NAZI AGENCY

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., today accepted the responsibility of proving to a federal court jury that the German-American bund is an active propaganda agency of the German government, directed from Berlin and seeking to destroy the present form of American government.

The statements were made in an answer to the 5 million dollar libel suit filed by the bund and its leader, Fritz Kuhn, based on the motion picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

The answer stated that an investigation made by the corporation, independent of any government agency, established that the bund is disloyal to the United States and that its members consider themselves citizens of Germany.

PRESIDENT PUTS OFFICIAL TITLE ON NEWEST WAR

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—The neutrality proclamation issued by the President at Washington today gave a name to the war in Europe. It was described as "the war between Germany and France; Poland; and the United Kingdom, India, Australia and New Zealand."

AMERICAN SHIPS TO SAIL WITHOUT ARMED CONVOYS

Ordered to Use Lights, Not to Zig Zag.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—President Roosevelt today decided against the sending of American war ships as convoys for American vessels sailing through Europe danger zones.

American ships will be advised to have large American flags painted on their sides, the President said, and to follow the regular ocean lanes. They will be advised to proceed without zigzagging or with light concealed. On the contrary, bright lights will play upon the painted flags.

If warships were provided as convoys, Mr. Roosevelt said, there might be an excuse provided for torpedo attacks on the ground that the ships were mistaken for enemy vessels. Traveling alone, brightly lit and well marked with the American flag, there could be no mistaking the ships as belligerent vessels, he declared, and no alibi for an attack.

American Vessels Instructed.

The United States maritime commission followed up the President's decision by transmitting messages to the masters of all American-flag vessels in which there precautions were suggested.

Americans still have 90 days under the neutrality law to sail on vessels of belligerent nations if they so choose. After that period, a penalty is provided for taking passage on such ships.

Americans will be warned, however, Mr. Roosevelt added, that they would thus be taking greater risks than by traveling on American or neutral ships.

Athenia Sinking Discussed.

The President indirectly condemned the sinking of the British liner Athenia with many Americans abroad by stating that the Americans had the right, under international law subsubscribed to by Germany, to expect rescue before the ship was torpedoed. International law provides that merchant ships should first be stopped, then permitted to remove passengers and crew before the attack, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt said, however, that this government has not yet received an official report from the embassies in Great Britain or Ireland that the Athenia was torpedoed by a submarine instead of striking a floating mine as contended by Germany. Statements by passengers indicated the former, he remarked.

NAVY PERSONNEL TO BE EXPANDED, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt disclosed today that gaps in the national defense are soon to be filled by increasing personnel of the navy, now at only 85 per cent of peace time strength, and augmenting the defensive garrison at the Panama canal. A flotilla of world war destroyers will be reconditioned and recommissioned to take up the task of patroling American territorial waters, presumably to see that they do not become the scene of violations of neutral rights by belligerent warships.

Contractors Told to Speed Up.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 5 [Special].—Civilian contractors who have orders for repair and reconditioning work at the Philadelphia navy yard were reported to have been summoned to the yard today and told that they must complete their contracts in "half or less" of the contract time. Unofficial estimates indicated twenty-five or thirty inactive destroyers berthed here could be renovated almost overnight. Reconditioning of as many more would require from two weeks to three months, it is understood.

TURKEY READY TO BEGIN WAR IF ITALIANS DO

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 5 (AP).—Authoritative circles said today that Turkey, which is allied with Great Britain and France, would keep a close watch on Italy.

It was emphasized that Turkey would move immediately should Italy show signs of joining Germany in the war. Parliament has been called for Sept. 11, the normal date.

The Turkish-German trade agreement, which expired Aug. 31, will be cast aside, it was said, because Germany failed to deliver military supplies as payment for Turkish goods.

Science commends this simple, economical way to feel better, and gives three reasons why it works:

You take it when your stomach is empty. Preventing hunger pangs, it helps you get more restful sleep.

It reduces the tax on your energy store that even sleeping takes. (Your body's need of fuel each sleeping hour is actually 40% of the average for all your waking, working hours! That's because your heart keeps pumping, breathing continues, "relaxed" muscles are always under tension.)

And, third, it gives your body, in easily digestible form, *a greater variety of nutritional essentials than any other food can provide!

Fresh milk is outstanding as a source of calcium and vitamins A and G ... three of the four food requisites needed in abundance for retaining what scientists call "the characteristics of youth."

So try the Vitality Boost. Start right away drinking a big glass of pure, fresh milk every night before you retire. Do it each night for a month. See if it doesn't make you feel a lot better.

And you'll get most enjoyment out of the Vitality Boost if you take it with Bowman Milk. Produced with extra care, Bowman's is the Milk of Superior Flavor.

NAZI AIR FORCE IS MATCHED BY 3 WAR OPPONENTS

Germany Short on Pilots; Training Rushed.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Germany's vaunted air power—considered to be the strongest weapon of the Nazi forces—is just about matched, numerically and in quality, by the combined air units of the British, French, and Polish armies. This is indicated in semi-official reports made public by the belligerent powers just before the outbreak of the war.

According to military observers in Germany, the Nazis have approximately 4,000 first class pursuit-type airplanes, at least 3,000 bi-motored bombers, and 1,000 reconnaissance bombers and ground strafing machines. These 8,000 military machines are augmented by 3,000 commercial, training, and private touring planes.

The French have approximately 1,000 modern highperformance military machines. Roughly half this number are bombers. The others are pursuit planes—about 400—and observation ships. The British have 2,000 late type machines, of which nearly 1,000 are single or bi-motored bombers.

Fighters Afford Defense.

The rest of the English air force is composed of single-seater fighters—the chief defense for English cities and industrial centers—troop carriers, reconnaissance machines for patroling British coasts and the North sea, and other fleet air force units.

Both the French and the English also have large numbers of older planes now considered to be obsolete. While not the equal in speed, range, or carrying capacity of the new planes, these older ships unquestionably will be used in the war.

The French have 3,000 machines in this category and the British have 2,000. These, with the combined 3,000 first line machines of France and England, provide a force of 8,000 fighting planes. In addition, the English and the French have approximately as many training and commercial planes as Germany.

Pilots are even more essential than planes in an air force. Germany's pilot personnel is the weakest point in her air power, according to neutral observers who were in Berlin until the last few days.

13,000 Nazis in Training.

Last month it was estimated that Germany had fewer than 6,000 fully trained military flyers. Many of these are former world war pilots. The others were trained during the last three years. At least 13,000 other German youths are in various stages of training for air service. These are being rushed through their flying courses in the hope they can be placed in service squadrons in the next few months.

Against Germany's 6,000 pilots, England can muster 4,000 experienced airmen and France approximately 5,000.

Both the French and English also are training and recruiting large numbers of young flyers. The French have 3,000 men in training and the English have recruited 4,500.

Top Speed Is 300 M. P. H.

The speed of the newest bombers on all sides is about 300 miles an hour. Few of these newest machines are in service, even in Germany, although German bombers hold world records for carrying one and two ton bomb loads at speeds in excess of 300 miles an hour.

Most of the German bombardment planes have top speeds of 250 or 270 miles an hour. These can be equaled by both the British and French and can be surpassed by a few Polish squadrons. The German bombers have relatively short ranges—1,600 or 2,200 miles with bomb loads of practical size.

The Germans have four bombers in this class—the Heinkel 111K, the Junkers 86, the newer Junkers 88, and the Dornier 17. They have 1,200 horse power motors and reach top speeds of 285, 280, and 265 miles an hour, respectively.

British Have 2 New Bombers.

The English have two new bombers—the Bristol Beaufort and the Blenheim—that reach a speed 320 and 280 miles an hour, respectively. Each of these machines can carry a ton of bombs more than 2,000 miles.

The French have two 300 mile an hour bombers—the Amiot 270 and the Loire et Oliver 45.

The Nazis probably are ahead in the pursuit plane class. Two ships, the Heinkel 112U and the Messerschmidt 109, are in the 380 mile an hour class with 1,200 horse power Junkers or Daimler-Benz motors. The English have a 370 mile an hour fighter in the Spitfire and a 340 mile an hour fighter in the Hurricane.

French Weak in Pursuit Planes.

The French are weak in pursuit planes, having only the Morane-Saulnier 406, the Curtiss Hawk, and the Dewoitine fighters. All are in the 315 mile an hour class. The French expect to replace the 900 horse power liquid cooled motors in the 406 and the Dewoitine with more powerful Rolls-Royce motors and get more speed.

Little is known about Poland's equipment. The Poles have many new squadrons of Buffalo bombers, bi-motored machines in the 280 mile an hour class. The Polish fighters are P. L. Z.-43 machines—gull-winged monoplanes capable of 280 miles an hour.

The Question.

What do you think of the United States neutrality law?

Where Answered.

In Michigan avenue.

The Answers.

James J. Moore, 5937 North Paulina street, chemical salesman—I'm against the shipment of any war supplies to belligerent nations. The safest thing for us is to stay out of anything that might involve us in a war. If we shipped at all we would show ourselves in favor of one side or the other. I don't think we could sell to both sides equally.

Roy Glomski, 4838 Henderson street, freight trafic agent—I'm in favor of the present law. I say we should keep our two cents worth here. If you want to see the results of war, go out to Edward Hines hospital. I had a brother-in-law who just died as a result of the last war, and I believe we should stay neutral now. I think we should sell no war supplies to either side.

Charles E. Compton, 5490 South Shore drive, advertising salesman—In my opinion the law is a sincere attempt to keep the United States out of war. But we may find it difficult in practice because of our economic entanglement with other nations. I believe we should remain neutral, but supply goods necessary for existence, excepting war materials, to France and England.

Edward Miller, Kalamazoo, Mich., contractor—I'm in favor of repealing the embargo on munitions and arms and selling to whomever can come after them, which probably would be only France and England. I'm opposed to the Nazi system, and anything we can do against it we should do. In other words, I'm not neutral in conscience, taking my hint from the President.

Elliot Larin, Kalamazoo, Mich., salesman—I feel that the United States should lift the arms embargo. Then if foreign countries want ammunition or other war materials let them come here and get them. But I believe we should try to stay neutral and not ship any supplies in our own boats. Of course, if the merchant marine wants to carry other supplies to warring nations, let it.

HELD ON GIRLS' CHARGES.

George H. Fischer, 56 years old, who gave his address as a west side hotel, was held to the grand jury in $11,000 bond by Judge Gibson E. Gorman yesterday on charges of statutory rape and committing a crime against children. Mothers of three young girls signed the complaints.

ROSCOE TURNER WINS THOMPSON TROPHY 3D TIME

Flies 282 Miles an Hour; Levier 2d, Ortman 3d.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 5 [Special].—For the second year in succession, Col. Roscoe Turner of Chicago today won the Thompson trophy race by speeding at 282 miles an hour for 300 miles around a 10 mile course. The victory, Turner's third in seven starts in this premier speed race of American aviation, gave him $16,000 in prize money.

Roscoe Turner.

His speed was just under his own record of 283 miles an hour, set last year. Northwest winds of 20 to 25 miles an hour, with strong gusts close to the ground, probably cost Turner a new record, for they slowed down his chunky monoplane as it whipped along just above the tree tops.

Levier Second at 272.538.

Second place went to Tony Levier of Montebello, Cal., who flew a plane with about one-third of the 1,400 horse power developed by Turner's motor. Levier, however, averaged 272.538 miles an hour in his little racer, which he calls the Firecracker. His prize money was $8,000.

Earl Ortman of Montreal and New York was third. Ortman, a co-pilot on Canadian Colonial Airways, was racing for a nest egg with which to marry Winifred Thorpe, United Air Lines stewardess. He took $4,000 for his flying, averaging 264 miles an hour in his Marcoux-Bromberg racing ship with its Twin-Wasp Jr. motor.

Fourth and fifth places went respectively to Steve Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., and to Lieut. Joe Mackey of Randolph field. Wittman was flying his homebuilt special racer with a D-12 motor. Mackey flew Turner's second entry—A Wedell-Turner special with a Hornet motor. Wittman earned $1,500 and Mackey $1,000.

Turner Slow on Getaway.

Turner, carrying nearly 300 gallons of gasoline in his racer, was slow in getting off today. He was in fourth place at the end of the first lap.

At the end of the race Turner hinted he was through with high speed racing.

"I've won the Thompson three times and I can't keep on stretching my luck," Turner said "This is my last race. I'll be 44 the 29th of this month. This is a young man's game. I'm going to start a flying school in Indianapolis."

Art Chester, who won the Grieve trophy race on Sunday, was forced out by motor trouble today on the seventeenth lap.

THE PEOPLE WHO FIGHT THE WARS.

The young English flyers who went through the anti-aircraft barrage to attack the Kiel canal and the German warships at Wilhelmshaven could not have cared who possessed Danzig or who had Togoland, Tanganyika or the Cameroons. Some of them have died heroic deaths in the early years of their manhood. They were fighting for England. Their homes are in mourning, bravely, no doubt, but still in deep mourning. Many more young Britishers will go the same way before this terrible warfare is brought to an end.

Hundreds of thousands of young Frenchmen are marching and flying to similar fate fighting for France but for immediate reasons remote from their individual and national lives. It will indeed soon become a struggle for existence. The warring peoples have good reason to fear the consequences of defeat. They know from experience at Brest Litovsk as well as Versailles what the leaders will do in the passions of victory when all the hatreds born of misery and suffering descend upon a conquered people.

These are savage wars which prevent the making of a generous or a fair peace. Governments seem to have abandoned thought of the fact that peoples must live side by side in Europe and that they cannot do so if the bitterness of one war is so carried into the future that it must produce another. Yet the peoples might live in peace if their rulers would serve them and not sacrifice them.

Governments in their policies of national aggrandizement and acquisition seldom, if ever, promote or protect the real interests of the people they govern. Men who think that national welfare is to be found in schemes of conquest cannot pretend that their peoples naturally or instinctively care anything about this. The people can be inflamed, as news from the Hitler regime in Germany has abundantly shown. They can be harangued about their rights and glories and destiny and fame, and other insanities, but every one must know that what they would prefer to do would be to forget conquering eagles and marching legions and live quietly at home with such good fortune as might come their way in their normal lives.

What they want is work, pleasant recreations, family life, neighborly association, and escape from preventable injuries. Reports from Paris, Berlin, and London, Sunday, when war was extending from Poland to Great Britain, France and Germany, said that the day was lovely and that the people had not yet seemed to realize that it was probably one of the last days for a long time in which they could enjoy themselves in their pleasant holiday leisure, out in the bright sunshine, the parks, and their friendly mingling on the boulevards.

That is the life they wanted and they should have been protected in their possession of it. They were not carried away by hatred of other peoples. It would not give them any satisfaction to know that bombs were dropping on cities beyond their frontiers or that young men were facing death. They will fight the war because now they must. Soon, in a very real sense, they will be fighting for their countries. Not only the dead will be brought back but the long stream of wounded will fill the hospitals, to be nursed slowly back to some semblance of their former selves or live out whatever span of life they have, hideously maimed and never free from bitter memories of what they had undergone.

It may be many months and it may be even many years before life will seem worth while to such as are living in the greater part of Europe. If people themselves desired these wars, as old predatory and conquering tribes are supposed to, they might find compensation for their sacrifices. The peoples of Europe did not want war. Too many of them had too lasting a memory of one just like this. They feared and dreaded above all things that it should return as it now has.

What, then, can be said of the government in Europe which has refused to prevent the recurrence of a thing universally detested? Why does a government think it important to cultivate a viciousness for which the peoples have no sympathy and proclaim as all important to national existence causes of conflict which the average men and women know are entirely worthless? Why are subject peoples thought to be important to the average man and woman whose greatest welfare is found in living quietly at home?

The great curse of Europe has been that its rulers have set their greatest ambitions upon objects which are of no consequence to the people. There are a number of small European nations now in an uneasy neutrality. Some of them have not fought a war in a hundred years. Others have fought only such wars as were forced upon them and were not of their own seeking. These are small nations whose rulers would not waste one regiment of men to gain dominion in any other part of the world. They are prosperous, they have been happy, and they have been protected by the unambitious and unaggressive character of their governments. They do not desire to rule captive peoples, they haven't envied their neighbors' possessions, and they haven't had statesmen who thought they ought to be fighting abroad in order to be happy at home.

Although these small peaceable nations are at the very edge or even surrounded by the battlefields of their less fortunate European neighbors, they are determined to remain out of the whirlwind of insane destruction. They are really democratic nations but they are too wise to believe that they would save democracy by ruining themselves. It may fairly be said that some of the warring governments did their best to prevent what has befallen their people. Of the immediate causes that can be regarded as a true statement. But the immediate causes were preceded by primary causes of long duration. Over a long period war guilt becomes less specific and more general. That is why the agitators can hurl so much denunciation at each other. The system of government which produces this is demented. We should see that it does not get loose in the United States. When such symptoms begin to appear the American people should make it plain that they are still rulers of themselves.

THE RELIEF RESIDENCE LAW.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission has taken the only possible course in suggesting to local relief authorities that they ignore Attorney General Cassidy's opinion on the three year residence requirement for relief.

Just what impelled the attorney general to think himself capable of substituting his judgment for that of the legislature and his authority for that of the relief administration remains a mystery. His opinion, however, sought to do just that. It in effect nullified the act as the legislature passed it. Fortunately what the attorney general says has no legal effect. He is not a court empowered to interpret statutes, merely a lawyer on the public pay roll whose opinions are, at most, advisory. In the present instance it is to be expected that local authorities will follow the advice of the relief commission and ignore his.

The legislative act that barred persons of less than three years' residence from relief was based on sound judgment. It was designed to meet, fairly, a situation that has been placing a most unfair burden both on taxpayers and on Illinois citizens entitled to relief.

California, Colorado, and other states were quite properly set back on their heels when they sought, by force, to prevent citizens of other states from seeking work within their borders. Citizens of every state are citizens of the United States, and such barriers within its borders are intolerable as well as unconstitutional.

The Illinois legislature, in dealing with the relief problem, did not make this mistake. Any person has the right to come to Illinois to seek a living. What the legislature has said, and said properly, is that citizens of other states have not the right to come here to be supported at the expense of Illinois taxpayers and Illinois citizens entitled to relief. The problem with which the state was faced was that of citizens of states with low relief standards coming to Illinois, not to seek private employment but to go on Illinois relief.

The state is under no obligation to give them relief. The legislature has said that they shall not have it. They are welcome to stay here, but they must support themselves. Relief authorities are empowered to pay their transportation back to the communities from which they came. This is not forcible deportation. Persons denied relief are under no obligation to accept it. It is merely a proper precaution to protect this state against assuming burdens that should be carried by other states, and Mr. Cassidy's ill judged interference should not prevent relief authorities enforcing a necessary and equitable statute.

CHILDREN AND MOTORISTS.

Now that the schools have reopened, the Chicago Motor club has sent out a reminder to motorists to "drive as though your own child were ahead." The schools have been successful in teaching the children how to cross the streets safely, with the result that accidents to children have been greatly reduced in number. If further progress is to be made, it seems probable that it will come as a consequence of increased caution on the part of drivers.

The boy on a bicycle should be given a wide berth. The only thing that can be predicted about him is that he is likely to do the unexpected. Wherever children are at play there is danger that one of them will run into the street in pursuit of a ball or some other plaything. A child can slip between parked cars without being seen from an oncoming automobile and unless the car is being driven with caution the youngster is likely to be crushed. Particularly in the vicinity of schools and playgrounds the motorist with a conscience will drive slowly and watchfully.

"Drive as though your own child were ahead" is a good slogan. A great many motorists seem to have the idea that the few minutes that might be lost in cautious driving cannot be spared. It may be well to remember that there are 1,440 minutes in a day and that the loss of five or ten of them is not a very serious matter. On the other hand the maiming of a child may cause an irreparable injury for which the motorist can never forgive himself even when the law absolves him of responsibility.

Editorial of the Day

NOT CALLED IN.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

When the economic committee under direction of U. S. Senator O'Mahoney was empowered to investigate price structures and the effect of both monopolies and competition on business it was taken for granted that its major objective was to prove that the absence of competition was making artificially high prices possible and consequently impeding business recovery.

But curiously the monopoly committee has failed to demonstrate that monopoly dominates American business practice. Not only have prices as a whole been weak during the period of the committee's investigation, but in two major industries—steel and oil—in which effective competition is supposed to be absent, a condition very close to unrestrained price wars obtains.

Strange to say, the committee has not called in representatives of steel and oil.

To those who believe that competition is the real life of trade and makes for a healthy economic condition the price trend over the last year has been reassuring.

It would seem that the nation has learned in recent years that the principle of demand and supply still works effectively to protect us from huge industrial combines designed to keep prices up.

An Expedition to Montana Street.

Since your first mention of the Great Stone Urns [Aug. 21], I've been watching and counting to see how many of them would be located. As yet I have not seen any mention of one I remember from early childhood. More than fifty-four years ago my family moved to Chicago, and near our home was one of the urns, in the front yard of the Dupee home on Montana street, about a half block west of Sheffield avenue. I have not visited the old neighborhood since 1926 and do not know if the urn still remains there; but maybe some of our good "scouts" of the Line will find out.

The white man is civilized.
He is a superior being.
He invented the gun and the cannon, so that he might be glorious in war and kill many enemies.

The number he kills in battle are few.
The white man kills millions.

The savage hunts.
His weapons are primitive.

The white man hunts.
He kills to kill.
He killed the mighty buffalo.
He left its body to rot.
He killed the passenger pigeon. We see it no more.
He fishes until the streams are empty.
He hunts until the plains are void of life.
The mountains conceal not the wolf or the bear.
Ah! The mighty hunter.
Mighty, mighty is he!

Forests cover the land. The white man sees them.
Why have beauty when you may have gold?
Great giants, hundreds of years old, topple.
Ugly stumps are the headstones of these mighty giants.
No longer is the forest the home of the deer and the antelope.
The white man has gold, gold in his coffers.
Mighty, mighty is he!

The white man cries, "Peace!"
But why have peace when he can have gold in his coffers?
Why not let the strong young men die to bring him gold?
Why not let women and children weep?
The white man must have gold.
Ah! Mighty, mighty is the white man!

Del M'Ree.

While I was listening to a broadcast of a night baseball game my wife interrupted with this:

"What becomes of those poor White Sox players who are left on the bases? Do they have to stay there until the next game?"

Harassed.

THE MENOPAUSE DEMANDS HORMONES.

MUCH has been said relative to our dependence upon the endocrine system for well being. We think of a tiny watch as a delicate bit of machinery, but its most minute part would resemble a skyscraper when compared with some of the hormone-producing cells. Like the watch, the whole design is made up of independent fractions—all working together. For example, the activity of the pituitary influences the pancreas, the adrenals, the parathyroids, the thyroid, and the ovaries. In turn, the behavior of the last mentioned structures affect in some measure the pituitary and the thyroid as well as other pelvic organs. This division of labor is one of the marvels of nature and it is supposed that every cell in each of these highly specialized factories will do its job and do it properly.

Whenever we are confronted with laziness on the part of the ovaries we wonder if anything could have gone wrong with their secreting functions, and there are thousands of instances on record in which providing estrin [manufactured by the ovaries] has relieved symptoms with dramatic power. Preparations of these so-called sex hormones are available, both for hypodermic use and ingestion by mouth.

What are the indications? With a deficient glandular output women are likely to suffer periodical headaches, flushing of the entire body, heat flashes, mental depression, and sometimes significant alterations in disposition. Years ago those who exhibited these characteristics were regarded as neurotic females, and scolding and bullying all too often made a bad matter worse. We have learned now that it is not temperament nor a type of conduct that is under the control of the victim. It is a deficiency signal, one in which nature—before quitting—kicks up an awful fuss. The interval is called the change of life and may last for two or three years. Now and then skin lesions will appear and severe itching may drive the patient almost to despair.

The case is reported of a woman of 49 with a history of dizziness, headaches, excessive fatigue, and sleeplessness. Despite these ailments she gained in weight. Blood pressure was far too high for comfort. Symptomatic treatment failed. A program of rest and diet was useless. Three thousand units of estrin were then given daily for nearly two months, whereupon excess fat disappeared, headaches and giddiness vanished, and the systolic reading fell from 170 to 140.

Another patient, 48 years old, experienced hot flashes, restlessness, and loss of memory. Because of mild delusions the family physician discussed the possibility of placing her in a sanitarium for the mentally ill. Quieting drugs afforded some aid but no substantial help was obtained until sizable doses of estrin were injected daily. Within ten days, mouth administration was substituted and her renewed state of vigor and mental alertness represented a veritable rebirth.

The drug is not a cure-all for every symptom that may occur about middle life. But it has been used long enough and with such good results that there is no gainsaying its utility in relieving change of life disturbances. It may be likened to furnishing oxygen to one who is short of breath. There is no compound that can serve as a substitute. The patient demands a supply from living glands and nothing else will suffice.

We must not forget that younger women who, while not yet in the menopause, display some evidences of deranged pelvic physiology, may be greatly benefited. Occasionally thyroid extract is employed at the same time, and many physicians regard this double, balanced form of therapy as preferable to the use of either substance alone.

CAUSE MAY BE CIGARETS.

Mrs. H. D. writes: I am about ten pounds underweight, small boned, and very active. 1. Would a dry cough occasionally, constant clearing of the throat, and pain across the shoulder blades be an indication of tuberculosis in my case? 2. Could too much smoking be responsible?

REPLY.

1. Tuberculosis is possible, but diseased tonsils and infected sinuses are causative more frequently. Shoulder pain often may be traced to a chronic infection, particularly in the mouth.

2. For cough and clearing of the throat, yes.

LIME ON THE SPINE.

T. T. writes: 1. What is meant by lime deposits on the spine? 2. What are the symptoms? 3. How does the condition affect the general health? 4. What is the cure?

REPLY.

1. The effects of arthritis.
2. Stiffness and pain.
3. Arthritis is a general disease and may involve one or several joints. In addition, the circulation is frequently affected.
4. Treatment consists in building the reserve to a high level. Leaflets giving a number of suggestions will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WITHHOLD BABY'S FOOD.

M. T. writes: When a child 16 months old suffers an attack of diarrhea is it all right to give him cold milk? Banana?

REPLY.

Many physicians advise an initial dose of castor oil. No food is given for twenty-four hours, although water, slightly salted, may be supplied freely. As symptoms subside, depending upon the age of the child, boiled milk, scraped apple pulp, or mashed banana may be fed. Your physician should be in charge.

NO GRAPEFRUIT JUICE.

Mrs. J. W. writes: Should a person with pus in the urine drink juices such as tomato, grapefruit, pineapple, and orange?

REPLY.

No. Practically all of the fruit juices are converted into alkalis. When mandelic acid is given in an effort to get rid of bacteria, no fruit juices are permitted. Microbes flourish best in a medium that is slightly alkaline.

THERE ARE FOUR GROUPS.

A. B. writes: How many types of blood are there? Can two brothers have the same type?

REPLY.

There are four blood groups in the human species and these appear in families according to well known laws of heredity. The fact that brothers may have the same type accounts for the frequency of transfusions being furnished by members of the same family.

NEIGHBORHOOD PAPERS.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—In the notice of the demise of a local daily an account was given of the many daily papers Chicago has had. Apparently the city at one time has had as many as ten English language dailies. It would appear that Chicago now has fewer papers than ever.

However, if weekly sheets are considered, Chicago has quite definitly more papers. There are probably twenty-five neighborhood full size weeklies in Chicago. As the dailies fall away the weeklies and semi-weeklies grow.

VETERAN WANTS HIS MONEY.

Soldiers' Home, Dayton, O., Sept. 2.—I am writing to ask if you could see if I can get justice on this complaint of mine on which I never got any satisfaction yet. On May 22, 1930, I started working at Hines hospital and worked two years; then I quit. They put us automatically in civil service in 1932; I put in my 3 or 3½ per cent out of my pay for retirement. I got all but $20 or $30, which is still due me. They told me I won't get it. That is why I am asking you what to do. They told me that money would go for pension to those who retire. I cannot help that, sir; no one gives me anything for nothing. It's my money and I would like to have it.

Let the United States pay them their retirement pensions, not me. I am only fighting for my rights and what belongs to me.

I also would like for you to help me get some clothes: A suit of clothes, overcoat, size 40 or 38; short coat, size 38; shoes, size 9-d; shirt, size 15½. Right now I am at Soldiers' home—get $10 a month compensation and I cannot afford to buy any. Please let me know what will be done. I am an ex-service man from G company, 1st division. At least I do hope to get that money they are holding out on me in civil service. This is all I can say now. Thank you kindly.

H. J.

WOULD STAY OUT.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—However much we may deplore and condemn Hitler's tactics of destroying small countries instead of confining himself to just claims, there is no reason why we should disregard Washington's advice and plunge our land into war. Disregarding that advice in 1917 created a huge national debt and economic misery for millions. Another entrance would link America forever to all the quarrels of age-old European hatreds. Why not be neutral like Switzerland?

M. T. H.

WOULD GO IN.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—It is beyond me why public sentiment seems to be so much in favor of our keeping out of the European situation. If a lunatic suddenly ran amuck in an asylum would the attendants stand idly by and calmly watch the destruction? Absolutely not! That's the situation in Europe today, and I think it's our duty to help France and Great Britain all we can in order to bring the madman of Germany to his senses, if that is remotely possible.

B. P. S.

WHY NOT IN CHICAGO?

Chicago, Sept. 1.—I noticed in your "Inquiring Reporter" column that a majority of people favor milk in paper bottles. Why can't we get it in Chicago? I certainly prefer it, as more convenient and much less trouble. I can walk a block to Oak Park and get it, and still can't buy paper bottle milk in the store around the corner from my building. Seems kind of silly to me.

AGNES.

ANOTHER BOOK TO READ.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Doubtless many have already read "Peary" by Green, "Northwest Passage," and "Drums Along the Mohawk." If you are waiting your turn for the American history course at the reader's bureau, Chicago Public library [4th floor] get "Rabble in Arms" by Kenneth Roberts. It is the story of the Burgoyne invasion in the American war of the revolution. You will see Arnold and Schuyler and the men of Maine and Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts. You will see the sun shining on Champlain and Lake George and above Ticonderoga. You will watch that desperate struggle by a few ragged, hungry Americans so that you and I today are able to take this book out of an American free library and look across to the farthest horizon and say, "This is my country."

"Rabble in Arms" makes it horribly clear that the struggle was more difficult than any nightmare. With sweat and blood they roared and struggled on up rivers, through lakes, forests and marshes—evacuating, fighting, and evacuating. Arguing with incompetent leaders. Then evacuating again, and again taking their stand. Stragglers were caught by Indians with the English and scalped. The men in front pushed on and on. Never giving up. On and on.

I am just finishing this true-to-history story of our early days and the close, close call. It has stirred me strangely. It will stir you, too.

A COURTEOUS CHAUFFEUR.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—When you start passing out awards for safety week find out the name of the colored chauffeur who drives a Cadillac, license No. 27602, and give him one.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when trafic was thick on Sheridan road near Barry, he not only stopped his car to let an old lady pass but when she had crossed half way and couldn't make the other half he got out of the car and helped her across the street.

I'd like to think of some one doing my mother a favor like that. I'll bet his boss is proud of him.

REPAYMENT OF LOAN.

Chicago, Aug. 30 [Legal Friend of the People].—My mother borrowed $100 from a friend in 1929. Since then my sister passed away. I am the only daughter left and married some time ago, which left my mother, a widow, alone. She couldn't pay off this debt so she gave us her cottage to pay off, which is in her name. We are paying all her past due debts, but this one party we cannot pay. She is not working, but takes care of my children while I do part time work.

1. Can the party who loaned her the money sue her, which he claims he will do?

2. How can he collect when she is not working and we are paying all her other bills made before our marriage? 3. Can my husband and I be involved in this?

4. Can he collect after ten years have passed and without any signature?

J. B.

1. Of course he can sue.

2. If the cottage belongs to her, and the value exceeds the $1,000 homestead interest, then the creditor could reach it.

3. Neither of you would be personally liable, but presumably the cottage could be reached.

4. The limitation period on oral agreements is five years and on written contracts ten years from the maturity date. A new promise or part payment would extend the period.

NAZI WHITE BOOK PUTS WAR BLAME ON GREAT BRITAIN

Hitler's Case Presented in 12 Parts.

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—The German government tonight issued a white book describing recent phases of Polish-German relations and concluding that England is responsible for the war.

It charged that England sabotaged Premier Mussolini's efforts to preserve peace. Documents were quoted to establish a German contention that neither Poland nor England was in a mood for compromises during the last critical moments.

Argument in 12 Parts.

The white book argument was divided into twelve divisions on a chronological basis:

1. Beginning in August, the reich took note of an exchange of communications between the Free City of Danzig and Poland which culminated in the Polish ultimatum concerning the rights of Polish customs inspectors.

Germany warned Poland that any more ultimata to Danzig would strain relations between Germany and Poland. Poland allegedly replied that any German interference in events at Danzig would be regarded as an aggression against Poland.

2. On Aug. 22 Neville Chamberlain [premier of England] "under the influence of reports of the impending conclusion of the nonaggression pact between Germany and Russia," in a personal letter to Hitler said England was prepared to fulfill her obligations toward Poland but pleaded for an atmosphere in which Polish-German relations might be settled by discussion.

The next day Hitler [chancellor of Germany] answered, calling attention "to the Polish terror over German nationals." Hitler recalled his offer of settlement last March, to which he said England responded with false reports of German mobilization against Poland.

New Move for Peace.

3. Although Chamberlain's letter and subsequent utterances by British statesmen indicated that England had no sympathy for the German point of view, Hitler on Aug. 25 called the British ambassador to make a new effort to come to an understanding with England. He proposed a far reaching agreement with England after settlement of the corridor and Danzig problems.

4. While Britain studied Hitler's proposals the Fuehrer exchanged letters with Premier Daladier [of France], setting forth the German demands on Poland for [Danzig and the Polish corridor]. He also renewed assurances to France that Germany's west boundaries are accepted by Germany as final.

5. On the night of Aug. 28, Britain expressed readiness to talk about the reorganization of German-English relations. Britain added it was assured by Poland that the Polish government was ready to conduct direct negotiations with Germany.

Despite the conduct of Poland, Hitler on Aug. 29 declared Germany's readiness to receive a Polish negotiator and said Germany expected to receive an authorized negotiator Aug. 30. He said that meanwhile the reich would work out a solution acceptable to Germany.

Poles Send No Agent.

6. No Polish negotiator arrived Aug. 30 and no communication was received from the British. Instead, Germany received reports of Polish mobilization. Not until midnight of that day did the British ambassador hand in a new memorandum containing no constructive suggestions and saying merely that Hitler's suggestions had been given Poland and that England believed Poland should not have been expected to reply by Aug. 30.

7. Although no Polish negotiator arrived in Berlin, the British government was given an outline of German suggestions for a settlement which the reich had worked out meanwhile. The reich asked again that Poland name a negotiator. On Aug. 31, the Polish ambassador told the reich's foreign minister that Poland had received from Britain the night before a report of the possibility of direct negotiation. But the Polish ambassador was unauthorized to undertake any conversations.

8. After waiting vainly for two days for a Polish negotiator, the reich on the night of Aug. 31 made public its proposals. The Warsaw radio pronounced them unacceptable.

Decision Is for Force.

9. After being forced to the conclusion that efforts to negotiate with Poland were futile, Hitler announced that in view of numerous violations it would be necessary to "use force."

10. On the night of Sept. 1, the British and French ambassadors presented similarly phrased memoranda in which it was demanded that Germany withdraw her troops from Polish territory and that in the event this was not done these states would fulfill their treaty obligations toward Poland.

The reich's foreign minister said that Germany must refuse the implications of the memorandums that Germany was aggressive toward Poland.

11. Inasmuch as these notes raised the danger of war, Mussolini made the proposal of an armistice and international conference. The proposal was answered by Germany and France in a positive manner but England rejected it. So the Duce's efforts were frustrated by England.

Two Hour Ultimatum.

12. At 9 a. m., Sept. 3, the British ambassador appeared at the foreign office and handed the office a note wherein England demanded withdrawal of German troops within a two hour time limit. In London, the British secretary of foreign affairs handed the German chargé d'affaires a note that a state of war existed between the countries from 11 a. m.

On the same day, at 11:30 a. m., the reich's foreign minister handed the British ambassador here a note rejecting the ultimatum but pointing out that the responsibility for war must rest on Britain. The French ambassador handed in a similar ultimatum, and after being informed verbally of the answer given to Britain said it was his "unpleasant duty" to say a state of war existed after 5 p. m., whereupon the reich's foreign minister replied that France must assume the responsibility inflicted on people if France attacked Germany.

CANADIANS CHEERED BY NEWS THEY CAN BUY AMERICAN WAR GOODS

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5 [Special].—Today's most important war news for Canada, it was officially agreed, was the report from Washington that Canada had been exempted from United States neutrality regulations because it has not actually declared war on Germany.

There is little doubt that the exemption was expected here and there are those who regard Canada's failure to make a formal declaration of hostilities as having been deliberately designed to that end.

Although the MacKenzie King government has appropriated $130,000,000 in the last three years to place this dominion in a state of preparedness, inability to get guns and equipment from British sources, which were busy with their own rearmament program, made it impossible to spend most of this money.

In the last few months the defense department has been buying war planes in the United States. If the Canadian defense forces, which are being rapidly recruited are to be properly equipped, the equipment must come from south of the border. Exemption of Canada from American neutrality laws will enable this to be done. It will also, if it continues and the neutrality laws remain in existence, enable Canada to serve as a backdoor through which supplies might reach England and France.

GERMANY PUTS SLOVAK TROOPS IN SECOND LINE

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, Sept. 5 (AP).—Wounded Slovak soldiers returning from the Polish front today said Slovaks were mixed with Germans as a second fighting line.

Javorina, a pocket-size area taken from Slovakia, last fall, was given up by the Poles without firing a shot, they said, but they admitted that the Poles fiercely contested Slovak-German advances elsewhere along the mountainous border.

Unofficial circles expressed belief that the Slovaks were placed between the German first and third lines to prevent desertions.

Dr. Ladislav Szatmary, Slovak minister to Poland, broadcast an appeal over the Polish radio for Slovaks to revolt against Germany. It was confirmed here that Szatmary has placed the Slovak legation in Warsaw at the service of Poland.

BRITISH PREMIER ASSURES FRANCE RIGHT WILL WIN

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain telegraphed Premier Daladier of France today that he was confident "right will prevail" in the conflict with Germany. The text of the telegram:

"At this time, when Great Britain and France are enjoying their comradeship in arms to resist aggression and defend the cause of honorable feeling among nations, I send to you, and through you to the French people, the cordial greetings of the people of this country.

"Our hopes of peace, which we sought so strenuously to preserve, have been shattered by the wanton attack on Poland. Now side by side we both take up arms with the sure knowledge that no nations have ever entered a war in a more just cause. I am confident that the sacrifices which we are prepared to make will not be in vain and that the right will prevail."

STRIKE TERROR INQUIRY BEGUN BY PROSECUTOR

A squad of state's attorney's police yesterday began an investigation of thirty-one instances of alleged violence and labor terrorism in connection with the strike against the Revere Copper and Brass company, 2200 Natchez avenue.

A list of sluggings, window smashings, and other alleged acts of intimidation was turned over to Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis Saturday by Henry Seyfarth, counsel for the company. Curtis said action by the prosecutor's office will depend on the reports of the police.

The Revere plant has been strikebound since June 22. The United Automobile Workers' Union of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, called the strike when the company refused an 8 per cent wage increase. About 550 persons are involved.

WAR PROPAGANDA ON RADIO TO BE BARRED BY FCC

Censorship Called Move to Protect Public.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—The administration is planning strict rules to govern broadcasting of European war news or commentaries in an attempt to protect American radio listeners from foreign or domestic propaganda, it was learned today.

The regulations would forbid American radio commentators from making severe attacks on any belligerent. Officials also said that the rules may require American radio stations to inform their listeners when news or commentary programs passed through foreign censorship or originated at a station operated by a foreign government.

The rules, expected to be completed this week, are being formulated by representatives of the Federal Communications commission, the White House, and the state, war and navy departments. They are intended to supplement the state department regulations on neutrality.

Emergency Powers Granted.

Ben Cohen, one of the New Deal planners, is believed to have been working with James L. Fly, new chairman of the FCC, on the rules. There also have been reports that Cohen may be named Fly's special assistant. When Fly was sworn in as chairman last week he drew attention to the war emergency powers granted to the President by the communications act.

If the United States were to become involved in war the President could suspend or amend FCC rules and regulations governing radio. He could order any station closed or its wavelength and equipment taken over by a government agency after compensation to the owners.

It is understood that several proclamations anticipating progressive stages in government control of radio have been prepared by military authorities in the event of war. Because military and naval units do not have as large a share of the radio waves as they think they may need, privately owned stations would be called upon to surrender frequencies.

Commentator Silenced.

Last Friday night Dorothy Thompson, columnist and radio commentator, was cut off the air by station KWK of St. Louis while she was discussing Adolf Hitler's address to the reichstag, but Robert Convey, president of the station, denied any censorship of news.

"It was our belief that Miss Thompson was expressing some personal opinions and it does not seem, in view of our pledge to the federal communications commission, in view of present tension in international affairs and in view of the N. A. B. code, that anything but reportorial matter would be in the public interest," Convey said.

"Acting without precedent, we did what we thought was in the public interest and we have referred the matter to the N. A. B. and the network for further consideration."

CANADIAN ARMY BARS AMERICANS FROM ENLISTING

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5 [Canadian Press].—National defense department officials, answering inquiries from citizens of the United States and other countries, said today only British subjects, either by birth or naturalization, were eligible for Canadian forces.

About 30,000 citizens of the United States enlisted in the Canadian army during the world war, many of them prior to the entry of the United States into the conflict.

Canadian authorities said that at present they were unwilling to enlist foreigners.

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.
Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor.
Polident makes breath sweeter—plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene.

CHICAGO'S FIRST WOMEN JURORS RETURN VERDICT

Women jurors returned their first verdict yesterday in the Cook county Criminal court. Nine women and three men impaneled by Judge John A. Sbarbaro determined that Carlo Falcone, who is under a murder indictment for his confessed shooting of Robert Hall, is sane.

The verdict, reached after brief deliberation, was read to the court by Arthur R. Coy, 417 South 6th avenue, Maywood. Coy was jury foreman. "None of the women wanted the job," he said.

Falcone, who lives at 1749 North avenue, shot Hall March 17 on the porch of Hall's home at 1534 East 73d place after a quarrel over the installation of a heating system. Judge Sbarbaro set his trial for Friday.

374 Ready for Duty.

A total of 374 women were present for jury service yesterday, the opening of the fall term of the Criminal, Circuit, and Superior courts. A law providing for women jurors was enacted by the last legislature. In the Superior court 147 women were among the 247 jurors accepted for duty, and in the Circuit court 116 women were among the 217 accepted. There were 111 women jurors in the Criminal court.

Miss Irene M. Schultz, 23 years old, 600 North May street, was the first woman accepted for service in the Superior and Circuit court branches. With five other women and six men she heard a personal injury case in the Circuit court of Judge Michael Feinberg.

"I'm glad to have women jurors in my courtroom," Judge Feinberg told his jury. "I think you will function conscientiously and well. Let me warn you [looking at three women jurors who said they were unmarried], "not to fall in love with the witnesses or the lawyers. And remember—your appointments with the court are to be kept promptly. Let no beauty operator make you late."

Few Ask to Be Excused.

No women asked to be excused from jury service in the Circuit court branch, and only five were excused from the Superior court panel. Of these, four said they had children to care for and one pleaded illness.

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the the Criminal court offered to excuse any woman who wished to avoid service, because there were few cases on the docket. None volunteered to leave, however, and soon most of them were playing bridge or knitting in the jurors' assembly room.

DOORMAN BEATEN BY LOOP BANDITS; ROBBED OF $2,637

Loop robbers beat William Schuessler with blackjacks and took $2,637 from him yesterday at Quincy and Wells streets. Schuessler, doorman for the Harmony cafeteria at 15 South Wabash avenue, had been sent to deposit cafeteria receipts at the City National bank.

Schuessler, 65 years old, carries receipts to the bank daily. The robbers evidently knew this and followed his movements by telephone. Shortly before he left, he was called to a phone, but the other party hung up before Schuessler reached the telephone. Just before the robbery, some one telephoned the bank to inquire if he had arrived.

CCC Enrollee Is Jailed for Stealing Army Truck

Robert E. Tinsley, 20 years old, was in the Lake county jail at Waukegan yesterday, charged with stealing an army truck from the CCC camp at Fox Lake, where he is enrolled. Lieut. Stanley Winke notified the Lake county sherif's office of the theft at 4:03 a.m. and six minutes later called back to say he had arrested Tinsley. Tinsley said he had been using the truck in an attempt to find some other CCC enrollees with whom he had been drinking beer.

Patient Released; Seized in Day as Hospital Thief

Charles Fishburne was happy yesterday when he finished five months as a patient in the McHenry county hospital at Hartland. He enjoys the outdoors. But, before the day was over, he was on the inside again—in jail at Woodstock accused of stealing $25 worth of surgeons' equipment from the hospital.

FORMER INMATE OF ST. CHARLES HELD IN ASSAULT

John W. Masters, 18 years old, who escaped from the St. Charles School for Boys in 1937 after serving three and a half years and then ran away from the army, was caught last night a short time after he had beaten the driver of an automobile who had picked him up as a hitch-hiker. His victim is Vernon Pronger, 43, of 12910 Highland avenue, Blue Island.

Pronger picked the young man up a little north of Kankakee. At 159th street and Brennan highway the hitch-hiker pulled out a hammer and beat Pronger over the head with it. Pronger shoved his attacker out of the car.

Chief John O'Brien of the Markham police and Lieut. Henry Andell of the county highway station at Homewood caught Masters. He was dressed in part of an army uniform and said he had run away from Chanute field at Rantoul.

FIVE INDICTED WITH ANNENBERG FREED ON BONDS

Five men indicted recently with Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher and New Deal critic, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government of income tax payments, surrendered yesterday at the office of United States Marshal William H. McDonald.

They are William Molasky, St. Louis, and Lester A. Kruse, accused of conspiracy to evade payment of $137,720 owed by the Concensus Publishing company; and Harry Friedman, L. Stanley Kahn, New York, and Aaron Trosch, Milwaukee, associates and employés of Annenberg.

They were released on $10,000 surety bonds. Friedman is a brother-in-law of Annenberg and Kahn is a former son-in-law. Ten indictments naming twenty defendants were returned by a grand jury investigating Annenberg enterprises.

LOUISIANA FRAUD TRIAL UNDER WAY; CONFESSION TOLD

New Orleans, Sept. 5 (AP).—Federal prosecution of Seymour Weiss, hotel magnate, and four others on mail fraud charges opened today with a government attorney's assertion that a confession of one of the defendants would be used to obtain conviction.

The trial was the first of many growing out of federal investigations which began with the Louisiana State university scandals and resignation of Richard W. Leche as governor late in June.

Rene A. Viosca, outlining the government case, said that J. Emory Adams, a defendant, had made a confession.

The government alleges Weiss, Adams, and three others divided $75,000 obtained from the State university by selling it hotel furnishings the school already owned.

Adams is a nephew of the wife of Dr. James Monroe Smith, former university president, another defendant.

Approximately 100 witnesses were called by the prosecution and the defendants, among whom former Gov. Leche was the most prominent, although he did not appear in court. He will appear for the defense.

Four Suspects in Tavern Holdup Quickly Captured

Four men accused of holding up William Lileikis in his tavern at 4609 Wentworth avenue were captured a few minutes later yesterday by Policemen John Nolan and Michael Harris. ## SHOWS POLICE HOW HE BEAT GIRL TO DEATH

Yorke Bodden led police yesterday to the place where he killed Miss Ann Riermaier and demonstrated how he killed her. Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's police said Bodden will be arraigned in Felony court today on a charge of murder.

Miss Riermaier, who was 25 years old, lived at 3911 North Marshfield avenue. Bodden, 24, a painter living at 5619 North Kenton avenue, blamed her for the collapse of his romance with her sister, Florence, 23. He has confessed that on Aug. 11 he lured the elder sister into his car and beat and choked her to death.

RUSSELL FACES COURT TODAY IN KIDNAP SLAYING

Jack Russell, alias Oliver Dressler, under indictment for the kidnap slaying of Billy Hamilton, Kansas milling salesman, will be brought before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward for a preliminary hearing today.

The court wishes to learn whether he has made provision to hire a lawyer, Martin Ward, assistant United States district attorney, said. Judge Woodward also is expected to set a date for his arraignment. Russell escaped from the Oklahoma state prison and forced Hamilton to drive him east. Hamilton was found shot to death July 14 near Ringwood. Russell said he shot Hamilton when he tried to escape.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. CHIEFTAINS MEET ROBERT A. TAFT

Ohioan Warns Against Getting Into War.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio made his bow as a presidential candidate to Illinois Republicanism yesterday at an informal reception in the Palmer House, arranged by National Committeeman Hill Blackett.

He shook hands with about 250 Chicago and downstate leaders, approximately the same number that ten days ago greeted Thomas E. Dewey at Lakeside, Mich., where the first of the Blackett series of functions for the introduction of presidential aspirants was given. Many of the same leaders attended both.

No speeches had been scheduled, but in response to a request from Blackett, Senator Taft spoke briefly to the crowd standing around him.

Must Stay Out of War.

"The most important issue before this country now," he said, "is to keep the United States out of war. We ought to strengthen our neutrality act, but I favor repeal of the arms embargo provision so that the cash and carry plan can prevail.

"If we should go to war we would destroy democracy in this country and whether we would ever come back to our American plan of government would be problematical because we would turn over all our rights to somebody and maybe we never would get them back.

"'The best service we can perfect for democracy is to show that a great country in such a crisis can maintain a democratic government.

Speaks Freely on Embargo.

"We can keep out of war if we want to. We can all agree with the President's views on that subject."

At a private luncheon at the Chicago club, given by Silas H. Strawn, Senator Taft was said to have talked much more freely. It was reported that at the luncheon he predicted that eight Republican senators will vote to remove the arms embargo from the neutrality act.

The senator left last night for Minneapolis, his next stop on a trip that will take him to the northwest and down the Pacific coast to the Golden Gate exposition.

Open Schnackenberg Drive.

Supporters of State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, who believe he should be a candidate for governor next year went into action yesterday with a statewide appeal to all Republican voters.

A committee of nine of his Republican associates in the legislature which was set up at a meeting that declared for Schnackenberg on the final day of the general assembly session, June 30, mailed throughout the state copies of a letter sent him recently as an argument in favor of his running.

In addition to the letter the committee sent out reprints of newspaper editorials praising Schnackenberg. The legislators who signed the communication were Schuyler B. Vaughn, Greenville; Calvin D. Johnson, Belleville; Henry F. Scraborough, Payson; Leo D. Crowley, Peoria; Charles W. Clabaugh, Champaign; Dr. Raymond C. Gillogly, Newman; Dr. Thomas J. Thornton, Chester; Mrs. Bernice T. Van Der Vries, Winnetka, and Drennan J. Slater, Evanston.

BROWDER ADMITS FALSE PASSPORT USED IN TRAVELS

Refuses Details as Dies Committee Witness.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party and its presidential candidate in 1936, today told the Dies house committee investigating un-American activities that he has traveled abroad in the last two years on a false passport, but declined to say under what name he traveled on the ground it might incriminate him.

Browder also told the committee that in 1936 a man named "Davidson," who said he represented six or seven wealthy Republicans, offered the communist party $250,000 if it would nominate President Roosevelt on the communist ticket. When Browder himself received the nomination, he added, the offer was renewed if he would withdraw and indorse Roosevelt.

Proof Unavailable.

Browder said he and other party leaders made several efforts to get some documentary proof of the offer so they could reveal it, but failed. The intermediary finally disappeared, he added, presumably having heard that Browder had passed on to the Democratic national committee information concerning the offer.

Browder said transmission of the information finally was accomplished when a New York editor gave it to Senator Joseph Guffey [D., Pa.]. Browder offered to give the committee privately the name of a Canadian banker whose aid he said he enlisted in trying to get documentary proof of the offer.

Suppressed During Campaign.

The witness said he refrained from making the incident public in 1936 because he thought it would "confuse the campaign."

"But you did indorse the President," commented Chairman Dies.

"No, I carefully refrained because I knew the Republicans wanted me to do it," Browder responded. "I only indorsed his policies."

Committee members quizzed him extensively on the contradiction they professed to see in his assertion that the communist party works with every group which is seeking to improve American economic conditions and his admission that if the present economic system worked effectively there would be no place for the communist party.

LATE SURGEON'S EX-WIFE SUES TO VOID DECREE

Mrs. Magdalen Friend of Laguna Beach, Cal., filed a suit yesterday in Superior court asking that an antenuptial agreement and her divorce from Dr. Emanuel Friend be set aside, that she may claim her dower rights in the Friend estate.

Dr. Friend, a widely known surgeon, died on July 19, 1938. His estate was estimated officially at $2,000,000. More than half of it was left to the Michael Reese hospital.

Mrs. Friend, who is 47 years old, said in her petition that she signed the ante-nuptial agreement, accepting -25,000 to give up all dower claims, at the time of the marriage in 1917. This sum was paid when Dr. Friend was granted a divorce in 1933. Mrs. Friend contends she was deceived about the amount of Dr. Friend's wealth. She alleges that the divorce was obtained by fraud. She asserted she was insane when the decree was granted and did not fully recover until Jan. 15, 1939.

RABBI GOLDMAN RETURNS FROM ZIONIST PARLEY

Dr. Solomon Goldman, rabbi of Congregation Anshe Emet and president of the Zionist League of America, arrived at the Chicago airport last evening from New York, where he docked with more than 2,300 others on the Queen Mary Monday. He had attended the World Zionist congress at Geneva, Switzerland.

"The cataclysmic events of the last few days," he said "have driven all thoughts from Zionists' minds but that of assuring the victory of humanity over barbarism. When Hitler falls there will be only bleak memories of the evil nightmare of his era. All our hopes and prayers are that the Democratic powers will win. Zionists will adhere to President Roosevelt's plea for neutrality, but, as he said, there can be no neutrality in thought."

Avoid Pay Boosts, City Department Heads Urged

Robert B. Upham, city controler, yesterday asked city department heads not to request salary increases for any city employés in their 1940 budgetary estimates, which he asked them to file by Oct. 1. He also urged that there be no reclassification of positions which might cause increases.

SCHOOLS REOPEN; TELL PLANS FOR PATRIOTIC STUDY

As 463,100 children trooped back to school yesterday to end their vacation, Superintendent William H. Johnson announced that, as a result of European developments, an intensive program of Americanization will be conducted in all Chicago public schools this year.

He said the study of American history and government would be emphasized to give the students a better understanding of citizenship. He added that he is attempting to raise the high school R. O. T. C. quota to 15,000, more than double the present enrollment, to accommodate students unable to obtain places in the corps last year.

Three others died during the Labor day week-end. Two hundred and seventy persons, including thirty-five employés, are ill in the epidemic. Dr. Ralph T. ## EUROPEAN WAR TO BOOM TRAVEL IN UNITED STATES

Air Lines Are Expected to Show Large Gains.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

The European war will cause Americans to confine their travel to the new world this fall and winter. And, judging by statements of air line officials yesterday, much of the travel will be by plane.

"Heavy trafic over our coast-to-coast, New York-Chicago and Pittsburgh-New York routes," said V. P. Conroy, vice president in charge of trafic and sales of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., "bears out our prediction of last March—that this would be our company's biggest year."

Vacation travel by air in July resulted in the fifth consecutive month of increased business for T. W. A., Mr. Conroy said. The increase in vacationists more than offset the usual seasonal decline in business travelers, giving the line a 55 per cent gain in revenue passenger miles over the same month of a year ago.

Expect Gain in American Travel.

Provisions for a large fall and winter travel movement to the southwest and the Pacific coast are being made by American Airlines, Inc.

"The war in Europe will result in distinct gains in travel in this country," said L. W. King, Chicago district sales manager of American Airlines. "Many persons who ordinarily go overseas in the autumn will take their vacations at the resort hotels and ranches in Texas, Arizona and California. We also expect heavy gains in travel to Mexico and Hawaii, both of which are reached by through air service."

Plane travel to California and the Pacific northwest has reached the highest peak in history, and is not diminishing, R. F. Ahrens, Chicago regional trafic manager for United Air Lines, said after his return from a two weeks' aerial survey of the west.

East Looks West.

"The San Francisco exposition and other attractions out there have drawn an amazing number of visitors," he said. "Now, with war in Europe, it looks as if thousands of easterners and midwesterners are turning their eyes westward."

"With Americans hesitating to go to far off lands this season," said Gail Urban, district trafic manager of Braniff Airways, "Mexico is attracting tourists and vacationists at an almost unprecedented rate. Guatemala and other Central American countries also are coming in for their share of the business."

Similar optimism was voiced by officials of the Northwest, Pennsylvania-Central, Eastern, and Chicago and Southern air lines. Several of them pointed to the record breaking travel by plane out of Chicago over the Labor day week-end as an indication of what might be expected for the rest of the year.

HOTELS TO CLOSE AT YELLOWSTONE; PARK STILL OPEN

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Sept. 5 [Special].—This playground's hotels will close a week from today, and the last of the season's trains will arrive at the park gates next Saturday. This was announced today by Supt. Edmund B. Rogers.

Mr. Rogers added that closing the hotels does not mean closing the park. Accommodations will be available at Old Faithful and Fishing Bridge until the roads are closed by snow. This usually happens between Oct. 15 and Nov. 1.

Lodges will be the first to close for the season. Tonight will be the last night on which guests can register at Camp Roosevelt; tomorrow night is to see the finale for the Old Faithful, Canyon, and Lake lodges.

Entrance checking stations will remain open as long as weather conditions permit travel by auto.

Friday Is Illinois Day at San Francisco Fair

ARRANGE TOURS TO MEETING OF BANKERS' ASSN.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 5 [Special].—Two special tours, both starting in Chicago, have been announced by one of the leading travel agencies in connection with the forthcoming meeting of the American Bankers' association. The convention will be held here Sept. 24 to 28.

The main tour will leave Chicago Sept. 20 and will include visits to Yellowstone park, the Grand Coulee dam, the Columbia River highway, and San Francisco and its Golden Gate exposition.

An optional excursion, calling for a trip on down the coast from San Francisco to Del Monte, Los Angeles, and Hollywood, is to last four days longer.

I am looking for the fastest toboggan slide in North America. I wish to take a few trips on it this winter. Can you tell me where it is?
W. F. A.

Other boosters may disagree, but Canadian enthusiasts claim the slide down the north slope of Mount Royal, at Montreal, is both the fastest and the largest on this continent. It has six icy lanes, each one and one-half miles long. Speeds in excess of seventy miles an hour have been made on it.

What is the origin of "the Well of the Black Watch," in a corner of the government grounds in Bermuda?
E. E. A.

It was built by the Black Watch regiment, stationed on the coral isles from 1847 to 1851. A commemorative tablet above the well bears this inscription: "This well was sunk by some soldiers of the Scottish Highlanders during the long drouth of 1849 for the sake of the poor and their cattle. Praise to the Lord, who sendeth his springs into the valleys which run among the hills."

Will I be permitted to take my dog along when I enter Glacier National park?
G. S.

Yes. But he must be kept on a leash or in your auto at all times.

Where can I get detailed information about touring facilities in Canada?
R. H. M.

Write the Canadian Travel bureau, department of transport, Ottawa.

What is there to see in Nara, Japan?
H. Z.

Nara is Japan's oldest city, but in no sense is it a city of ruins. It was founded in 709 A. D. It is a treasure house of antiquities, the three most important of which are the bronze Buddha, largest and oldest of its kind in the world; the 1,250 acre park, with its sacred deer, and the Syoso-in, a museum depicting Japanese court life in the eighth century. The Buddha is so huge that a man can easily pass through one of its nostrils.

WHALING CREWS LEAVE IMPRINT ON NEW ZEALAND

Industry Is Credited with Developing Country.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Sept. 5.—On the hills south of this city, overlooking the fretful waters of Cook strait which cut New Zealand in half, two men keep watch in all weathers. As you travel on the interisland steamer you may see them against the gray sky and shiver at thought of their vigil, but probably you will not guess their task. They are whale spotters, watching for the passage of whales through the strait on their annual migration from the Antarctic waters to warmer seas.

The whales are likely to be attacked by one of the few shore based whaling stations south of the equator. Owned by John Perano, it operates four chasers, speedboats powered to dash 40 miles an hour through difficult seas. Each chaser has its gunner and helmsman and is armed with a whale gun firing an explosive, barbed harpoon.

When the spotters see a whale spouting they report by radio phone. Two of the chasers are sent hurrying away [they always hunt in pairs], and after one has harpooned the whale the second chaser ranges alongside to give the death blow. Compressed air is pumped into the dead whale and it is towed to the station.

A Three Hour Job.

It requires three hours to deal with the whale in the way the Perano firm likes to do it. High pressure steam is used to treat blubber, flesh, and bones, and the carcass is dismembered by natives who work beneath a circling crowd of sea fowl. Offshore you can see the fins of cruising sharks awaiting anything that comes their way.

This station is the last of the many which once made these waters famous among whalers, American, Scandinavian and British. It has been operating for 112 years, and was founded on a site about a mile from its present location. Five oar rowboats were used by Perano in his work until 1911, when he turned to power boats. Situated in Tory channel, above which the spotters keep their watch, the factory and station are on historic ground.

This season the catch has exceeded 100 whales and has included a 90 ton blue whale and one of the now rare sperm whales, once the chief quarry of the New England fleets in the south Pacific.

Blue Whale Also Rare.

The blue whale also is rare in these waters. This one was the third taken by the Perano fleet.

Whaling played a major part in the early history of this country. It brought in the first outside industry. It stimulated the missionaries in opposition to the whaling crews' behavior and thereby created problems in London, the missionaries being powerfully supported. It pointed to possible sites for cities and encouraged trade and travel. It probably was from the knowledge of the country collected by whaling fleets that favorable reports of the land, its climate, and fertility got abroad. Thus the whalers helped accelerate the settlement of the country by Britain almost a century ago.

RICHES OF CHRISTOPHE, HAITI'S EMPEROR, LURE TREASURE SEARCHERS

CAPE HAITIEN, Haiti, Sept. 5 [Special].—Here's an opportunity for fortune hunters. A treasure cache of more than a million pounds sterling [approximately $4,200,000] is reported to be buried deep in the secret tunnels of the Citadel de la Ferrière, on a mountain top not far from this town.

The fantastic fortress was built by Henri Christophe, black emperor of Haiti. To make sure his plans never would be divulged, he had his architect thrown over the ramparts. The only other man knowing the secret was Christophe himself—and he killed himself without telling where he had hidden his vast wealth.

As a result, no one living today knows the whereabouts of the treasure. Native Haitians insist it's still under the huge Citadel.

Number Plan to Help Their Native Lands

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. Leander McCormick has lived in England for a number of years and she has been living in Chicago for the last year. Her American husband has adopted her two children, Marie Blanche and Thiery de Brotonne. But Mrs. McCormick, born a de Fontarce and later married to the Count de Fleurieu, is a native Frenchwoman, so she would not stay quietly in Santa Fe, N. M., enjoying ranch life and the Labor day week-end fiesta, after France entered the European war.

She came home quickly, arriving yesterday morning with her son, who was anxious to consult the French consul about his duty. Being only 17, he will not be called for military service yet. He is planning to enter the University of Chicago this month.

Mrs. McCormick hopes to serve France soon. She plans to leave in a day or two for Montreal to make plans to serve abroad with the Canadian Red Cross. Her daughter and Miss Moyra Browne, a young Englishwoman who has been staying with the McCormicks since early last winter, are returning from Santa Fe today.

Miss Browne will proceed to New York and then to Montreal to enter training as a nurse in an English corps that is being formed there. Mr. McCormick is in Texas on business. Miss McCormick plans to continue her studies at the Goodman theater this winter.

Englishman Called from America.

Chicago friends of Sir Anthony Lindsay-Hogg heard yesterday that he had been recalled to England for military duty. He has been living in New York recently, but spent most of last winter in Chicago.

His brother, Edward Lindsay-Hogg, and his wife, Geraldine Fitzgerald, had planned to sail for this country on Sept. 9 with Mrs. Orson Welles, who has been visiting them in Ireland.

This plan has been changed, however, and Mrs. Welles has postponed sailing for several weeks, according to a cable received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Nicolson. Mrs. Welles will join her husband and their 15 month old daughter, Christopher, in Hollywood, when she returns to America.

Mrs. Arthur B. Slade was relieved to have a cable yesterday bringing word that her cousin, Mrs. M. McKay

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

The Mirror.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 5 [Special].—Stagehands at the Shubert theater, where "The Philadelphia Story" is now playing, point out that Katharine Hepburn never made the crack attributed to her, and add that they've never worked with a sweller girl or one more considerate.

The Stagehands' union, thanking this column for going to their defense while crackpots in and out of the profession were assailing them, go on record in their support of Miss Hepburn, and in the support of these redoubtable giants she has a personal bodyguard of brawn and muscle that beggars challenges.

I'm tickled to death, really, that my favorite Connecticut Yankee, La Hepburn, has been cleared by the stagehand crews. . . . As you may have gathered from frequent references in this space, I've always liked her tremendously, both as an actress and a person. . . . In my personal ledger, she always rated tops.

Miss Hepburn, who never answers hecklers, observes mildly: "The one thing of which I'm proud—the only real thing I believe in and have stood for—is my relationship with the people I work with."

Arrival in town of Hedy Lamarr and Bob Taylor in "Lady of the Tropics" has stirred up quite a tempest over a recent column in which this eye for beauty rated Hedy as the No. 1 all-time eyeful. . . . I have only one addition to make. . . . Just before we left the west coast I sat with Mary Pickford and Lillian Gish at the Zanucks' barn dance and deliberately steered the conversation around to the photogenic qualities of Miss Lamarr.

Miss Gish said that she thought the nearest approach to the current beauty was the late Barbara Lamarr. . . . I turned to Mary Pickford. "Barbara was truly beautiful," she said, "but there never has been a girl on the screen so bewilderingly gorgeous as Hedy. The amazing thing is that she has something besides beauty—a quality or sweetness that comes to the audience as an added surprise." . . . That should end the discussion.

Of all the accredited judges of beauty, most unusual is Phil Spitalny, whose girl band and girl choir is one of the highlights of the entertainment world. . . . Spitalny regards every girl, not as she looks to you and me, but with the additional speculation as to how she'd look playing an instrument in a band. . . . His highest compliment to a girl's beauty is his declaration: "You'd look beautiful playing a trumpet."

Test of beauty, he says, is for a girl to play a bass viol and project glamor simultaneously, because the bass viol's awkwardness detracts from its player. . . . I asked him what hope he held out for me. . . . Said he sadly, "You had better stick to a typewriter."

South American performers on Broadway stages are playing a new game which has come up from Rio de Janeiro, and Dr. Leo Michael passes it along to this department. . . . You ask who will win the war? . . . The liberal translation of this query in Spanish is "Quién ganará?" . . . You take those two words and line them up with the names of the empire and axis leaders, like this:

Mussolini
Hitler
Chamberlain
Daladier
Quien
Ganara

Take the third vertical column and spell down and you get this result: S-T-A-L-I-N.

On the stage at Loew's State theater, where the Harvest Moon dancers are busting records, "The Three Swifts," one of the suaver juggling acts of big time vaudeville, were going through their paces. . . . "Cecil" fumbled a laugh-line and he ad libbed: "It wasn't loud enough." . . . "It was loud enough," rapid fired one of his partners, "but it wasn't funny enough." . . . So in blowing a laugh-line they found two lines that added a sock yell to their smooth routine.

Since the national release of the Fox Movietone on the Harvest Moon Ball at Madison Square Garden, I've been getting wires from various cities asking for permission to use the amateur dancing contest idea. It seems that Lew Lehr, off screen, introduces me as the "Master of ceremonies and originator of the Harvest Moon Ball." . . . I'd like to claim credit for it . . . but the originator was Mary King, just for the records.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The more we see of the fashions the more we realize that "figgers" are not what they should be. Our first sight of a bustle dress, as it appears on the feminine frame instead of in the fashion pages, was not one to make us jump for joy.

In fact, it was awful, simply gosh-awful. The lady had stooped shoulders and a flat chest, and somehow, as we watched her walk, we couldn't think of anything in the world but an ostrich. All that emphasis on the back line has got to be balanced by a good front line or it's comic.

We wouldn't know why the dressmakers have suddenly decided to revive the bustle. But they have and women will wear them. But we do feel that women ought to remember one thing. The whole purpose of a bustle dress is to give a queenly effect. But you've got to have a regal posture as well as a bustle on your gown to achieve this effect.

Old-fashioned clothes demand an old-fashioned figure. Slim waists, rounded hips, and a good bust line.

Watch your posture, particularly. It may be that your figure isn't a bit bad if you stand properly. Think of an imaginary line straight down from ear to shoulder to hip to ankle. That will keep your posture as it should be.

But if corrected posture isn't enough, take exercises that will whittle you if that's what you need or give you a build up if your problem is not having curves enough. Arm exercises, swimming, and the right kind of stretching will improve your bust line whether you're slim or stout. And for the hips, do twists, kicks, and rolls for five or ten minutes every day.

It's going to be a great season, no doubt about it. Whether the innocent bystanders will giggle or swoon with admiration as women flounce about in the new clothes remains to be seen.

Get Plenty of Sleep for the Sake of Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Eight hours of sound, undisturbed sleep are the finest and most economical beauty treatment any woman can give herself. We all know the expression, 'to get one's beauty sleep'—usually meaning a cat-nap before going out on a heavy date, or a half hour taken off for a quick snooze. A few moments of complete physical and mental relaxation during the day are an excellent idea, but all the cat-naps in the world will not make up for, or take the place of, one good night's healthy sleep."

This statement made by Martha Alden, who occupies the unusual position of sleep consultant to the largest bed linen mill in the country, is too well illustrated by the many pale-faced tired-eyed women we see hurrying frantically around town.

Miss Alden, whose business it is to know about such things, and who has made numerous tests to determine the best method of inducing sleep, maintains that the strain of wakeful nights, or the lack of sufficient sleep-hours can quickly turn the loveliest lady into a haggard looking old woman.

"The finest of make-up jobs cannot hide or erase the dark shadows and ugly lines that appear in a face as the result of fatigue and nerve strain. Beauty is more than skin deep, as any good beautician will tell you, and a woman who is nervous, jittery and hollow eyed lacks the poise and charm that are so essential to true beauty.

"Because of the fast pace to which most women—especially those in the business world—key their lives," Miss Alden continued, "an unfortunately large number of them suffer from insomnia due to the nervous tension and overstrain. They do not know how to relax. Even though their bodies crave sleep, their nerves are so tightly wound that every night becomes an agony of sleeplessness, with the hours spent in pillow pounding and fitful tossing."

Miss Alden goes on to say that panaceas of the sleepless such as sheep counting, room pacing, and drug taking are either ineffectual or dangerous.

Instead, she advises a simple exercise routine to be done just before retiring which will induce a natural sound sleep by relaxing taut nerves and muscles, and by stimulating blood circulation so as to throw off fatigue poisons.

Of vital importance to healthful sleep, Miss Alden continues, is a comfortable, well made bed.

The bed should be at least 4 feet wide so that you can stretch and twist during your sleep without becoming cramped.

Bright, Cheery Reds Dominate the Fall Scene

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You'll see red this fall, a good Fourth of July red; a glowing red, alive, cheerful and high fashion in the midst of the darker, more sinister shades of taupe, plum, and dull green. Seeing this wave of red will not make you unduly pugnacious, but it will cause plenty of excitement for those who never weary of such a gorgeous color.

The first arrivals are dashing one piece dresses in wool, most of them presented for the approval of the college clothes collector but now going out for all wardrobes.

Red hats have great eye appeal. Most of them are small, pert, and young. Red topped dresses feature red in the blouse or bodice to contrast a dark gray, green, brown, or black skirt.

Unusually stunning red dresses are worn with silver fox trimmed coats, the red frock swinging provocatively out in front between the long tuxedo revers of the coat. Red dresses are teamed with jaunty jet black fur jackets or with black wool jackets trimmed with fur, and with the suddenly new and popular traffic green wool jackets or coats.

Suits of flaming red consisting of dress and matching long coat are powerful units in any of the showings. So are the red top coats, the gay hooded models going fast. Even the camel's hair coats flaunt this rage for red.

Less red are the mixtures and plaids using varying shades of the color with other accents. Luscious red chiffon velvet is used for some picture perfect ball and dinner gowns, and the best evening wraps are the gay red wool numbers cut to smooth over the streamline. These have long sleeves, wide full skirts and a hood to wear hanging down over the shoulders or to pull up over the curls.

A red jacket will be as dear to hearts of the younger set as it will prove indispensable as the extra to wear with odd skirts and with short skirted dresses. Red bags as large as ever will be tucked under the elbows, and red belts, bows, and even gloves will blaze comfortingly all over the fall and winter scene. The red ware is here to stay.

Fashion photograph. . . . Edwardian jewelry has arrived in the tufted wide gold bracelet studded with tiny stones and the lovely spray necklace sprigged with jewel studded flowers and leaves. Gold costume jewelry makes perfect foils for all the severely simple, bustled dresses in rich taffetas, bengalines, and black brocades.

On the House

It can be taken for granted that a great many homes this fall will be adding new electrical equipment of various kinds, and that the matter of overloaded circuits should not be overlooked.

The substitution of the modern safety insuring circuit breaker panel box, in place of the old time fuse box, is a good investment. The cost is not high, there is no more rush and to-do when the fuse blows out and you rid yourself for all time of the need of changing fuses at all hours of the day or night.

You flip a toggle switch and service is yours again. Furthermore, it won't allow you to overload your wiring system. You promptly will be "informed" if such a condition exists and can proceed to have it remedied at once.

LOUISE BARGELT.

To the Stars

By Gouverneur Morris

(Copyright: 1939: By Gouverneur Morris.)

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Reynolds, promoter of children's acts in the days before motion pictures, is attracted to the tenement flat of the Lichts by the singing of their little daughter, Josefa. Next day he calls with his wife and persuades the Lichts to let him take Josefa into his home and train her for the stage. Two older children, Lena and Eddie, live with the Reynolds. During a stage show Eddie's voice breaks and Josefa goes to his rescue, saves the act, and becomes famous overnight. Josefa is billed as Sheila Doone. Lena hides her envy and hatred of Sheila by pretended friendship. Backed by Producer Leica, Lena becomes a motion picture actress in the infant industry. With Lena's brief day waning Leica signs up Sheila. Sheila marries Ronny Low, her leading man. They buy a ranch, leaving most of the arrangements to Lena. Then Ronny is notified that his contract will not be renewed. And Sheila loses the favor of her public. But when sound comes in they stage a triumphant comeback. Ronny dies of a ruptured appendix. Sheila suffers a breakdown. The bank where Sheila, on Lena's urging, had placed all her savings, fails. Lena claims to be broke and unable to repay Sheila any of the money she owes her. She spreads rumors that Sheila has lung trouble so no one will hire her. Lena becomes secretary and mistress to Isaacs, Leica's assistant. Then she attracts a young millionaire, Ambrose Fleming. Sheila consults a lawyer friend, Hartman Graves, about income tax difficulties. Through him she learns of Lena's double-crossing. Sheila confronts Lena, who admits she's always hated her and defies her to prove she owes her anything.

CONVINCING BLUFFS.

"Right," said Sheila, "it's too rotten a story for anybody to believe. You pretended to be our friend and you borrowed from us and then stole."

"Yeah?" And maybe you'd like to know why you don't get work in pictures? Page Lena. Lena who knows that you're on the verge of another collapse and it isn't safe for any one to hire you. Isaacs wanted to give you a part but I wouldn't let him. And now you're forgotten and done for. And I've lived to see it. And this is the happiest moment of my life. I've paid my debt in full."

Sheila said nothing.

"Do you know what you are?" cried Lena, exulting in what she felt to be her triumph. "You're a worm—just a worm. People push you around and step on you and you don't even get mad. You never did. You're a worm and you always will be."

There was some truth in what Lena had said. Sheila couldn't deny it. She had never been much of a one to stand up for herself and her rights. Even now she was numb and hurt instead of angry.

"Worms turn sometimes," she said, and walked quietly out of the room and out of the house.

Sheila and Ronny had not transferred their joint safety deposit box to Scudder's new bank. Sheila's long hands had fluttered through its contents at the time of Ronny's death and she distinctly remembered to have handled several parcels of canceled checks. And when Hartman Graves told her that there wasn't much sense in bringing suit against Lena without documentary evidence, she recalled these parcels and with Graves on hand went through them one by one.

There were checks to butchers, grocers, dressmakers, milliners, haberdashers, jewelers, and stockbrokers. Sheila was sure that they must have kept some of the checks indorsed by Lena. If so, they must be in the last parcel.

"Worms turn sometimes," Sheila said and walked out.

"Did Miss Bowen ever have access to this box?"

"Two or three times when we had to be away we gave her power of attorney to look after things for us."

"Did you ever have any of her paper?"

"Paper?"

"Notes, receipts, promises to pay."

"I'm sure we did."

"Doesn't look as if you'd put them in here for safety, or if you did! . . . Has Miss Bowen any power of attorney now?"

Sheila shook her head.

"Positive?"

"Yes, because a day or two after Junior was born Ronny decided that from then on he was going to be more businesslike. That's when we took back the power of attorney Lena had. And we never gave her another. I know because I would have had to sign it, or wouldn't I?"

"You would. Let's go through the rest of these things."

Almost the last check in the last parcel was the check which Ronny had given Lena on the night Junior was born.

Sheila was quite jubilant. It had been an exciting hunt. But Graves told her to hold her horses. The check was evidence but it proved nothing.

Graves wrote to Lena on office stationery a very formal letter to the effect that certain claims had been placed in his hands for collection by Miss Sheila Doone. Some of these were against Miss Bowen, and as he always advised his clients to keep out of court if possible he hoped that Miss Bowen would call upon him, or permit him to call upon her in the course of the next few days to talk the matter over in a friendly way.

Lena neither called upon him in his office nor answered the letter. A second letter was more threatening.

Lena realized that if she wished to avoid publicity she would have to see the ——— and show him where he and his client got off. Any unfavorable publicity was to be avoided at all costs. Ambrose Fleming was highly sensitive to fine points of honor. She wrote and made an appointment for several days ahead.

"Well, Miss Bowen, how about it?" Hart Graves smiled in a disarming and deprecatory way. "My client says that you owe her a lot of money. She's very hard up and would like awfully to see some of it."

"It's true," said Lena, most unexpectedly. "I owe Sheila and her late husband's estate nearly $20,000."

"Of course," he smiled, "my client doesn't insist on the whole sum all at once. If you could pay her a little something every week . . ."

"I could," said Lena, "of course I could do that. But I'm not going to."

"But you said that you owed her the money."

"It's my privilege not to pay if I don't want to. If Sheila wasn't a fool about money matters she'd have notes and canceled checks to show that at various times she has advanced me sums of money. Even if she had these now she couldn't prove that I hadn't paid them, or that the money had been for my own use."

"But you've acknowledged this debt—to me."

"If you say that in court I'll deny it, and then where will you be?"

"One proof of indebtedness," said Graves, "happens to have escaped the fiery furnace."

"That would be Ronny Low's check for twenty-five hundred endorsed by me. Well, what about it? Sheila knows what that was for."

"She has told me."

"O, no, she hasn't. She'll never tell, not you or anyone else."

"Then if she hasn't told me the truth what was it for?"

"Not very flattering, are you?" said Lena demurely.

"Good Lord," thought Graves, "what a woman!" Aloud he said, "But if you acknowledge that in court you'll dishonor her husband's memory, but you'll smirch yourself in the process."

"Listen," said Lena, "get this straight. I don't count. But I won't stop at anything. You haul me into court and see what you get."

Lena was bluffing. The course of conduct which she was suggesting would have ruined her utterly in Brose Fleming's eyes. And she knew it. But Graves did not know that she was bluffing.

"There's another thing you better know before you bring suit and start the publicity."

"Yes, Miss Bowen."

"People are wondering why such an old friendship has gone on the rocks. If the matter comes up in court I'll have to tell the truth, won't I?"

"Your former friendship with my client and why it broke up will not concern the court."

"I'll see that it does," said Lena. "I've got a plenty smart lawyer of my own and he'll see that that particular question does come up. If I tell him to. And when it does and I make answer, you'll wish you hadn't brought the suit and your pie-faced client will wish that she'd never been born."

Graves was sufficiently innocent not to fathom Lena's implications. What could she say about Sheila that would be so particularly awful and shaming that Sheila would wish that she had never been born?

Advice to the Bride: Keep In-laws Out

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"We were married on Christmas day of last year, so we are just bride anl bridegroom still. We have been living with my widowed mother ever since we returned from our honeymoon. This was our original plan before we married. Recently my sister, who is several years my senior, lost her husband and she is coming home to mother. That will make four grownups under one roof. My mother and sister are very fond of my husband, and he has confessed that he never thought he could love his inlaws as much as he does, which makes it nice all around.

"Now, this is the problem. We intend to go into housekeeping in the spring of 1940. We haven't bought a stick of furniture, awaiting the time we could furnish our own place exactly as we wanted to. My sister and mother expect to live with us. I'm against this, believing they should take a small apartment for themselves and let my husband and me start our lives in our own way. I thought we might take a three room apartment and my sister and mother a one and one-half room apartment, either in the same apartment house or in the same neighborhood where we could see each other often enough. Incidentally, I still am working.

"My husband now wants to purchase a six or seven room home under the government plan. Of course, we couldn't afford to do this ourselves, as the initial payment would take most of our savings and we then couldn't furnish it for some time. He feels that, with my mother and sister sharing the cost of the home, that is one-half, we could purchase one. I'm against starting life off with four grownups in the family, it can't work out to everybody's interest."

The correspondent adds to the above complications the fact that her young husband looks forward to entertaining his mother and dad over week-ends.

There is only one piece of advice to pass on to the bride and it is to hold out against any family invasion on the privacy of herself and husband. Have her own little fort and keep all in-laws out; as permanent residents, that is.

The Housewife

It's easy as pie to keep order in your clothes closet or dressing room if you have several of those practical chests of unpainted knotty pine. They're as inexpensive as they are helpful. The largest is 48 inches high and 23½ inches wide with 7 drawers 12 inches deep. Next comes a chest with 6 drawers. It is as wide as the other, but 42 inches tall. The smallest size, with 4 drawers, takes up little room, being only 16 inches wide and 30 inches high.

You can paint these chests, or simply shellac them, if you wish.

EDITH WEIGLE.

During the few remaining weeks of summer there will be plenty of warm days when cool, tempting meals will be welcomed by family and guests. Mary Meade's booklet, "Cool Meals for Warm Days," contains many suggestions and recipes to help you out. The booklet may be obtained at the Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 5 cents, or it will be mailed to you for 7 cents in stamps.

Three cans, one of shrimp, one of tomato juice, and one of hominy, plus butter, flour, seasonings, and crumbs make a supper dish which is as good to eat as it is to look at, and as easy to make as to eat.

Toss in a crisp salad with a saucy dressing, a vegetable, and a warm, fruity dessert, and you have a short-cut meal which really is "sump'n."

Hominy and Shrimp in Tomato Sauce.
[Serves six.]

1 large can shrimp
1 No. 2 can hominy
¼ cup butter
1½ tablespoons flour
1½ cups tomato juice; salt, pepper
1 teaspoon grated or chopped onion
1 cup soft bread crumbs

Clean shrimp and drain hominy. Spread two-thirds of hominy in a buttered shallow baking dish. Cover with the shrimp. Add remaining hominy as a third layer. Melt half the butter, blend in flour, and add tomato juice, cooking and stirring until sauce thickens. Add salt and pepper to season. Add onion. Pour the sauce over the hominy and shrimp. Top with crumbs and dribble the remaining butter, melted, over the top. Bake twenty minutes at 375 degrees.

Vinaigrette Dressing.

1 cup salad oil or olive oil
¼ cup vinegar
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
2 tablespoons chopped pickle
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento

Shake or beat ingredients together until blended.

This is a full recipe for the dressing. If you want to make only enough for the salad, make less than the recipe. The dressing will keep well in a covered jar in the refrigerator.

If you have bottled French dressing on hand, parsley, pickle, onion, and pimiento may be shaken into that. Chopped hard cooked egg is another good addition to this dressing. Pimiento may be omitted from the recipe if desired.

Greengage Plum Shortcake.
[Serves four to six.]

2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup shortening
¾ cup milk
1 dozen greengage plums
¾ cup sugar [more if you like]
1 cup water

Sift flour before measuring and re-sift with salt and sugar. Cut in fat [butter, margarine, lard, or vegetable shortening] and add milk gradually, stirring until dough is formed. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead gently for half a minute. Divide in two parts. Pat half the dough out into a sheet to fit a greased small layer pan or pie pan. Cover with half the plums, which have been cooked until soft and thick with sugar and water. Top with remaining dough, patted out to fit, and cover with rest of plum mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for fifteen minutes or a little longer. Cut in pieces and serve warm with cream.

Fall Two-Piece Ensemble

WOMAN'S AND MISS' TWO-PIECE OUTFIT.

Both woolen and silk adapt themselves nicely to this two-piece ensemble. The blouse is a semi-fitted one with buttons down the front. The sleeves may be either long or short, and are puffed moderately at the shoulders. The jacket extends only to the hipline, below which the skirt flares beautifully. One version gives the dress a contrasting lingerie collar at a high, round neckline. The other makes the throatline heart shaped and is trimmed with binding, more of which is used on the sleeves.

A lovely hat for this dress is easily made with the aid of pattern No. 2801, available in one headsize only, which you can adapt to your needs. Price, 10 cents.

Style No. 2807 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3⅜ yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

BLAKE ANSWERS

Tip to Bashful Suitor.

"Dear Miss Blake: I've been in love with a girl for four years. Yet every time I'm about to tell her I love her I lose my nerve. SAUL."

Why don't you say to her some evening, "I'd like to tell you I love you, but I haven't the courage."

One Piece Crocheted Doily

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A crocheted luncheon doily which is made in one piece has the appearance of a series of spider webs arranged in intricate design, yet it is one of the simplest patterns. The versatility of the pattern is soon recognized for, by starting out with one pattern and working on and on, a tablecloth is easily made.

For instructions in crocheting the spider web luncheon set, No. X-294, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth Av., New York City.

'Don't' Habit Easy for Any Parent to Get

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Going visiting with the younger children has its drawbacks. I never used to manage it quite to my own satisfaction, especially if my hostess had no children of her own.

What made me think of it was a call I made yesterday accompanied by Billy, a young lad suddenly left in my charge for the day and one whose away-from-home manners I was not familiar with. It was rather a venture to take him along, but the engagement was one of long standing with a friend I rarely see. So I arrived in spite of rain and we settled down to talk while the children played.

Well, you know what they do under these circumstances—puppy dogs and children. No place is as nice as right under your feet, almost on top of you!

Tea was delicious and I was enjoying the little respite in my day, but naturally I had a weather-eye on the doings of my charge. So had my friend on her little girl's. There was a lovely new lamp and a choice brocade on the sofa.

Billy was intoxicated with spirit. He turned a somersault. Then it was: "Billy, don't do that—look out for your feet—you almost kicked Molly in the stomach."

"Don't throw the ball, Molly! I've told you not to—not in here."

"Don't bring the clay in here, children, it has oil in it."

"Don't try to ride the scooter in here, Molly."

"Don't blow that siren in here, Molly."

Until . . . all of a sudden we looked at each other in funny dismay.

"Here we are," I said, "being a couple of 'don't-ers'—a thing we both despise."

"Children," said my hostess, "go into Molly's room and play. You know you can do anything you like in there. Here, take these sandwiches."

Peace descended. Why hadn't we done that before? A perfectly simple solution of our difficulty—and theirs.

It is so easy to "don't" the children. And they must get awfully tired of hearing it, and they can't be blamed if after a while it falls on deaf ears. It's negative and a little naggy. Usually the best way out is by resorting to some positive means—and often that is substitution.

For instance, when the children are little, instead of saying "Don't, don't," try to substitute some other occupation for the one that is causing the trouble. If the sewing box you've just opened proves too tempting with it's delectable spools and thimbles, get out the blocks or the big crayons and large sheets of paper for drawing.

Or, if the new velocipede is being tried out in the living room to the accompaniment of "Don't scratch the piano," "Don't bang up the door," and "Don't scrape the table"—veto the velocipede and suggest a good, rousing, hammery, carpentry job, or a bout with the boats in the bathtub.

It's possible [and pleasant] to reduce the don'ts by about 90 per cent, if you try.

"How to Say 'Don't Touch'" is the name of a leaflet sent upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

For the first time in my bridge career, and to my utter astonishment, it appears that "intimidation" is being applied to me. Note the following remarkable letter:

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: As you probably know, I have been teaching your system of bridge in this small community, where the old "Official System" still is popular. One of my very good pupils made a bid recently at a certain gathering and, as in all small places, sides are being taken and there is almost a feud, with me in the very middle of it. This was the hand:

"East, dealer.

"Neither side vulnerable.

♣ A K Q

"East bid one diamond. South overcalled with two hearts, West passed, and North passed also.

"South was horrified and insisted that, since her bid was a strength bid, North should have made some sort of bid. North maintains that she learned your system in the east and that she does not consider her failure to respond an error. My personal opinion is that South should have bid more than two hearts, since she held more than three and one-half honor tricks. However, since she made the error, North should have done something about it. Further, it seems to me that, since South is one of the best bridge players in this community, and regarded generally as such, some respect was warranted for her bid, and even if North felt that South had but three and one-half tricks, she, North, should have given her some sort of response. I hope that I am right, for I believe that if your decision were otherwise, no more Culbertson could be taught here."

The italics used for the last few words of the above sentence are mine, but the insidious import of my teacher's words is unmistakable. So! Pressure is being brought to bear, eh? Well, well!

With the deepest regret, I must surrender the community in question to the Official or any other system that wants it, because, with my characteristic stubbornness, I refuse to revise the Culbertson system to meet the demands of the lady who overcalled with two hearts on the South hand. She may be, as my correspondent described her, one of the best bridge players of that community but, nevertheless and notwithstanding, it is my considered opinion that she made one of the worst bids ever seen in that or any other community. It is quite true that she had "more than three and one-half honor tricks"; viewed from any angle, six and one-half honor tricks are more than three and one-half. A single jump overcall, according to the Gold Book, announces a hand with three and one-half honor tricks or more with [1] two five card or longer suits, or [2] a hand containing one strong suit and in all, eight winners. Such an overcall asks partner to respond when holding about one trick. Hence, it is a strong bid, but it is not forcing and, therefore, North was absolutely correct to refuse to respond. Her two jacks and less-than-adequate trump support did not begin to justify any response, and her five card suit was not worth mentioning. The fault was entirely South's for failing to use a bid made to order for such holdings, namely, an overcall in the opponents' suit, which announces a very big hand and which is forcing to game. Surely, South, with six and one-half honor tricks, one good six card major suit and another excellent four card major suit, with first round control of the adversely bid suit, and absolutely solid clubs, might have "taken a chance" and forced the bidding to game.

Perhaps I have been a bit tough in my reaction to the above quoted letter, but I think almost all bridge players will agree with me that it is not pleasant to be threatened.

Children Give Circus and Raise $5 for Benefit of Ice Fund

Another amateur circus yesterday raised the hopes of at least five poor mothers whose babies face illness and impairment of health for lack of ice to preserve their milk. The circus was held in the back yard at 6850 East End avenue, and raised $5 which the Free Ice fund acknowledges with gratitude. Its five young sponsors were Jacqueline Ross, 7; Ronald Rubin, 5; Marian Schoenberger, 9; Nancy Jean Weinfeld, 7, and Dorothy Anne Weinfeld, 3.

The following other gifts brought the fund's total to $1,332.66 for the season:

Margie Friedlander, Babs Bowash, Sue Sideman Joan Weise and Alice Kaufman..$7.25
Patricia Nicol ........................ 5.00

There is still need for ice for many families who have sickness in their homes, for aged persons suffering from heart disease and diabetes, and for cooling the milk of babies. If you can help, please send your contribution to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Square.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am the mother of girls 7 and 8, and a boy 16. My husband deserted me almost five years ago, and I have been on relief since that time. For the last few years I have been ill.

"With our relief budget cut to almost nothing, I am unable to obtain clothing for my children and myself. With winter coming, the children will need warm things for school and, as I must attend the clinic regularly, it will be necessary for me to have clothing, size 36 to 38—Mrs. H."

LeRoy, is on the Ile de France, which sailed on Saturday or Sunday from France.

The C. Durand Allens are worried for fear their son, Durand Jr., might have been on the torpedoed Athenia. He had cabled that he was sailing last Friday from England.

Bosworth Family Greatly Worried.

Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth's Evanston home is filled with anxiety for the two British sons-in-law of the family. The Hon. Dr. Trevor Stamp, who married the former Frances Bosworth, is in charge of a hospital at Epsom, not far from London. Gordon Padley, husband of the former Della Bosworth, has joined his ship, but Mrs. Padley does not know its name or where it is.

The Hon. Colin Stamp, who came to America with his sister-in-law, is sailing for England the end of the week and will be placed with some regiment. Fortunately for Mrs. Bosworth, she has her daughters and their children with her in Evanston so the feminine members of the family, at least, are out of danger.

Ball Relatives Return to Home.

Dr. and Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wellesley, had a gay fling before the war started. Their fling was a house party in Scotland, where the former Betty Ball had good duck shooting. Now she is at the Wellesley home in Sussex, high in The Downs, about 12 miles from Croydon, London's big airport, and two and a half hours by motor from Southampton. The Wellesleys and their neighbors will take care of London refugees.

Mrs. Wellesley's son, Robin, is already at preparatory school although he is only 11. There is a possibility that the school will be moved to Scotland as a precautionary measure. Mrs. Wellesley's cables home are cheerful.

James Simpsons Reach City Today.

The James Simpsons' telephone will be busy from today on, for Mr. and Mrs. Simpson are arriving in Chicago this morning from Europe and probably will have interesting tales of conditions abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson were fortunate enough to have left the troubled continent before war was declared. Not so fortunate were the Charles G. Littles, the Sterling Mortons, the Charles H. Morses, Mrs. Heaton Owsley, and other Americans who have taken refuge in Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Little, their daughter, Miss Olivia, and her friend, Miss Barbara Delano of Kalamazoo, Mich., are in Berne, awaiting passage home on the first available Italian ship, considering that to be the safest route back.

Mrs. William M. Scudder and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George P. Braun, have passage home in the Washington, sailing Saturday from France. They have been in Paris recently.

Mrs. Harold C. Smith Returns to Lake Forest.

Mrs. Harold C. Smith and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Byron Smith, arrived in Lake Forest Sunday by motor from New York. Miss Smith and her sister, Mrs. Morrison Waud, had gone east to meet their mother when she returned from Europe the middle of last week. Mrs. Waud came home by train.

The Edmund J. Doerings expect to welcome their daughter, Mrs. Harold Hartog, by the end of this week. She is on a Dutch boat. The former Nancy Doering and her husband have called Paris home since their marriage there on July 15, 1938.

Three debutantes of the season will be the especial guests at a luncheon Mrs. Lon C. Hill Jr. and her daughter, Miss Georgette Hill, are giving today at the Indian Hill club. Miss Dorothy Warner, Miss Edith Porter, and Miss Alice Blair are the buds for whom Mrs. and Miss Hill are entertaining. Miss Hill made her debut last year.

Have No Regrets Over Summer Indiscretions!

Certainly you cast caution aside in your exuberance with "life in the outdoors" this summer . . . certainly you neglected to protect your hair and scalp from the summer sun. Don't bemoan the wild, straw-like appearance of your hair. Ordinarily you would be faced with weeks, perhaps months of discouraging effort to bring your hair back to its normal softness, luster and manageability. And using shampoos and soaps that contain harsh, too-powerful chemicals . . . shampoos that rob your hair of the meager amount of natural oils left . . . will only make it more difficult, if not impossible, for you to achieve the hair beauty you want . . and must have to be attractive and alluring.

FOR QUICK, SAFE AND SURE HAIR-RECONDITIONING . . . USE

Contain Lanolin • Olive Oil • Castor Oil
whose marvelous penetrative, protective and reconditioning properties are known to all hair specialists and beauticians. Thousands of women have found out how beneficial the Cas-O-Lan Twins are for their hair and scalp . . . thousands have said "goodbye forever" to straw-like, dry, brittle and wild hair.

MAKE THIS 5-SECOND TEST
Rub a few drops of Cas-O-Lan Hair Creme on the back of your hand for JUST 5 SECONDS. All traces of Cas-O-Lan will disappear—positive and convincing proof of Cas-O-Lan's instantaneous penetration into your hair and scalp.

THERE'S NO SECRECY ABOUT CAS-O-LAN TWINS
No new experimental chemicals, no caustic alkalies, no alcohol, no soaps, nothing to kill or ruin your hair. We invite you to ask your beauty operator if there is anything better for your hair's beauty and health than LANOLIN, OLIVE AND CASTOR OIL.

CAS-O-LAN GIVES YOU PRECISE OIL CONTROL

Cas-O-Lan's Oils are scientifically blended so that your hair absorbs just the right amount . . . not too much . . . not too little. Don't confuse Cas-O-Lan with any other oil shampoo . . . it's perfect . . . it's different. CAS-O-LAN SHAMPOO LEAVES NO DINGY FILM . . . NO DUST-CATCHING DEPOSITS . . . NO BROKEN ENDS . . . NO WILD HAIR.

CAS-O-LAN HAIR CREME is not a gummy wave-set . . . not a sticky brilliantine . . . but a greaseless, vanishing, creamy and fragrant hair-conditioner that invigorates your hair and scalp . . penetrates each hair shaft, bringing out and highlighting your hair's natural sheen and imparting lasting elasticity, springiness and loveliness to your hair and wave. Just a few drops after and between shampoos keep your hair and waves in perfect condition and appearance. There is nothing better for your scalp than Cas-O-Lan Hair Creme. Its beneficial oils quickly penetrate the scalp—leaving it soft, loose, healthy; thus preventing maddening scalp dryness and itchiness which are generally the causes of accumulated dandruff.

BILL LYNCH HAS LAST LAUGH; HIS COLT PAYS $165

Emporium Wins at 81 to 1 Odds.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Friends of Billy Lynch, Chicago harbor master, like to josh him about his horse, Emporium. When Mr. Lynch, with an Irish eloquence, makes speeches about the speed, stamina, and courage of this sterling thoroughbred, certain judges and city officials greet him with derision. When Emporium runs, they snap their purses shut with a determined click, flatly refusing to bet, and when he comes in seventh, eighth, or ninth they gloat enthusiastically. In the face of these jeers, Mr. Lynch maintains an aloof dignity, biding his time.

His time came yesterday. As the betting began on the seventh race at Hawthorne, the so-called wise money began going in on Chicarra, beating her down to 2 to 1. Meanwhile Lynch's friends smiled patronizingly as Emporium's odds rose to 81 to 1.

It Looks Bad at Start.

Emporium had drawn No. 12, the extreme outside post position. The race was at a mile and seventy yards, with a short run to the first turn, making it almost certain that Lynch's horse would get a bad break for position and would lose many lengths going around the clubhouse bend. That was exactly what happened.

Lynch's friends grinned with a good humored tolerance as Emporium ran with the trailers going into the turn. But those who knew Jockey Nunzio Pariso's ability to handle a horse under these circumstances watched with keen interest as the boy, refusing to let Emporium waste himself in a futile dash for position, took him under restraint and worked him gradually toward the rail, saving every possible inch of ground.

Runs 10th in Back Stretch.

As they galloped down the back stretch, Emporium was striding easily in tenth position, many, many lengths behind the flying heels of Tack Point, Savitar, and Chicarra, which were trying to run away from the field.

Heading into the far turn, Emporium had made almost no progress and Lynch's friends, sitting back smugly, congratulated themselves on their excellent judgment in ignoring the beast and making worthwhile investments elsewhere. Within the next few seconds their mood changed from complacency to amazement and finally to consternation.

For Jockey Pariso, showing his magnificent judgment of pace, his accurate knowledge of his mount's capabilities, was making his move on the turn. And the Fates were with him, because in this large field he was finding racing room on the inside all the way. Lengthening his stride, Emporium swept past his rivals, one by one.

Sneaks In Along Rail.

As they straightened out for the helter-skelter drive through the stretch, Emporium was fifth and still there was a clear path before him along the rail. Tack Point, Chicarra, Savitar, and Sweep Through were still ahead of him with their jockeys whooping and whipping. Pariso raised his bat and whacked it down on Emporium's flank. Then he sat down and rode his horse as though this were the last furlong of the Kentucky Derby. In the last sixteenth Emporium got to the front and was drawing away at the finish. He was a length in advance of Chicarra, with Sherry B. third.

As the horses cantered back to be unsaddled, a deep sadness settled on Mr. Lynch's friends and their gloom became abysmal as the prices went up—$165.40 to win, $38.60 to place, and $20 to show.

A. L. Ferguson's Epidor scored his second consecutive victory, beating seven other sprinters in the six furlong Plucky Play purse which headed the program. George Wallace brought him home a neck in advance of Mrs.

Bears Defeat East Chicago All-Stars, 13-0

The Chicago Bears defeated a team of All-Stars, 13 to 0, last night in the sixth annual charity game on Roosevelt field in East Chicago, Ind., before a capacity crowd of 12,000.

Touchdowns were scored by Bernie Masterson, veteran Bear quarter back, in the second period, and by Dick Schweidler, half back, in the third. Joe Maniaci kicked the extra point after Schweidler's touchdown.

All-Stars Surprise.

The Bears penetrated to the 15 yard line in the first period, but were unable to score against the All-Stars' surprising strength.

A pass, Masterson to Les McDonald, netted fifteen yards and a first down on the 4 yard line in the second quarter, and, after Jack Manders, Bob Swisher, and Maniaci were unable to score on successive plunges, Masterson went over on fourth down.

Schweidler Runs 65 Yards.

A passing attack in the third quarter in which Stan Mondala, formerly of Missouri, tossed to Jack Craven of Illinois, carried the All-Stars deep into the Bears' territory, but came to grief with Dick Bassi's interception. Schweidler then broke away for 65 yards and his touchdown.

Frequent penalties, totaling 125 yards against the Bears, slowed down the play. Coach George Halas used every man on the Bear roster except Bob Snyder, half back, who has a sprained ankle, and Jack Torrance, the 285 pound guard.

CUBS TO ADOPT SPOILERS' ROLE AGAINST CARDS

French Seeks Fifth in Row Today.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs had a nice quiet, but unpleasant time yesterday. It was quiet because there was no work at hand and unpleasant because of the mental bruises lingering from their unexpected flop in Labor day's double-header with the Pirates. That was the day the big pennant parade was supposed to get under way, but instead it brought forth the Cubs' chronic weaknesses and put them so far in arrears that even their own press agents are discouraged.

Even if the Cubs should strike a big streak, unlikely considering their hitting and pitching deficiencies, they probably couldn't catch up—at least not catch both the teams now leading them. The Cubs have twenty-five more to play; the Reds thirty-two. The Reds have a chance to win games the Cubs have already tossed off their books. The Cubs are far behind the Reds in the loss column which is an advantage for the latter. The same goes in a comparison of Cubs and Cards' possibilities.

Now for Some Fun.

Even though their pennant cause is just about shot the Cubs are confronted by an opportunity to have some swell fun for the next few days. Starting this afternoon they open a three game engagement with the second place Cardinals who include a tormentor named Lon Warneke. Next they are scheduled for a two day session with the Reds. The Cubs, at least, might be able to throw scares into both these crowds.

Larry French, who has been a capable workman since the little disturbance over his long sentence to the bull pen, is going to take a shot at the Cardinals this afternoon. He handed 'em a shutout a few weeks ago to mark the start of a four game winning streak.

Worry from the East.

After the Cardinals and Reds leave the Cubs will endeavor to entertain the four eastern clubs, only one of which is in the first division. That program, however, can't be taken lightly. All four of them have been troublesome all season and two of them, Dodgers and Giants, are putting on strong finishes. So the Cubs have the added worry of being overtaken. Later on the Cubs have six more games with the Cards, three in St. Louis when they take their last road trip and the others here in the season's finale.

AMERICAN TRACK TEAM IN FRANCE; MAY SAIL ON REX

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—The touring American track team is in Nice, France, according to a state department cablegram received today by Daniel Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic union. The cable was sent through the state department by Guy Stollenwork of Memphis, Tenn., who requested additional funds to bring the team of ten athletes home. Ed Weir of the University of Nebraska is coach of the squad.

Ferris said he sent the extra money through the American consul with the suggestion that the team sail for home on the Rex the latter part of the week.

GALENTO IS TOO ROUGH; ANOTHER SPARMATE QUITS

Summit, N. J., Sept. 5 [Special].—Joe Jacobs, manager of Tony Galento, started a new search for sparring partners as Galento chased Mickey McAvoy out of camp today. McAvoy was the third sparring partner who has quit here because Galento is too rough. First he chased Lee Silvers. Abe Feldman packed up next. McAvoy went one round with Tony, but when the second round was half over, he ran to the dressing room.

The Boston Bees make a futile effort to pick Hugh Casey (No. 26), Brooklyn pitcher, off second base in yesterday's game won by the Dodgers, 6 to 2. Sebastian Sisti of the Bees takes this dive, but misses the ball (indicated by arrow) thrown by Pitcher Lou Fette.

Reds Beat Cards in 10th, 3 to 1; Increase Lead to Five Games

St. Louis, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds moved a step closer to the National league title today by nosing out the second place Cardinals, 3 to 1, in a thrilling ten inning struggle.

The victory stretched their advantage over the Cards to five full games. The game was a replay of Monday's 6-6 tie.

Walters Hero; Wins No. 22.

Hero of the game was Bucky Walters, who held the Cards to seven hits, then stepped up in the tenth inning with the score tied and drove a sizzling single to center field to score Frenchy Bordagaray from second base with the winning run. The Reds then scored another run to assure Walters of his twenty-second victory.

Bordagaray had smashed a hard single to short center but raced on to second and was safe when Lynn King juggled the ball.

Cards Tie Score in Sixth.

The Reds scored in the first inning on Eddie Joost's triple and Ival Goodman's single. The Cards tied it in the sixth on a double by Enos Slaughter and a single by Johnny Mize. Three Cincinnati scoring chances were nipped by spectacular double plays.

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Giants blanked the Phillies, 6 to 0, today behind the steady nine hit pitching of Cliff Melton to stretch their winning streak to four straight and maintain their half game hold on fourth place in the National league. Meantime they climbed within three games of the idle third place Chicago Cubs.

Although they were able to collect only seven hits off the combined hurling of Ray Harrell and Walter Kirksieck, the Giants bunched four of these in the first inning for five runs to put the game on ice, Frank Demaree hitting a home run with one on.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP).—Rookie Hugh Casey, pitching with only two days rest, handcuffed the Boston Bees with six hits today to lead the Dodgers to a 6 to 2 victory, his eleventh of the season.

Casey and Lou Fette hooked up in a tight pitching duel for three innings, but Dolph Camilli's 24th homer of the year, with a mate on base in the fourth inning broke it up. Score:

GAIN ON BOSTON BEHIND KNOTT'S 10 HIT HURLING

Eye 2d Place, 4½ Games Away.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 5.—The White Sox whizzed into Harry Eisenstat and Cleveland for four runs in the first inning today, then abandoned their offense to help Jack Knott hold the Indians. The game ended, Chicago, 4; Cleveland, 2.

It was the sixth Sox victory in a row over their most persistent challengers for third place. The outcome assured the Sox of the season series over the Clevelanders. They now have won 12 out of 20.

Knott rang up his eighth victory and was pretty good except for some insolence which netted the Indians their two runs after two were out in the third inning.

The Sox, having strengthened their hold on third place for the first time in weeks, began to eye second place, a goal that had seemed unattainable ten days ago. Tonight they are only 4½ games back of the slipping Boston Red Sox.

Sox Start Early.

Inasmuch as today's game was the playoff of yesterday afternoon's engagement, which was rained out after the Sox had made two runs in the first inning, the Chicagoans started off today to retrieve those two runs at the earliest possible moment. Bejma opened the game with a single to right and stopped at second on Radcliff's single to center. The runners advanced while Grimes was throwing out Kreevich, then Appling singled to right, Bejma scoring and Radcliff stopping at third until Chapman threw to the boxes, whereupon Rip, too, went home. Appling reached second on the error. This was two runs, but the Sox were in no mood to desist.

Walker singled to right, scoring Appling, and went to second on a throw to the plate. He was waved to third on a balk by Eisenstat. Next he tried to steal home and was safe when Hemsley dropped the ball after tagging him. Rosenthal popped to Grimes, but McNair singled to left and stole second. Tresh grounded out to Grimes.

Radcliff is Nipped.

The Sox added their sixth and seventh hits in the second inning, but were stopped short of the plate. Radcliff doubled with two out, but was nipped at home on Kreevich's single to right.

The Indians accomplished their first hit when Chapman singled with two out in the third. Trosky doubled off the screen in right, scoring Chapman and got home himself on Heath's single to left. Keltner then forced Heath.

Only nine Sox faced Eisenstat in the third, fourth, and fifth innings, but the Indians in the same span kept on threatening Grimes and Hemsley singled in the fourth and Chapman and Heath wasted hits in the fifth.

The Sox got away from the three up and three down business after two were out in the sixth, though they didn't get past second. After Appling and Walker supplied easy outs, Rosenthal walked and stopped at second on McNair's single to center. Tresh then fanned.

Sox Stay Active.

Knott opened the seventh with a single to left, but Bejma hit into a double play. Radcliff singled to right for his third and Chicago's tenth hit, but was forced by Kreevich.

Joe Dobson pitched the ninth for Cleveland. Tresh singled but was doubled off first when Knott bunted

Without missing a step and in perfect timing the flying champions were clocked at 31 seconds for the first quarter, then turned two consecutive 29½ quarters and came home in 28¼ seconds in the final dash.

Phellis of Greenwich, Conn., won the first heat, closely pressed by Kuno, driven by Harry Whitney, and then the latter won the decision in the second and third heats. It was a two horse affair for the final heat, the other six starters in the $9,375 event being ruled off. Kuno is owned by the Aiken stable of Aiken, S. C.

Jockey Hurt in Freak Fall at Narragansett

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 5 (AP).—An odd accident sent Jockey Bobby Merritt to the hospital today as John Hay Whitney's Hasty Wedding won the $1,300 Manton purse at Narragansett Park.

Crossing the finish line in last place after Hasty Wedding had beaten Mrs. Kay Smart's Saxonby by two lengths, Merritt's mount, Puzzle Dance, crossed her legs and fell. The filly attempted to rise, went down again and caught Merritt beneath her. Merritt struggled free then collapsed and was taken to a hospital.

At the hospital it was said he may be unable to ride for two months. His injuries were described as positive fractures of three transverse processes of the lumbar spine, possible fracture of the illium and possible internal injuries.

Hasty Wedding, an outsider which paid $13.20 for $2 in the mutuels, took the lead turning into the home stretch of the six furlong race and drew away to win in 1:12 1-5.

LADY MARYLAND WINS.

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Lady Maryland, a candidate for the $10,000 added Beldame handicap Saturday, a new event on the Aqueduct program, tuned up today by winning her first race in over a month. The 5 year old mare, owned by Gustave Ring, galloped seven furlongs in 1:24 3-5 to gain a two lengths victory in the Melpomene purse. Nearest to Lady Maryland at the finish were a pair saddled by Trainer Andy Schuttinger, Pixey Dell and Chicluna. The latter was five lengths behind her stablemate.

WAR'S EFFECT ON HOCKEY MAY BE TOLD THURSDAY

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 5 (AP).—The possibility that Europe's war clouds might darken America's professional hocky arenas this winter was considered here today, but Maurice Podoloff, president of the International-American league, most of whose players are Canadian citizens, was inclined to be optimistic about the situation.

"We can't tell where we stand until after the Canadian parliament meets Thursday," he said, speculating on the possibility that the Dominion might decide to aid Britain only by supplying the mother country with war materials and not send an army abroad.

Even in the latter event, Podoloff said, a majority of the players were married, most of them had children, and presumably would not be among the first called to the colors.

The league president said a meeting to draw up a schedule would be held Sept. 16 in New York and "we will consider the possible effects of the whole war situation then."

Epidor closed at 5 to 1 odds despite his good recent race. P. L. Kelley's Float Away was the 9 to 5 favorite, Royal Blue being quoted at 3 to 1 and Pelter at 7 to 2.

J. W. Parrish's Whim Wham, a good looking 2 year old filly, showed considerable promise when she started a campaign last May at Lincoln Fields. She ran well against such good performers as Drury Lane, Sassy Mate, and Downy Pillow. Figuring prominently in stake races without being quite good enough to win, she continued to try hard at Latonia and then at Washington, running in the money but failing to get home first.

Beats Mingling by Length.

Her day came yesterday when she went to the post against a field of six other juveniles of the $2,500 class in a six furlong sprint.

Soon after the break, Mingling went to the front but Jockey Paul Ryan hustled Whim Wham into a contending position, then steadied her around the turn. As they started home, Whim Wham came up on the outside of Mingling and took the lead. Then she very nearly threw away her opportunity by swerving repeatedly in the last furlong, interfering with Sidetrack, which was making a strong bid.

In the last fifty yards, Whim Wham finally straightened out and Ryan drove her across the finish line a length ahead of Mingling, which beat Sidetrack by a nose.

Count Natural Wins First.

W. E. Maloney's Count Natural, which had shown several good efforts at Washington Park, found the distance and the company just to his liking in the 6 furlong event for maiden 2 year olds which opened the program. He had gone that route only once before but had shown the ability to close considerable gaps toward the end of shorter races. Yesterday he was off slowly as usual, came wide on the stretch turn and went after the 2 to 1 favorite, Light Lark, which was setting the pace. A few strides from the finish he caught his rival and won by a neck. Pigeon Fly was third.

Stay Out won the second race, completing a daily double worth $124.40. Keeping close to the early pace, Stay Out worked her way to the front in the stretch and drew out to win by more than two lengths. High Renowr, closing powerfully, took second place from the weary favorite, Henryels Pick, which had set the pace most of the way.

Anglers Fish with Lines for War Reports

BY BOB BECKER.

Fishermen from the United States who have been tossing lures on lakes east and northeast of the Sault Ste. Marie, Canada, during the past week had their days divided into two fields of activity. They made trips to lakes to fish for brook, lake trout, or northern pike. These jaunts took up most of the day. As soon as the fishing was over the boys hustled back to camp to gather around the automobile radios so they could get the latest news about the war.

On our quick trip through the Laurentian highlands east and northeast of the Canadian Soo to fish for trout we found [for the first time in our many years of fishing experiences], the radio offering serious competition to shiny fishing tackle and hard fighting game fish.

Fish Lines for Aerials!

At one camp on Jobam lake right in the heart of the rocky highlands where there are hundreds of isolated fishing lakes, fishermen from the states were taking their rolls of copper trolling wire to make aerials for their car radios so that they could hear W-G-N and other American broadcasting stations. Two United States Army officers on vacation in this beautiful Ontario lake country led all other fishermen back to camp every night. They rushed over the rough gravel road, the only highway in the whole Mississippi White River Crown preserve, at top speed to reach camp and the radios telling about events in Europe.

Now, Back to Fishing.

If Chicago fishermen want a real Canadian wilderness country for brook trout, lake trout, and northern pike we suggest that they put a little memorandum in their "where to go" book on this country northeast of the Soo. It's reached by a gravel [forestry department] road from Thessalon. This all weather, winding road penetrates one of the most attractive lake regions that we've ever seen. It's a portage and paddle country with the best fishing available to the angler who will take a guide and canoe and hike back into the hills to lakes that are not touched by the road.

For big brook trout as well as large lakers we especially recommend the lake and forest country between the east and west branches of the Little White river.

SURGEON'S KNIFE CUTS WEHRLE OUT OF U. S. AMATEUR

Title Threat Undergoes Appendectomy.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Among the missing when the forty-third national amateur golf tournament opens next Monday morning at the North Shore Country club will be one of the outstanding advance favorites in the show. He is Wilford Wehrle, the blond Racine genius who figured to be a real threat to Champion Willie Turnesa's defense of his title.

Wilford Wehrle.

An appendectomy, performed at 6 o'clock Monday night, proved to be the stymie to Wilf's appearance in the amateur. Wehrle's 1939 record made him a choice to go far, if not the entire route, in next week's play. Last month he won the Chicago District Golf association championship with a 72 hole score that included a finishing round of 65. In addition, he was the leading amateur in the Western and St. Paul opens. In 1937, Wehrle reached the quarter-finals of the British amateur and came home to capture the Western amateur.

Stricken on Train.

Wehrle was stricken on a train near Lima, O., while en route home from the Hershey, Pa., open Sunday night. Dr. C. E. Constantine, one of Wilf's golfing pals, performed the operation in St. Mary's hospital, Racine, where he was resting comfortably last night.

It is expected that Art Floberg of Rockford will play in Wehrle's place. Art was the first alternate from the Chicago district, losing a six hole playoff against John [Pick] Wagner of Kildeer for the last of the regular 23 places allotted to Chicago for the tournament proper. Representing Beloit college, Floberg was a quarter-finalist in the National Intercollegiate at Des Moines in June. If Floberg accepts, Walter W. Carroll of Evanston becomes the first Chicago alternate.

Turnesa, Strafaci Arrive.

Turnesa drove in late yesterday afternoon from Buffalo, N. Y., where he won the Park club's invitation match play event, playing six rounds with none over par. With him was Frankie Strafaci, another New Yorker who figures to be a hard lad to beat in next week's big show. They practiced briefly, planning to go only nine holes. They will play a full round this afternoon.

Other out of town arrivals at North Shore yesterday included Trailer Bill Holt of Syracuse, N. Y., 1939 British amateur semi-finalist; Pat Abbott of Pasadena, Cal., runner-up to Turnesa for last year's crown; Bruce McCormick, also of Pasadena; Ernie Combs of Long Beach, Cal., and J. E. French Jr. of San Francisco. Art Doering of Medinah and Chick Evans of Edgewater led the local practice contingent.

The Chicago Women's District Golf association today will hold the final competitive event of its 1939 program—the champion of champions tournament—at the Beverly Country club. Champions and runners-up for club titles of member clubs are eligible for this one day medal play event. The C. W. D. G. A. will hold its fall meeting at Oak Park on Sept. 18.

Three of the Chicago district's interclub leagues will conduct their final sessions within the next two days. The North Shore Golf league will gather this afternoon at Skokie, while tomorrow will see the windup tournaments of the West District league at Oak Park and the South District league at Beverly.

Willie Turnesa, national amateur champion, will join up with Matt Matteson, home club professional, against George Dawson of Glen Oak, state amateur titleholder, and Jock Hutchison of Glen View in an exhibition match tomorrow at the Ridge Country club, 106th street and California avenue. The match will start at 3 p. m.

The fourth annual tug-o-war golf tournament of the Chicago Park district will begin next Sunday morning. All golfers residing south of Madison street will compete in a qualifying round at Jackson park, while those living north of Madison will play on the Waveland avenue course in Lincoln park. The low twenty scorers for each side in these trials will meet in the final north-and-south tug-o-war, to be played at Jackson park on Sept. 17.

Equitables and Nationals Meet in Softball Playoff

Equitable Life's softball team, loser in its last game, will try to stay in the race for the championship in the Insurance league playoffs, opposing Miller's Nationals in Grant park tonight.

GREENBERG HITS HOME RUN; TIGERS BEAT BROWNS, 4-2

Breaks 2 to 2 Deadlock in Eighth Inning.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5 (AP).—Six hit pitching by Al Benton and Hank Greenberg's third home run in two days swept the Detroit Tigers to a 4 to 2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns today and an even break in the series.

Hank Greenberg.

Benton and George Gill dueled before a crowd of only 1,797 in a play-off of yesterday's 5-5 tie, and the decision rested on Greenberg's 25th homer of the season into the left field pavilion with none on in the eighth, breaking a 2-2 deadlock.

Shortly afterward Pete Fox doubled. Trying to steal third and thus getting a big start, Fox raced all the way home when Frank Croucher grounded out to Mark Christman behind second base. Score:

Cap Neal, 70, Long Baseball Figure, Dies

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 5 (AP).—William S. [Captain] Neal, 70, veteran major and minor league baseball figure, died today after suffering a paralytic stroke.

Neal was connected with professional baseball twenty-five years—since 1915 when he was a scout for the Philadelphia Phillies who that year won their only National league pennant.

Discovers Herman, McCarthy.

From 1919 until last fall, he was vice president and general manager of the Louisville American association club. He retired following sale of the club to Tom Yawkey, Donie Bush, and Frank McKinney.

Neal had a reputation as one of baseball's shrewdest scouts. His most notable contributions to the major leagues were Earle Combs, Billy Herman and Joe McCarthy, now manager of the New York Yankees and a former Louisville manager.

Organizes City League.

He helped organize and played first base in the old Louisville City league, believed to be the second of its kind in the nation. As captain of the team, he received his nickname, "Cap."

He induced Barney Dreyfuss, then connected with a Louisville distillery, to accept the presidency of the league and thus introduced to baseball the man who later became owner of the Louisville club and still later president of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

POSTPONE BOUT TO EXAMINE CUT ON LELLO'S NOSE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 5 (AP).—A boxing card scheduled here tomorrow night was postponed, possibly to next Monday or later, pending a state athletic commission physician's report on the condition of Pete Lello, Gary, Ind., lightweight. Lello is matched with Billy Hodges, Detroit Negro.

Chairman Ray Sheehy of the commission said Lello was reported to have a bad cut across his nose, suffered in a workout.

Finland Delays Decision on Calling Off Olympics

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 5.—No decision has been reached yet to suspend preparations for the 1940 Olympic games because of the war, according to an announcement today by the Finnish organizing committee.

AMBY SCHINDLER RETURNS TO AID SO. CALIFORNIA

Not that the genial, handsome University of Southern California back field star ever has been very far away, but he did miss the 1938 football season because of a knee operation and now at the age of 23 he is eagerly awaiting a return to competition.

Southern California didn't show much that was startling in the football line during the seasons of 1936 and 1937 except Schindler, who crashed wide open into opposing lines whether his teammates gave him any interference help or not.

Triple Threat Quarter Back.

Playing in the triple threat spot of quarter back, [Amby] sparked comparatively weak Trojan teams to a number of victories. One of his ball-carrying high spots occurred against Stanford in 1936, when he led Southern California to a 14 to 7 victory. Two years ago he took the national football limelight for a day when he drove his team down the field for a sensational last quarter 13 to 12 victory over Ohio State.

It was during the latter part of the 1937 season that Schindler had the cartilage of his knee smashed in a game with Oregon State. Even though he played only a few minutes of that game and missed the final two contests entirely, he led the Trojans in scoring for the season with nine touchdowns for 54 points. He was also one of the coast's leading ground gainers with 599 yards in 134 tries for an average of 4.5 yards per play.

Undergoes Operation.

During the summer of 1938 Amby underwent an operation for the removal of the broken knee cartilage. The operation was entirely successful but the process of building back the strength of the injured leg was slow. It would have been possible for him to play last season but the Trojan medical staff would let him take no chances and kept him out of competition.

Now the injured leg is pronounced fully recovered and Schindler is ready to take the ball and drive into the line with the fast pickup and high knee action that is characteristic of his slashing play. The inactivity of last year has sent his weight up from 180 pounds to 187. He believes he will play at 182, which will be the highest weight he ever has packed in competition.

Favorites in Mason-Dixon Golf Triumph

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 5 (AP).—Defending Champion Dorothy Traung of San Francisco and Virginia Guilfoil of Syracuse, N. Y., led favorites through the first round in the annual Mason-Dixon women's golf tournament today.

Miss Traung shot one over par on the outgoing nine to eliminate Cecilia Einstein of Jackson Heights, N. Y., 9 and 8. Miss Guilfoil, the 1937 titleholder, defeated Mrs. E. F. Buescher of Willoughby, O., also 9 and 8.

Jean Kyer of Ann Arbor, Mich., who tied with Miss Guilfoil for the medal, ran into unexpected opposition from Mrs. J. H. Devisser of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., but finally won, one up.

The Ohio state champion, Mrs. Linton Fallis of Toledo, scored a decisive 8 and 7 triumph over Mrs. David Beatty of Warren, Pa.

RIGNEY SEEKS 11TH IN ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 5.—John D. Rigney of the White Sox will seek his eleventh straight victory and his fourteenth of the season in the opener of a three game series with the Browns in St. Louis tomorrow.

Ted Lyons, who warmed up yesterday afternoon but had no chance to pitch because of rain, will pitch the first game of the double-header in St. Louis Thursday; Thornton Lee the second.

It was announced late this afternoon that Joe Kuhel, hit on the head by a batted ball in fielding practice yesterday, had been dismissed from the hospital.

Play to Open Tomorrow in Softball Meet

The world's amateur softball tournament, conducted by the Amateur Softball Association of America, will open tomorrow evening in Soldiers' field with four of the ninety participating teams taking part in two games.

Games tomorrow night feature the defending champions in the men's and women's classes. The Alameda, Cal., girls' 1938 winners will meet the Dr. Peppers of Miami Beach, Fla., and the Phlar Café, men's winner last year, will meet the Park Ridge Merchants, Metropolitan Chicago champions.

Included in the turney will be teams from Porto Rico, Canada, Toronto, District of Columbia, and possibly Saskatchewan. The latter is a girls' team which will participate if they are successful in getting passports.

Champions One and All.

Each team taking part in the five day meet is a state, metropolitan, or provincial champion. Every section of the United States will be represented, and for the first time in the history of the tourney a team from outside the North American continent will be on hand. Porto Rico is the team and is already in the United States.

Following Thursday's play at Soldiers' field the activity will switch to six parks—Shrewbridge, Normal, and Langley on the south side, and Mills, Parichy, and Spencer fields on the west side.

Play in Six Parks.

Play will be held at the six parks through Friday morning, afternoon, and night, and Saturday morning and afternoon, after which play will be cut off at Spencer and Langley fields. Saturday evening the remaining teams will compete in four parks, narrowing the field to semi-finalists in the men's and women's classes.

Play then will move back into Soldiers' field for semi-final games Sunday night and championship contests on Monday evening.

Thirty lads of more than 60 years of age will choose up sides on Sept. 17 and engage in a softball contest on the Morton High school athletic field. The only requirement for playing is to have passed the 60 year mark.

The game is being organized by L. C. Hineman, 2121 South 48th court, Cicero, and Charles J. Riha, 5509 West Cermak road. The oldest player will be John L. Novak, retired banker, who is 84 years old. A practice game will be held Friday night.

Australians to Leave Cup in America

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Although the Australian Davis cup players today had the famous tennis trophy bought and paid for with the coin of conquest, they are expected to leave it here until after the war. The Australians, who hope to compete in the national championships while waiting to sail for war service, have virtually decided to let the United States retain the trophy for safekeeping, as their predecessors did under the same circumstances in 1914.

Most tennis followers wondered today how the Davis cuppers from Australia managed to come out on top after losing the first two of the five matches to the United States, but Walter Pate, captain of the American team, is not a bit surprised. Despite his blast at the press for taking what he called a defeatist attitude Pate admitted today that he thought the Australians would win from the beginning.

The losing leader even called the turn, to himself, on which contests his charges would cop. He figured they would enter the doubles with a two point lead, but that their only chance of winning lay in the possibility of Riggs beating Adrian Quist yesterday.

DAVIS CANCELS 8 ROUND FIGHT AGAINST MOTISI

Seek Balmer as White City Substitute.

Verle Davis, Kankakee welterweight, yesterday was forced to cancel an eight round bout against Tony Motisi of the Catholic Youth organization in White City Friday. Matchmaker Sam Abruscato is seeking Johnny Balmer of Peoria as Motisi's foe. Bob Nestell, Los Angeles heavyweight, meets Tom Kenneally, also of the C. Y. O., in a ten round return contest which heads the White City card.

Clarence Brown, south side heavyweight, is training at Joe Louis' camp in Northville, Mich., for a ten round headliner against Lem Franklin in Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Tuffy Griffith, former heavyweight challenger, yesterday was granted a referee's license by Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioners Sheldon Clark and James R. Fitzpatrick of the Illinois boxing board. . . . Nate Bolden, Chicago middleweight contender, has been reinstated after being under suspension since June 8 for coming in overweight against Milo Theodorescu in Chicago Stadium. . . .

Fans are questioning the fairness of the California boxing commission in its ruling denying Johnny Risko a license to box there because of his age. Risko, who is making a comeback after being out of the ring one year, is 35 years old. The California age limit is 38. Jack Roper, whose one round knockout at the hands of Joe Louis on April 17 was responsible for an investigation of the game in California, also is 35. He still is competing out there. . . .

Reports are current that Sammy Angott, No. 2 lightweight contender, will refuse an offer to meet Davey Day, No. 3 challenger, in the Coliseum late this month because Angott is in line for a title contest with Champion Lou Ambers. . . . Efforts to arrange a heavyweight match in Chicago between Red Burman and Gunnar Barlund may fail on account of Burman's unimpressive conquest of Joe Lipps, a stablemate, June 7, 1937. Following the fiasco the Illinois boxing board barred Lipps for life.

BOARD GETS PLAN FOR ONE OF CITY'S 2 SUPERHIGHWAYS

Northwest Route First on Ryan's List.

The county board was asked in a resolution yesterday by Commissioner Daniel Ryan to construct a $30,000,000 superhighway extending fifteen miles in a northwesterly direction from the central business district. The superhighway would be built under the $60,000,000 safety roads program authorized this year by the legislature.

Daniel Ryan.

Commissioner Ryan, chairman of the roads and bridges committee, stated that his proposal was the first submitted to any governmental body with authority to appropriate necessary funds and carry out the proposed construction.

Invokes Legislative Measure.

He asked that $30,000,000 be allocated to the project under the legislative measure which authorized a county bond issue in that amount. The bonds are to be paid off in twenty years from state motor fuel tax funds.

Commissioner Ryan proposed that the superhighway begin at the outer drive and Congress street, follow the drive north to a point near the Chicago river, then turn west to the northwest extremity of the central district, and parallel the North Western railroad tracks along Avondale avenue.

Insists on Four Lanes.

The commissioner advocated that the highway extend to form junctures with Milwaukee avenue, the Northwest highway, and Higgins and Algonquin roads. His resolution specified that the improvement consist of not less than four through trafic lanes, together with bridges, railway and highway grade separations, ramps and service highways as required, and with no cross traffic or left turns. All depressed sections of the route are to be open overhead.

County engineers explained that alternate plans are being drafted, and that as yet no estimate was possible as to how much of the highway would be elevated and how much depressed.

Would Keep to Drive Level.

Commissioner Ryan said that the section along the outer drive would probably keep to the present drive level.

The legislature has authorized the city to engage in another $30,000,000 superhighway project, with the route put at the discretion of the city authorities. The state is empowered to augment the $60,000,000 of local funds, but the extent of its assistance has yet to be determined. A joint engineering committee representing city, state and county met for the first time last Friday to plan a coordinated superhighway program under terms of the state enactment.

DIES IN DOCTOR'S OFFICE.

HOSPITAL HEADS ARRIVE TO STUDY KEY PROBLEMS

The seventh annual Institute for Hospital Administrators began eleven days of sessions yesterday at Judson court, University of Chicago, and at various Chicago hospitals. Enrolment was limited to 100. Those registering came from thirty states and from Canada. The institute is conducted by the American Hospital association and affiliated organizations and has for its purpose the development of better hospital methods.

Dr. G. Harvey Agnew.

The members were greeted officially by Dr. G. Harvey Agnew, Toronto, president of the American Hospital association, and by Bert W. Caldwell, Chicago, executive secretary of the association. Dr. Agnew lectured on the organization of the hospital in general.

Hospitals of the United States and Canada, it was reported, received in 1938 more than 10,500,000 admissions and cared for more than one million births. One out of every thirteen men, women and children became a patient in a registered hospital during the year.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS 60 DAYS; 3 OTHERS JAILED

Safety Court Impounds Licenses of Seven.

John Petrovich, 25 years old, 1157 West 19th street, was one of four motorists sentenced to jail by Judge Francis Borelli in Safety court yesterday. Petrovich was sent to the Bridewell for sixty days for driving while intoxicated.

He was arrested Saturday after his automobile hit a parked car at Throop and 19th streets. Police said Petrovich told them: "You wouldn't have caught me so easily if my car hadn't been wrecked."

Others Get Jail Terms.

ALBERT BAUER, 47 years old, 3821 Herndon avenue, twenty days in county jail, driving while intoxicated.

JACOB SCHMALL, 54 years old, Lansing, Ill., twenty days in county jail on plea of guilty to driving while intoxicated.

WILBUR CLARK JR., 23 years old, of 2444 West 72d street, Elmwood Park, ten days in county jail, reckless driving.

Driver's licenses of these drivers were revoked for a year. The licenses of seven others were impounded when their cases were continued. These drivers are:

THOMAS CLARK, 7443 Eberhardt avenue, reckless driving.

Judge Borrelli was surprised, but pleased when he found only eignt new cases awaiting him after the Labor day week-end. He gave credit to Courtesy week and commented that war news may have had a sobering influence on drivers.

Ten motorists arrested for failure to have driver's licenses were fined $25 and costs, the maximum, by Judge John Gutknecht in Trafic court.

TRUCK ACCIDENTS UP 9 PCT., SAFETY COUNCIL REPORTS

An increase of about nine per cent in truck accidents for the first six months of this year over the last six months of 1938 was reported yesterday by the Greater Chicago Safety council.

SUSPEND 2 PARK POLICE IN ROW WITH COUPLE

Policemen Samuel Blake and Francis Walker of the park district force were suspended by Chief James Kerr yesterday as a result of a dispute with a young couple in Lincoln park. Chief Kerr said the policemen will face charges before the trial board. In addition they and a civilian companion will appear in Town Hall police court today.

Kerr said the policemen and Robert Bode, 27 years old, 437 Deming place, approached Miss Harriet Stevens, 22, a student nurse at Children's Memorial hospital, and her escort, Arnold Reetz, 20, a clerk at the hospital, who were sitting on a bench. The policemen were off duty. The chief said Blake admitted pushing a gun into Reetz's ribs. Blake was locked up last night on an attempted assault charge. Walker and Bode were released on bond on disorderly conduct charges.

NEW U. S. GRAND JURY MAY RENEW SKIDMORE QUIZ

The September federal grand jury was sworn in yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. The court appointed as foreman George Hancock, 374 Anthony street, Glen Ellyn, a retired business man.

It was reported the new grand jury may dig further into the affairs of William R. [Billy] Skidmore, reputed gambling syndicate collector who was indicted last Friday for income tax evasion.

"The investigation into the incomes of certain persons in Chicago's so-called gambling world is not completed," said United States Attorney William J. Campbell.

IF HEAVEN CAN WAIT, SO MUST SISTER PORTER

Fake Father Divine Agent Skips Rent.

Heaven may be the destination of Father Divine, but at present the father has no inclination to extend its territorial limits to Chicago. And that raises a question concerning the destination of Daniel Travis, who is reported to be "on the lam."

Travis, an itinerant colored publicity man, arrived recently from Milwaukee, representing himself as Father Divine's advance man. He announced that the father would make his Chicago advent yesterday. A chorus of Harlem hosannahs by a trainload of accompanying "angels" would herald the event, said Travis.

Paints a Thrilling Picture.

"The father will establish another heaven here," his self styled spokesman proclaimed. "There will be rallies at the Savoy ballroom and at the Coliseum. There will be moonlight boat rides on the lake. Bells are ringing in many hearts."

Travis put up at Sister Nathaniel Porter's boarding house at 214 East 42d street, where he enjoyed star status in the rare moments his social calendar did not call for his presence in more elevated circles.

There was no sign of Father Divine on the appointed day. The Harlem cultist's Chicago followers, yielding to a natural doubt, called first upon the Savoy ballroom, and then upon Sister Porter.

The Father Is After Him.

The delegation learned at the ballroom that no reservation had been made, and that, further, Father Divine had sent an emissary here from New York who had endeavored to catch up with Travis. The father, it seemed, had no intention of extending heaven to Chicago.

At Sister Porter's, the delegation received a succinct reply to its inquiries about Travis.

ACTION TO VOID ANNULMENT FILED BY JANE O'LEARY

Young O'Leary and his mother, who live at 1700 North Waukegan road, were named defendants. O'Leary is a student at Kenyon college, Gambier, O. He and Miss Heaney, daughter of a decorator, were married in January, 1937, when each was 17 years old.

The annulment was ordered in the Lake county Circuit court Sept. 6, 1938. Mrs. O'Leary contends she was deceived about her legal rights and that O'Leary Jr. gave false testimony when he testified there had been no marriage in fact.

CHARITABLE AND PENAL INMATES COST $291 YEAR

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 5 (AP).—The public welfare department estimated today it will cost Illinois $291.55 annually for the current biennium to care for each of approximately 55,000 inmates of the state's penal and charitable institutions.

Department statisticians said this would be a 15.1 per cent decrease compared to the per capita cost of $343.48 in 1929-'31. The average annual per capita cost was $296.57 for the 1937-'39 biennium.

They reported that while the number of the state's wards had increased 46.6 per cent in the last decade, the cost of care and maintenance had increased 24.4 per cent.

Day by Day on the Farm
By Homer Neisz

Free Swans Offered.

Sept. 5, 1939.

If you would like some beautiful white swans you may be able to get them at the Du Page county farm this fall. The farm will give away two pairs of white swans to persons prepared to take good care of them. Landowners who have ponds or other bodies of water for keeping swans may have them. They are from flocks that have lived on the farm ponds for many years.

Instruction to Be Given.

A windmill at the swan pond runs during winter days to provide open water for the swans. They swim in it on the coldest days. A spring fed pond or stream that does not freeze makes an ideal place for swans.

The farm flockmaster will provide instructions on how he feeds and cares for the swans there. They require most attention during the winter. Last winter he fed them a grain ration mixed in the following proportions: Wheat, 100 pounds; barley, 100 pounds; whole corn, 50 pounds; cracked corn, 50 pounds; millet, 50 pounds, and kaffir corn, 50 pounds.

The birds also were given green vegetables, such as spinach and lettuce leaves. They were fed a little chopped meat once or twice a week during the winter and were kept supplied with oyster shell. In summer the swans can gather a good portion of their own feed, insects and other natural foods around the ponds.

Swans Like Privacy.

These majestic birds are a constant source of interest and amusement. They like privacy, especially during the nesting season, and while the cygnets, or young swans, are growing up.

They build their nests near the water. Both the pens [females] and cobs [males] work day after day in early spring, assembling materials and building their huge nests.

The cobs guard the nests constantly during the long incubation period when the pens are on the eggs. Nesting swans are suspicious of even their best friends. They always try to chase the flockmaster away when he scatters feed for them. At other times their attitude toward the flockmaster, approaching with feed, is one of appreciation and friendliness.

ENGLAND'S BANK PEGS CURRENCY IN DOLLAR VALUE

Sterling Rate Made $4.02 to $4.06.

The value of British currency was fixed yesterday in terms of the American dollar by the Bank of England. Gold was valued in the London market at 168 shillings, the highest point in history. These moves were interpreted as an indication the Bank of England had begun rigid wartime control of England's currency. Meanwhile, the London Stock exchange announced it would reopen tomorrow.

New York banks reported the Bank of England announced it would buy sterling at $4.02 and sell at $4.06. This, in effect, fixed definite limits for operations in foreign exchange transactions.

Sterling closed at New York at $4.07 for a net loss of 13 cents from Saturday's final price. Two weeks ago the unit was quoted at $4.68. The Canadian dollar moved lower with the pound, finishing 2.87½ cents off at 91.62½ cents. French currency dropped 0.074 cent at 2.33¼ cents.

Most Other Moneys Lower.

Among other European currencies, the Belgian belga was off 0.05 cent at 17.15 cents. Dutch currency declined 0.38 cent at 53.12 cents. The Swiss franc lost 0.30 cent at 22.50 cents. The Italian lira was unchanged at 5.21 cents.

Prior to Aug. 25 the British government regulated the value of sterling indirectly through the open market for gold and through operations of the stabilization fund. The "peg" for sterling was withdrawn at that time. The currency immediately dropped from its fixed rate of $4.68, touching $4.12. Since then it has ranged generally between $4.20 and $4.40.

Besides fixing the rate for sterling, the Bank of England took over the direct purchase and sale of gold from the London open market. This was described by foreign exchange dealers as part of the British government's move to "peg" sterling under wartime conditions. The gold price of 168 shillings compared with 160 shillings on Friday. The market was closed Saturday.

Stock Trading Restricted.

The London Stock exchange was closed Sept. 1 following the government's order for the evacuation of children and others from the city. No reopening date was set then. Trading since that time has been conducted on a highly restricted scale. Cash transactions only were permitted. Minimum prices were fixed for dealings in government securities. An agreement among brokers also set the minimum for rail issues.

Trading on the London Stock exchange will be conducted today along similar lines, according to the exchange's announcement.

The London gold price of 168 shillings an ounce was equivalent to 33.93 cents an ounce, based on sterling at the rate of $4.04 in terms of the dollar. Handling of gold bars, the Bank of England announced, was restricted to six firms which have been part of the gold market. The normal procedure of gold price fixing will be suspended.

Price of Silver Fixed.

Similar regulations were put into effect in the silver market. The spot price was fixed at 20⅝ pence an ounce, equivalent to 37.49 cents an ounce on the basis of sterling at $4.04 in terms of the dollar. This compared with the equivalent of 37.24 cents an ounce on Friday with the pound at $4.19. The silver market, like the gold market, was closed Saturday.

As the London gold price reached a new peak, about $36,000,000 of the yellow metal arrived in New York aboard the President Roosevelt and Samaria. These shipments followed the arrival on Monday of $45,550,000 on the Queen Mary.

The New York Federal Reserve bank reported the engagement of $1,804,000 of gold in England as of some previous date for shipment to this country. The bank's daily gold statement showed imports of $96,464,000 from England.

War Risk Rates Raised on Canadian Shipments

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Marine underwriters here today sharply increased war risk insurance rates on shipments to and from Canadian ports, particularly on ships not flying the American flag. No change was made in the premium for shipments to and from the United Kingdom and continental ports to Gibraltar. The present neutrality of Italy was recognized by the underwriters, who reduced the rate for Mediterranean shipments to the United States from 8¼ per cent to 5 per cent of cargo value for foreign flagships and from 7¾ to 3 for American ships. Far eastern rates were raised.

Treasury Will Shun Any Step for Refunding

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—The European war has doomed the Roosevelt administration's era of easy borrowing at low rates, according to reliable opinion here.

Coincident with further sharp declines in government securities today, the treasury announced that it will do no financing in September. Last week it was announced there would be no borrowing of new funds. Today the treasury decided it will do no refunding either. This means that the next regular financing date will be Jan. 15.

Treasury officials said they did not want to disrupt the market. They have publicly expressed confidence that a financing operation could be conducted successfully and have said that they are not disturbed by the bond market decline. That they are disturbed privately, however, was indicated by the fact that a group of bankers will be called in to survey the bond market and advise the treasury on appropriate action.

Committee Personnel Named.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today announced that the group, called a special advisory committee, will consist of W. R. Burgess, vice chairman of the National City Bank of New York; Tom K. Smith, president of the Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis; and Earle Bailie, of Wilton, Conn., chairman of the Tri-Continental corporation and a member of J. and W. Seligman & Co. Morgenthau indicated that others might be added later. The advisors get no salary, but may receive up to $25 a day as expense money.

Burgess formerly was connected with the Federal Reserve board, handling government financing. Smith and Bailie are former assistants to the secretary of the treasury. Concerning the government bond market, Morgenthau said that he felt "it's doing fine, considering everything."

No Special Maturities Near.

Concerning the decision to eliminate September financing this year, it is true that there are no special maturities and the treasury's cash position is favorable. But there must be considerable planning for the remainder of the fiscal year.

There will be note maturities of 526 million dollars on Dec. 15, 1 billion 378 million on March 15 and 738 million next June 15. Besides, the treasury must raise cash through new securities to finance the deficit for this year. The amount depends upon how favorable business and tax collections are, but estimates run between 3 and 5 billion dollars.

The treasury has been accustomed to borrowing at exceedingly low rates—some of the bill offerings have sold for more than par—but recently the rates have hardened.

May Use Short Term Notes.

The present drop in the bond market, coinciding with the rise in stocks, is viewed as a turning point by experts. The next financing undertaken by the treasury is expected to be in short term notes or long term bonds at a higher yield than the government has been accustomed to paying recently. The European war will have great influence in treasury financing policy.

If it is believed the war will be of short duration, short term obligations can be expected. Otherwise, long term bonds will be in order, according to the experts. President Roosevelt's action on neutrality and restrictions placed upon business will also be determinating factors.

It is known that the administration has extensive plans for strict regulation over finance and industry in event of undue war activity. Tighter regulations would retard the business boom and discourage investment. This would tend to bolster the administrations's easy money policy.

On the contrary, if the normal rise in interest rates, associated with improved business, is permitted, it is expected to be gradual.

La Salle Street Busiest Since 1929 Rampage

La Salle street yesterday presented scenes of activity not witnessed since 1929. Brokerage houses were jammed with more customers than brokers have seen since the collapse of the big bull market nearly ten years ago.

The public is again on a buying rampage, brokers agreed.

Some observers said the public appeared to be applying more care to the selection of securities than ten years ago, when indiscriminate buying brought soaring prices in "blue chips" and "cats and dogs" alike. Others said many dabblers in stocks were already "in the market over their heads," and that if 1929 had taught any lesson at all, it has been forgotten.

Based on World War Trends.

At any rate, old time speculators and the new crop which has appeared within the last ten years are gauging their purchases according to what they experienced, or have been told, on the action of stocks during the world war.

The older traders have not forgotten the phenomenal advances in steel, copper, munitions, sugar, and other "war babies" of that day. The new speculators have heard the stories from the old timers or have queried the brokers, who have been deluged with questions about the war markets.

Brokerage houses have canceled staff vacations and have called back many of their employés who had left the city on holidays. The closest approach to yesterday's activity since 1929 was the big market which accompanied the price breaks of 1933 and the scramble for liquor stocks which accompanied the repeal of prohibition.

Staffs Toil Into Night.

Lights along La Salle street burned far into the night as commission house employés worked to clear up yesterday's big volume of business. Many new clerks and former employés were put to work temporarily, extra telegraph operators hired, and new printers installed.

Margin clerks usually employed on grain accounts in the brokerage offices were transferred to stocks to handle the rush of business. The brokerage staffs would have been hopelessly swamped had the business in grains spurted as did that in stocks, commission house officials said.

May Increase Staffs.

Margin clerks, customers' men, and other classes of brokerage employés who had been dismissed by the hundreds when interest in the speculative markets dwindled to the vanishing point, now have brighter hopes of reëmployment. Commission house partners said that if the current activity continues, their office personnel will have to be augmented.

"The public has taken the market in its teeth, just as in 1929," one broker said. "The speculators care only about the steels, coppers, and grain. Many of the people who are trading in 10,000 bushels of wheat on margin should, according to their ability to take risks, be trading in only 1,000 bushels."

In addition to crowding into the brokerage houses for a glimpse of the blackboards, and the new mechanical boards which have appeared since the last bull market, the speculative public jammed visitors' galleries at the Chicago Stock exchange and the Board of Trade.

Against the bustling activity on the stock exchange, the grain market presented a curious picture to the visitors. Brokers in the grain pits had nothing to do after grain prices had reached the maximum limits permissible under government and exchange regulations. This brought trading to a standstill.

One of the luxuries of "the good old days" has disappeared. Women speculators and customers no longer have the exclusive brokerage facilities which were at their disposal ten years ago, when brokers set up private rooms, complete with makeup facilities, for the exclusive use of women.

Other changes have been made since 1929. From the brokers' standpoint, the chief change has been the rigid rules and regulations set up under the securities and exchange act, which prohibits pool operations and market manipulation.

ILLINOIS OIL OUTPUT RANKS THIRD; OTHER STATES NEAR NORMAL

Illinois oil production last week ranked third in the nation as six major producing states accelerated output after a brief shutdown. Daily average yield in this state rose 327 barrels to a new record of 311,439, the Oil and Gas Journal reported yesterday.

Illinois output was exceeded only by the daily average production of 793,787 barrels in Texas and 600,800 barrels in California. Normally in third place, Oklahoma's production was only 125,986 barrels daily, after a complete shutdown in the preceding week.

National output gained 899,652 barrels to 2,345,146 for the week ended Sept. 2, the oil publication stated. This marked the return to nearly normal operations of oil wells in the mid-continent area which were partly or entirely closed for about two weeks in an attempt to restore favorable prices for crude oil.

Unhampered by state restrictions, producers in Illinois have expanded output to successive new highs. Last week 39 new wells were completed, making 3,845 wells in operation, a new peak. The journal indicated the completions of new wells had dropped although output had risen to new heights.

BUTTER FUTURES ADVANCE TO NEW TOP FOR SEASON

November butter futures opened 1 cent a pound higher yesterday, moved upward another 0.90 cent to a new seasonal top of 25.90 cents, and closed with the full gain. Turnover was the heaviest since November, 1936, totaling 5,664,000 pounds. Heavy profit taking sales failed to stem the rush of war-inspired buying. In the cash market butter advanced ½ to 1½ cents a pound.

Egg futures trading, amounting to 8,652,000 dozens, was the largest in two years. The October contract climbed 1.20 cents a dozen and November closed 1.45 cents higher. The latter contract reached a new high for the season. Cash eggs were quoted unchanged to ½ cent a dozen above Saturday's levels.

Thomson & McKinnon reported an inquiry from the firm's Toronto office for 150,000 dozens of fresh eggs and an equal amount of early stored eggs for immediate shipment to Montreal. The eggs are intended for Great Britain.

Federal, High Priced Bonds Hit by Selling

Transactions on the New York exchange rocketed to a record high of $58,610,000, including a new peak of $48,680,000 in federal bonds. The superseded record was $42,948,000, including $39,033,000 in federal issues, established Dec. 30, 1918.

European government dollar loans were crushed under the avalanche of nervous selling.

Investors Seek Larger Returns.

With investors anticipating higher interest rates and higher returns from corporate stocks, high-grade bonds slumped further from low levels reached Friday and Saturday.

United States government bonds closed as much as 1¼ points lower for the long-term loans. Leading dealers in federal securities said that there was little over-the-counter trading after the close of the exchange.

Dollar loans of Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Germany, and Norway crumbled 4 to 15 points, with closing prices near the low points for the day. Most Cuban and South American government issues, however, were strong with some advances of 5 points and more.

Speculative Bonds Advance.

Speculative bond issues moved against this downtrend, with secondary rails advancing sprightly. It was said that speculators were attracted by the possibility that the railroads will be called to carry heavy volumes of freight to meet war demands.

Bonds of corporations which were believed to be potential beneficiaries of war business attracted speculators. In bursts of wild bidding prices soared more than 10 points. Baltimore and Ohio refunding 6s gained 5 points, Francisco Sugar 6s, 11; Interlake Iron 4s, 10, and Illinois Central 4¾s, 4½ points.

The Dow-Jones averages of bond prices showed that ten higher grade railroad bonds gained 0.20 point and ten second grade railroad bonds shot up 2.97 points. Ten public utility bonds lost 1.13, and ten industrial bonds 1.16 points. The average for the forty bonds gained 0.22.

CHECKS CASHED IN MIDDLE WEST AREA DECLINE

Check transactions in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district in the week ended Aug. 30 declined 6.1 per cent from the preceding week's level, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

Debits [checks written] against individual deposit accounts of 159 banks in forty-one clearing house cities in the district totaled $1,020,164,000, compared with $1,086,272,000 in the week ended Aug. 23. The total for the latest week represented an advance of 3.7 per cent over the total of $983,719,000 for the corresponding week last year.

For Chicago banks alone the total was $609,288,000 in the week ended Aug. 30. This compared with $660,466,000 in the preceding week and $620,099,000 in the corresponding week of 1938.

SOARING PRICES MARK WAR BOOM IN COMMODITIES

Many Futures Gain Limit Permitted.

Commodity prices soared yesterday in what traders said was the wildest session ever seen, topping even the excited trading in the 1915 and 1916 war boom. With coffee the only laggard, advancing a mere ⅛ to ⅜ cent a pound, all New York futures shot up the full amount allowed in one day's trading, and most of them closed at the top.

Closing the full limit higher were wool tops, up 10 cents a pound; sugar futures, up ¼ cent; copper, up 1½ cents; cottonseed oil, up 1 cent; cocoa, up 1 cent; silk, up 15 cents, and rubber futures, 2 cents higher.

September Rubber Soars.

Because of the trading restrictions, however, a better picture of the market action was obtained by watching the September rubber contract, on which there is no trading limit. Spurting 5¾ cents a pound in midsession, the contract eased from the top only slightly and closed at 23.50 cents with a net gain of 5.35 cents.

Domestic refined copper was finally sold at 12½ cents a pound, up 1½ cents from Saturday's price. Sales on Friday and Saturday were announced at 96,265 tons, with Friday accounting for 90,562 tons of the total. This was the largest day's business since July 21, 1936, when an all-time record of 106,101 tons was established. In July, this year, sales set an all-time monthly peak, but were only about twice as large as Friday's sales.

Buying Orders Swamp Brokers.

The flood of buying orders came from speculators, industrial users of commodities and the general public. Many textile brokers were so swamped that they refused to answer telephones, and thousands of buyers found no one willing to sell even when prices had climbed as far as was allowed. As a result, trading in many staples came to a standstill when the day's peaks were reached.

Several commodities reacted from the day's tops, but all groups scored some of the broadest gains in years. Rio coffee finished 0.18 to 0.38 cent a pound higher, and Santos climbed 0.13 to 0.25 cent. Lead futures closed 0.60 to 0.65 cent a pound higher; zinc gained 0.62 to 0.73 cent, and straits tin futures were 3.65 to 5 cents higher at the close. The 5 cent advance was the limit allowed for tin. Hides either advanced the 2 cent limit or came within 1-100 cent of the limit.

Textile Trading Heavy.

In Worth street, the textile market center, trading was nearly demoralized and many customers could not obtain quotations on dry goods. Prices in the Boston wool market were 13 to 17 cents a pound higher than early last week. New York spot wool gained 9 cents.

With the 12½ cent price on refined copper the highest since Oct. 5, 1937, the price of scrap copper was boosted a total of 1¾ cents a pound in two moves, making it equivalent to refined at 12 cents. Spot lead was quoted at 5.10 cents a pound at East St. Louis, up 0.20 cent, and zinc in the same market was quoted up ¾ cent a pound at 5.75 cents. Tin sold at 59 cents a pound, 10 cents over the last quotation on Aug. 31.

Other Markets Also Higher.

In other spot markets, rubber was marked up 5½ cents a pound to 24 cents, silk gained 18½ cents to $2.76, and Chicago hides were unobtainable at 12 cents, up 1 cent from Saturday. Some refined sugar was offered at 5.35 to 5.50 cents a pound, an advance of 0.80 to 0.95 cent.

The Yokohama silk market closed early for the second successive day when prices shot up sharply on war buying. The Antwerp and Roubaix wool markets were closed, to reopen if possible Sept. 15. In London the settlement of all cocoa contracts was ordered.

Texas Oil Producers End Contracts with Germans

Austin, Tex., Sept. 5 [Special].—Contracts of Texas producers to furnish oil to German importers have been broken in three south Texas fields, Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler announced today. Sadler urged other producers to break contracts with German buyers. He announced he opposes sending Texas oil to Germany, but favors selling to England, France, and Poland.

Wheat Climbs So Fast Rules Restrict Trade

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

| | Yesterday. | Saturday. | Year ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat | $ .81⅛ | $ .76⅝ | $ .60¼ |
| Corn | .53⅝ | .49⅝ | .50 |
| Oats | .36⅝ | .33⅜ | .23½ |
| Rye | .50¼ | .45¼ | .39½ |
| Soy beans | .82 | .78 | .76⅛ |

Trading in cash grain and futures in North American markets came almost to a standstill yesterday as prices of future deliveries soared the permissible limit for one day. Wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade and all other exchanges closed 5 cents higher. Corn was 4 cents higher. Oats finished 3 cents higher in Chicago and 5 cents higher in Winnipeg. Flaxseed futures were 10 cents higher.

Buying orders for millions of bushels of grain futures were in the market yesterday but could not be filled because of lack of sellers, brokers said.

Mills Withdraw Flour Price.

Mills which had very large orders for flour on hand were reported to be unable to quote a price, not knowing what they would have to pay for the cash wheat.

Inability on the part of mills and cash grain handlers to remove hedges against the actual grain prevented business in the latter. Only a few thousand bushels of wheat, corn and oats were reported to have changed hands.

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade held a special meeting early yesterday morning. They announced later that the limitations on the price fluctuations in the September deliveries would be the same as for the December and May futures.

Rules Limit Price Advance.

This action limited the possible advance in September wheat to 5 cents a bushel, compared with 8 cents previously.

Other special meetings of directors of the Chicago, Kansas City, and Minneapolis exchanges were held later in the day seeking ways to start the grain futures markets operating in a normal manner. A flood of complaints from millers, country grain dealers, and terminal market operators was reported to have been received as the result of inability to buy cash grain at any price.

Numerous conferences have been held between officials of the grain exchanges and the department of agriculture in the last few days, it was disclosed yesterday. The department, however, has not as yet announced its policy regarding the grain and commodity markets in general, it was said.

Traders Blame Regulations.

Officials of the exchanges and traders yesterday asserted that the limitation on price fluctuations for one day was responsible for the situation which has developed in the last few days. Wheat prices in Winnipeg have advanced 15 cents a bushel in the last three trading days. Both cash wheat and futures on leading American exchanges are now selling above the government loan level.

A few carlots of cash corn were sold in the sample market on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday at an advance of about 7½ cents a bushel as compared with Saturday. There is no limit on price advances or declines in cash grain. No. 1 yellow corn sold at 59 to 61 cents a bushel. The latter is the highest price quoted since April, 1938.

No. 2 white oats sold at 39¾ cents, an advance of about 4 cents from Sat-

MARKETS BOIL AS WAR BUYING FEVER RAGES

Stocks Up $1 to $27 in Wild Trading.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Belief that the European war will result in a greatly enlarged demand for American commodities and industrial products released a feverish buying movement in all American markets yesterday.

The upsurge was one of the broadest and most rapid in the history of the major exchanges. Speculative buying of the so-called war stocks brought advances of $1 to $27 a share on the New York Stock exchange. Most commodities on the Chicago Board of Trade and other leading exchanges rose to the maximum permitted under the trading rules.

Stampede at Opening.

So great was the buying stampede at the opening of trading that it was difficult to transact business in many securities and commodities. It was 40 minutes after the opening of trading on the New York Stock exchange before a sale was made in United States Steel corporation stock.

None of this stock was offered, and brokers were unable to fill the buying orders they had on hand. The trading was finally opened in Steel stock on a block of 25,000 shares at $8.50 a share above the price at which it had closed Saturday.

On later transactions the stock advanced to $66.75, a rise of $13.37½ from Saturday's final quotation. Bethlehem Steel, another war stock, soared $17 a share on early sales, later easing to close $14.50 higher at $82.75.

Rails and Utilities Lag.

The average price of thirty industrial stocks advanced 10.03 points from Saturday's final quotations. Railroad and utility shares lagged. The upturn in twenty railroad issues averaged 2.78 points. The average advance on fifteen utility shares was only .38 point.

Yesterday's price gains raised the market value of several issues more than 50 per cent above the prices quoted last Thursday, prior to the German invasion of Poland. The extent of the upturn since Thursday is shown in the following comparative prices:

| | Yesterday. | Saturday. | Thursday. |

MARKETS SOAR ON WINGS OF WAR BUYING SPLURGE

Speculative Stocks and Commodities Lead.

were the heaviest since October, 1937, totaling 5,932,150 shares. Transactions in bonds established a new peak of $58,600,000 [par value]. About 80 per cent of the bond sales were in United States government issues. Government and other high grade bonds were again at lower prices.

The Speculative Favorites.

The biggest speculative stock favorites were steels, oils, coppers, sugars, farm implements, electrical equipments and chemicals. These were the companies which speculators believe will benefit most from the war buying in this country.

Aircraft shares were also strong but the extent of the business these companies will get will depend on the outcome of the movement to repeal the existing neutrality legislation. Under the existing act, shipments of aircraft and parts to belligerent countries is prohibited.

Government bond prices slumped despite supporting buying by the federal reserve board. The downtrend in high grade bonds conformed with the usual movement when a speculative boom develops in stock prices. Many observers believe that interest rates are on the way up, which means that high grade bonds now selling at abnormally high prices and yielding but a slight interest return will slump in value.

Basis of Speculation.

The expectation that the American neutrality act soon will be altered was the basis for much of the speculative buying, it was said. It is widely expected that the ban on the shipment to belligerents of arms, ammunition and implements of war, including airplanes, would be lifted. Whether this step is taken or not, however, observers believe that demand for American products will be stimulated by the war.

Neutral countries, it is claimed, will have to turn to the United States for products formerly obtained from the nations now at war. Demand for war supplies from arming neutrals is also counted on to bring orders to the United States.

With buying orders sweeping in from all parts of the country and specialists already loaded with orders, confusion prevailed on the floor of the stock exchange. Brokers and spectators in the visitors' gallery saw one of the wildest sessions in the last ten years.

Tickers Are Swamped.

The high speed tickers, in one of their severest tests since their installation, fell behind actual transactions immediately after the opening as blocks ranging to 40,000 shares changed hands at spectacularly higher prices.

Douglas was the high scorer among active aviation issues, rising 5½ points. Gains running to more than three points were registered by Boeing, Sperry, North American Aviation, Consolidated Aircraft, and Glenn Martin. The volatile Wright-Aero stock vaulted 24 points to 114.

Leaders in the sugar section were Cuban-American Sugar common and preferred, up 6⅝ and 27 points, respectively; Fajardo, up 8¾; South Porto Rico, up 7¾, and American Sugar up 10 points.

Wilson, Armour, Swift, and Cudahy common stocks made gains running to 3 points, while preferred issues of these companies zoomed, Armour closing 16½ points higher.

Oil Shares Strong.

Standard Oil [New Jersey] up 5⅞ and Texas corporation, up 7, were aggressive in the oils. Pure Oil, Consolidated Oil and Socony Vacuum also were strong.

American Shipbuilding rose 9 points to 30, New York Shipbuilding closed at 14¾ for a gain of 3¾ points.

United States Rubber showed the way in its group, with a gain of almost 5 points. Goodyear and Goodrich common added about 4 points each.

Increased activity in security and commodity markets incident to the war stimulated a sharp advance in the value of New York Stock exchange memberships. Three seats were transferred on successive advances to $61,000, $63,000, and $65,000, compared with a price of $60,000 for the latest transaction prior to today's.

CHICAGO STOCKS CLIMB

Chicago stocks were swept upward yesterday in an advance which embraced all types of industries and carried active issues from fractions to more than 5 points above the final levels of last Saturday. The turnover was 136,000 shares, the largest since Oct. 20, 1937, when 162,000 shares changed hands.

The clamor for shares of Swift & Co. was so great that specialists in the stock were unable to open trading until fifteen minutes before the end of the session. They were unable to match the large volume of buying orders with the limited number of selling orders.

Swift Up 6¼ Points.

At 1:45 p. m. the stock finally opened at a price of 25, and closed at that level on transactions totaling 6,900 shares. The price represented an advance of 6¼ points over the Saturday level, and a new high for the year. The stock is included in the Chicago exchange's optional odd lot system, in which prices are based on transactions made on the New York Stock exchange. The New York opening was delayed for same length of time.

Libby, another Chicago food company, reached a peak of 10, receded slightly, and closed with a net gain of 3⅛ points. Armour pushed through its previous high to 8½ and finished 2⅞ points above Saturday's close on a turnover of 22,050 shares, making it the most active issue on the list.

COOK COUNTY'S AUGUST AUTO SALES OVER 1938

Retail sales of automobiles in Cook county during August, although showing a seasonal drop from July, were substantially ahead of August, 1938. This was disclosed yesterday by the bureau of motor advice in its monthly survey of automobile sales in Cook county. The report is based on registrations with the secretary of state's office at Springfield.

Sales in August totaled 6,061, compared with 4,022 in August, 1938, and with 7,361 in July, 1939. Inventories of several lines were fairly well cleaned up with the approach of the 1940 season. There is usually a seasonal drop in August before the autumn expansion in sales.

COTTON PRICES SOAR AS EUROPE BUYS HEAVILY

Close Up $2.70 a Bale After $4 Spurt.

European consumers bought American cotton in large quantities yesterday, boosting the price nearly $4 a bale at the peak of the advance. Profit taking reduced final net gains to from 0.38 to 0.54 cent a pound, the top price representing $2.70 on each bale of 500 pounds.

Along with the futures, the price of finished textiles was boosted in New York's Worth street market. A flood of orders from domestic consumers brought advances of ¼ cent a yard in cotton goods.

In Liverpool, the only major European cotton market to remain open, prices spurted the maximum limit of 25 points, or about 50 cents a bale in United States currency.

Spot cotton closed .41 to .46 cent a pound higher, with New York and New Orleans, 9.25 cents; Houston, 9.10 cents, and Galveston at 9.04 cents a pound. Prices follow:

NEW YORK BANKS BOOST BUSINESS LOANS SHARPLY

Advances Rise for Second Consecutive Week.

Commercial, industrial, and agricultural loans by member banks of the federal reserve system in the week ended Aug. 30 rose $58,000,000 above the level of the preceding week, the federal reserve board announced yesterday. This was the second consecutive week such loans advanced, following a series of alternating increases and decreases in recent weeks.

New York City again accounted for most of the gain in commercial, industrial, and agricultural loans. It had $49,000,000 of the $58,000,000 increase. In the preceding week New York City had $25,000,000 of the reported gain of $26,000,000 of these loans.

Chicago Bank Reduces Rate.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reduced its discount rate on loans to members banks secured by government obligations to 1 per cent effective Sept. 1, it was disclosed. The reduction was from a rate of 1½ per cent, and conformed to similar reductions made Sept. 1 by the New York and Boston reserve banks. The Boston reserve bank was erroneously reported recently as having increased its rate to 1½ per cent.

By lowering discount rates the federal reserve banks seek to encourage borrowing by member banks to bolster the government bond market.

Loans to brokers and dealers in securities dropped $31,000,000 in the latest week, compared with the preceding week's total, and were $82,000,000 below the total for the corresponding week of 1938.

ROTARY HEARS PLANS TO PUSH CHICAGO AHEAD

If Chicago presses its advantages it may be able to become the national center of the rapidly growing aviation industry, Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday told the Chicago Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman. He spoke on the association's Greater Chicago plan.

Mayer said that representatives of the association already have been getting in touch with producers of aircraft, aircraft engines and aircraft accessories to tell them of Chicago's advantages. He added that "equally ambitious efforts" are being made in other lines of industrial activity.

WHEAT CLIMBS SO FAST RULES RESTRICT TRADE

Prices Jump 5 Cent Limit for Day.

urday and the highest price since July, 1937.

The aggregate value of the cash wheat, corn, and other leading agricultural commodities remaining in farmers' hands at the present time is estimated to have been enhanced about 1 billion dollars as the result of the European war. The larger part of the advance has occured in the last few days, it was estimated.

Visible supply of American grain showed the following changes from a week ago [in bushels]: Wheat increased 2,528,000; corn decreased 926,000; oats increased 2,220,000; rye increased 400,000; barley increased 1,483,000.

War Rise of 1914 Exceeded.

Price changes in American and Canadian grain markets in the last three trading days were larger than during an equal period following the outbreak of the European war in July, 1914, said Lyman C. West, statistician for the Chicago Board of Trade. This is especially true in regard to lard, he said.

The advance in December grains and lard from the closing price on Aug. 31 to the high of yesterday, compared with that during the first three days of the war in 1914 follows:

| | 1939 High. Sept. 5. | 1939 Close. Aug. 31. | 1914 High. July 30. | 1914 Close. July 27. |

Coast Price Up 9½ Cents.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 5 (AP).—In a record breaking advance, cash wheat buyers boosted prices as high as 9½ cents above Saturday's close on the Portland exchange today—and found no sellers.

As rumors of large foreign governmental purchases swept the exchange, traders all moved to the buying side. Closing bids for soft white, western white, and western red were 86 cents, for hard red winter, 84 cents, and hard white, 87 cents.

STANDARD SUES FOR $435,398 TAX LEVIED ON STOCK

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana yesterday brought suit in the United States District court against Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, seeking a refund of $435,398 in federal capital stock tax paid in 1933. Payment was made under the terms of the national industrial recovery act which later was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme court.

Corporations were forced to place a value on their capital stock and to pay a tax at the rate of $1 per $1,000 valuation. The Supreme court did not rule on this section of the NIRA, and the treasury department has continued to enforce it.

The Standard Oil suit contends that the tax is confiscatory.

Rock Island's July Loss Is Larger than Year Ago

The Rock Island railroad had a July net loss of $289,929 after bond interest and other fixed charges compared with a net loss of $66,303 in July, 1938. For the first seven months of this year the road had a loss of $6,246,014, compared with a loss of $8,207,478 in the like 1938 period.

GRAIN BOARD URGES BROADER PRICE LIMITS

Restrictions on Daily Swings Curb Trade.

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday appealed to department of agriculture officials at Washington for authority to lift or liberalize the limitations now placed on daily fluctuations in grain futures prices.

For the last three trading sessions prices have reached the permissible limits soon after the opening of trading, and very little business has been transacted thereafter because the owners of grain have been unwilling to sell except at peak quotations. As a result, buying orders from all parts of the world have remained unfilled.

Discuss Abnormal Conditions.

The directors' action was taken following a series of meetings at which the current abnormal conditions in the market resulting from the European war were discussed. It was said the grain exchange officials feared traders who had sold the market short would find it virtually impossible to cover their short transactions except at prohibitive prices if the market continues skyrocketing. The short interest, however, was described as unusually small.

The present price fluctuation limitations were adopted by the exchange at the suggestion of the government, which, through the Commodity Exchange administration, holds broad powers of regulation over the board and other domestic commodity markets. The daily limits are 5 cents a bushel in wheat and rye, 4 cents in corn and soy beans, and 3 cents in oats.

Limits Disrupt Market.

In their appeal to Washington officials, Board of Trade directors are understood to have stated that the limitations, designed for normal markets, had disrupted the present "war market."

Veteran board members said the current situation parallels that of twenty-five years ago, when orders for millions of bushels of wheat could not be filled because of sellers' reluctance to provide the much needed grain except at steadily advancing prices. Because of this statement exchange officials on July 28, 1914, discussed the advisability of closing the market.

March and Armour Sell.

However, the late George E. March, president of the Armour Grain company, and the late J. Ogden Armour, packer, assured exchange officials they would sell sufficient of their large holdings to avert a panic. There were no price limitations then.

March and Armour turned over selling orders for 4 million bushels of wheat to two brokers. The market opened with a price surge which was checked momentarily by the selling orders of March and Armour. Then, for some reason which is still unexplained after twenty-five years, wheat futures fell 4 cents at Minneapolis. This, with the selling at Chicago, relieved the tension and the grain markets functioned normally until trading was discontinued in 1917 as a war measure.

WAR NEWS PUTS MEAT ANIMALS SHARPLY HIGHER

Gains Are Among Largest in Market History.

Prices of meat animals at the Chicago stockyards yesterday led the country in one of the sharpest advances ever seen in a live stock market. The upswing was extremely uneven, with quotations in all branches of the trade being revised at higher levels every few minutes as prices rose.

War news from Europe again was the dominating factor in live stock and meat markets as it has been almost continually during the last three weeks of rising prices. Hogs made the most sensational price gains but also were the most erratic on the way up. Gains during the day ranged from 40 cents on opening trades to as much as $1.25 at the close.

Top Hog Price Up $1.05.

The day's top price for hogs jumped $1.05 above last week's close to $8.00, equaling the Buffalo top, which was the highest market in the east. Prices for the session averaged $7.00, or 90 cents above last week's close. Veteran traders said there has not been a day since the world war when such a sharp general advance occurred in all species of meat animals. The day's rise in hogs was even sharper than on Jan. 7, 1936, the day following the end of the federal processing tax. The top that day rose 60 cents and the average advanced 70 cents.

Reports from all of the principal live stock sections of the country indicate that farmers are holding back shipments in anticipation that war buying will drive prices even higher, commission men at the Chicago yards said.

Hogs Withheld from Market.

The 1,500 hogs estimated left in the pens at the close yesterday were being held off the market. The department of agriculture reported that only 8,000 hogs are on the way for today's session. Some hogs arrived on the market with orders from the owners not to sell unless they could get $8.00 or more.

All classes of meats soared in wholesale markets in Chicago on increased buying. Some cuts of pork brought the highest prices of the year. Gains of $1.00 to $2.00 a hundred pounds were made in loins.

A rise of 50 to 65 cents carried top slaughter lambs to $10.00 yesterday, the highest sale since July 10. Cattle advanced unevenly 50 cents to $1.00, with numerous loads of yearlings and steers reaching $11.00. The extreme top at $11.10 was highest since July 12. Advances of 25 to 50 cents were registered in beef cows and heifers.

STEEL INDUSTRY ORDERS IRON ORE FOR WAR OUTPUT

Put Idle Ships in Service on Great Lakes.

New York, Sept. 5 (AP).—Preparing for a war boom, the American steel industry began sending out rush orders today for iron and steel making supplies. With more than 300 ships available for the movement, a race began to bring iron ore from Minnesota, northern Michigan, Wisconsin, and northern New York before the freezup of waterways in late November.

Another important decision made today by executives responsible for some of the largest deliveries of tin and manganese from the Malay states, India, and Russia was to operate their ocean fleets at their own risk. This decision was reached as insurance rates soared to 5¼ per cent on American ships and 8 1-5 per cent on foreign carriers.

Will Use Many Idle Ships.

Anticipating the Great Lakes freezeup in about 75 days, one of the largest steel companies ordered many of its vessels, now tied up, pressed into the movement of iron from the northwest ore fields. This company has one of the largest fleets in operation on the lakes.

The Great Lakes Carriers' association recently listed 327 vessels available for the movement with a combined capacity of 2,789,800 gross tons per trip.

Because of the extreme vulnerability of the Panama canal, supplies of iron also are being rushed from Chile. This ore supplies tidewater plants on the Atlantic coast of the United States, particularly the Bethlehem Steel company's Baltimore works, largest of them all.

Leaders Cancel Insurance.

The Bethlehem company, which has a fleet headed for, and passing through, the Mediterranean, is one of the largest operators to decide to cancel insurance. The United States Steel corporation, whose steel production is as big as the entire output of Germany, Britain, and France, has decided to route further shipments from the far east around the tip of Africa.

Industry leaders insist they expect no great increase in output of ordnance—guns, projectiles, and military weapons. But now that war has enveloped most of Europe they said American plants will produce more steel for trucks, tractors, and railroad materials for Europe and elsewhere. While the European plants supply most of their own ordnance, the American industry, they said, should take most of their own ordnance the America and the rest of the world.

JOHNS-MANVILLE.

Please send me a report on Johns-Manville corporation.—A. K.

Answer: Johns-Manville corporation is the largest producer in this country of asbestos materials, a position which it has held for more than half a century. It has expanded its products greatly in recent years and today manufactures about 1,300 items. These are generally designed for the control of temperature and sound, or for protection against fire, weather, and wear.

Building and insulating products comprise the greater portion of output, accounting for between 60 and 75 per cent of annual sales. Distribution is international. Canadian sales represent about 5 to 7 per cent of annual business, while other foreign sales run between 3½ to 7 per cent of the total.

The building trade is the major outlet for Johns-Manville products, but practically every important industry is a customer. Automobile makers, railroads, steel companies, oil and sugar refineries, and refrigerator manufacturers are large buyers of the company's products.

Johns-Manville has no funded debt. Its capitalization consists entirely of 75,000 outstanding 7 per cent cumulative $100 par preferred stock and 850,000 shares of no par common stock. Dividends have been paid regularly at $1.75 a quarter on the preferred since issuance in 1927, with the exception of 1933. Dividends that year amounted to only $5.25. Arrears were quickly cleared in 1934. This stock is considered fairly high grade.

Dividends have fluctuated widely on the common stock since issuance in 1927. Nothing was paid in 1933 or 1934. In 1935 disbursements totaled 50 cents a share, in 1936 they totaled $4.25, in 1937 $4.75. In 1938 payments were reduced sharply to 50 cents. A dividend of 75 cents has been declared so far this year, payable Sept. 25 to stockholders of record Sept. 11.

A heavy loss was sustained in 1932, but earnings were reported regularly in all other depression years. In 1933, however, net income was not sufficient to produce earnings on the common stock after providing for dividends on the preferred. Net income and earnings a common share in recent years have been as follows:

| Year. | Net income. | Earned. |
|---|---|---|
| 1932 | *$2,680,873 | *4.27 |
| 1933 | 105,331 | *0.56 |
| 1934 | 749,803 | 0.30 |
| 1935 | 2,164,858 | 2.18 |
| 1936 | 4,373,707 | 5.13 |
| 1937 | 5,451,844 | 5.80 |
| 1938 | 1,455,302 | 1.09 |

*Deficit.

Net income for the first six months this year was $1,203,744 or $1.11 a common share against net loss of $24,897, equal to a deficit of 34 cents a common share, in the same period last year.

Financial position of Johns-Manville is good. Current assets at Dec. 31, 1938, amounted to $20,473,282 and current liabilities to $3,055,345, leaving an indicated net working capital of $17,417,938. This was a working capital ratio of 6.7 to 1, largest since the 1934 year-end. The common stock is considered speculative.

NAZIS SHIFT BIG FUND TO SWISS; FOIL N. Y. BANKS

'Standstill Agreement' on Old Debts Involved.

New York, Sept. 5 [Special].—Leading New York banks today moved to seize about 50 million dollars of German government funds held here, only to find the Nazi short term balances had been transferred to Swiss ownership.

The banks' action followed termination of the 1931 "standstill agreement" under which American and other creditors agreed to lighten the terms of Germany's payments to creditors abroad.

Termination of the agreement was made effective as of Sunday, it was announced. This made Germany's obligations payable immediately. Action was taken by a committee representing American short term creditors, and was followed by similar action on the part of a British committee.

Attachments Served.

Immediately thereafter, leading banks served attachments upon one another. They learned, however, that Germany, in anticipation of this action, had transferred most of the American balances to the name of the Bank for International Settlements, Switzerland.

Latest published figures, as of March 31, 1939, showed outstanding credit lines to Germany in the United States totaled $81,000,000, of which about $65,000,000 actually was utilized.

The standstill agreement was signed in February, 1931, by representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Holland, and six smaller European countries. About $1,200,000,000 was involved originally.

Agreement Signed in 1931.

Committee members held their last meeting in May, 1939, and extended the agreement another twelve months. A conference scheduled for next month in New York is expected to be canceled.

Bank creditors are expected to file suits in the federal courts here for the funds, but there is considerable question as to how much will be found, because of the transfer of accounts to the world bank.

Zipper Train to Change Departure from St. Louis

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad's Zipper, effective Sept. 24, will leave St. Louis for Chicago at 8:50 a. m. instead of 12:32 p. m. Its running time will be reduced five minutes to 4 hours 55 minutes—the present running time for the fastest trains between Chicago and St. Louis. The new departure time from St. Louis will make better connections for Chicago with trains arriving from Mexico City, Dallas, and southwestern cities. The present noon departure from Chicago will be continued.

MELTING STEEL SCRAP PRICE IS BOOSTED IN YOUNGSTOWN DISTRICT

The price of No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap was raised fifty cents a ton at Youngstown, O., yesterday. At the same time it was reported no scrap was available at Pittsburgh at the present quotations of $16 to $16.50 a ton. The news led steel men to predict a further increase in scrap prices in important steelmaking centers.

The American Iron & Steel Institute said operations in the industry this week are scheduled at 58.6 per cent of capacity, a decrease of 4.4 points, or 7 per cent, from last week. The decline, however, is due to the Labor Day shutdowns, and does not indicate a letup in production. A month ago operations were at 60.1 per cent, and a year ago they were at 39.9 per cent.

Meanwhile, steel circles said that new business placed in August exceeded July volume, and that large foreign buyers who have recently placed orders outside of the United States are again making inquiries here for semi-finished and other steel products as well as for pig iron.

Commonwealth's rate is less on all loans than the maximum rate permitted by law. You do not have to be an "executive" or have a "special" credit standing to qualify for OUR reduced rate. Commonwealth's monthly rate of 2½% on loan balances of $150 or less and only 2% on loan balance above applies to ALL TYPES AND CLASSES OF LOANS. Any one who can make regular payments can qualify; there is no discrimination. EVERYBODY GETS THIS SAME RATE. Of course, persons whose incomes are above average can afford to make larger payments and thus make substantial reductions in their loan cost.

No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. Applications received by personal call, letter, or telephone will receive immediate attention.
